U. S. FIRES ON CABLE SHIP

PILOT HARDING TAKES HELM ON SHIP OF STATE

Gets Bearings for a New Course.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—President Harding and the members of his cabinet were busy men today.

The president reached the executive offices of the White House before 9 o'clock this morning and remained there until nearly 7 o'clock in the evening, with a brief respite from work during the luncheon hour.

Much of the new president's busy day was devoted to conferences with Secretaries Hughes, Weeks, and Denby. Panama and Costa Rica were discussed and action was determined. The Yap situation also was discussed. It is understood Mr. Hughes approved the stand of the retiring administration in the Pacific cables.

Callers Find Harding Busy.

While the new cabinet members were being sworn into officce the White House was besieged by callers to greet the new executive. Many were content to learn that he was engaged upon important affairs of government and so busy that he could not pause for social exchanges such as had made inauguration day a happy one.

A few who came on important business were admitted. They found the president [illegible] decisive, and none remained [illegible] the transaction of the business at hand required.

"Ready to Tackle Job."

President Harding appeared at the executive office shortly before 9 a. m. and announced himself "ready to tackle the job." He was accompanied by his father, Dr. George T. Harding Sr., and his brother, Dr. George T. Harding Jr., and the latter's two sons. His secretary, George B. Christian Jr., was awaiting his arrival to make the schedule of the day's appointments.

After going over some of his mail President Harding received Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, the first member of his cabinet to call on him. Shortly after noon Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, arrived and was closeted with the president for half an hour. Then came the conference with the three secretaries on the Central American situation. On leaving the White House Secretary Denby said the president had approved his desire to retain Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune as commandant of the marine corps.

Early Special Session Looms.

Senator Lodge, majority leader of the senate, and Representative Mondell, majority leader of the house, had a twenty minute talk with the president on the date of the extraordinary session of the Sixty-seventh congress, soon to be called.

Mrs. Harding appeared at the executive offices a few minutes before 1 o'clock, the president's luncheon hour. She shook hands with the employés of the office and looking into the little room set aside for press correspondents remarked that "it is altogether big enough to make trouble." Then she told the correspondents that "we want to know all of you personally just as well as the newspaper men we had with us at Marion."

Then came another cabinet member —Secretary of the Treasury Mellon— who slipped in quietly through the east entrance and had a few minutes talk with his chief. The president lunched with his family and spent most of the afternoon shaking hands with numerous delegations in the east room. At 4 o'clock he received the Republican national committee. Earlier in the day he had received Fred W. Upham of Chicago, treasurer of the committee.

"Old Home Week."

It looked like "old home week" throughout the day in and about the White House. Thousands of people strolled through the grounds on the north side of the executive mansion, which had been reopened as one of the first acts of the new administration, after being closed to the public for four years.

At one time the east room was so crowded with men, women, and children that it was necessary to close the doors.

President Harding greeted all comers with characteristic cordiality, and appeared to enjoy immensely this phase of the "return to normalcy" which he has so continuously invoked.

Enter Denby, Exit Daniels.

Secretary of the Navy Denby took the oath of office at 3 p. m. in the presence of his predecessor, Josephus Daniels; Mr. Woodbury, the outgoing assistant secretary, Admiral Koontz, chief of naval operations; Gen. Le-

Sub-Chaser Blocks Work; Arrests Crew

Miami, Fla., March 5.—Work of connecting the Western Union Miami-Barbadoes cable, begun again today, was abruptly halted late this afternoon when the United States subchaser 154 appeared and opened fire on the cableship Robert C. Clowry and placed the entire crew under arrest.

The action took place on the high seas about four miles off the coast of Miami beach, near the buoy that had been attached to the end of the cable when it was laid from the three mile limit of the United States to Barbadoes by the British cableship, Colonia, last summer.

Signals Are Ignored.

Cableship Clowry arrived off Miami yesterday from Jacksonville to start work on connecting the cable and had picked up the loose end when the subchaser arrived on the scene.

Signals hoisted by the naval vessel, it is said, were disregarded by the cable ship, after which a shot was fired by the subchaser across the bow of the Clowry, which then promptly hove to.

Arrested at the Port.

Capt. Smith of the Clowry was ordered to desist from the cable work, and both vessels entered the port of Miami this afternoon. When the Clowry tied up at the dock the entire crew was placed under arrest by local naval authorities.

It is said that late tonight the crew was released from arrest by Lieut. Murray, aid for information.

Navy Is Not Informed.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—The navy department was without advices tonight concerning the action of the subchaser 154 in holding up the Western Union cable ship off Miami, Fla., late today, but was endeavoring to get into wireless communication with the naval authorities there tonight.

PREVIOUS ATTEMPT FAILED.

The firing on the Clowry is the climax of a controversy dating back to last summer. On Aug. 6, 1920, the British cable ship Colonia, under charter to the Western Union company, completed the laying of the cable to the three mile limit at Miami. On instructions instituted by the state department, which objected to the landing of the cable on the ground that it gave the British dominance in the South American message transmission field, Rear Admiral Benton C. Decker stopped further work.

In November reports that an attempt would be made to bring the cable ashore at Miami secretly resulted in a strong naval force being concentrated there. No attempt was made to land the cable.

Cuba Backs Action.

The Western Union company appealed to the courts. An attempt was made to land the cable in Cuba. This was blocked, the Cuban government refusing permission.

The objections of the state department to the landing of the cable at Miami are based on the claim that the Western Union company is acting for the Western Telegraph company, a British concern which has a monopoly of cable communication in Brazil.

Elihu Root, counsel for All American Cables, Inc., declared that the continuance of the British cable monopoly was injurious to the business and diplomatic relations of the United States.

WILSON, RESTED, CHEERFUL, TAKES LONG AUTO RIDE

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Former President Woodrow Wilson—who prefers to be known henceforth as "plain Woodrow Wilson"—spent his first day as a private citizen today resting from the severe physical strain entailed by his participation in yesterday's inaugural ceremonies.

The former president got up this morning refreshed. He ate a hearty breakfast and turned to the mass of telegrams and letters which had arrived at Citizen Wilson's new residence at 2340 S street, Northwest.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson called during the morning and was cheered with the appearance of Mr. Wilson. Throughout the day automobiles drew up to the Wilson residence to leave cards or bouquets also from friends.

In the afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and others of the household, Mr. Wilson took a long motor ride through Rock Creek park and into Virginia.

Waitress Learns What "Stickup Sandwich" Is

Minneapolis, Minn., March 5.—An order for coffee, pie, and "stickup sandwich" led Miss Alice Jackson, restaurant waitress, to ask "What is a 'stickup sandwich'?" when two young men gave her the order early today.

"Ask the cook; he'll know," she was told.

When she returned from the kitchen the customers and $50 from the cash register were missing.

LAW IS PRINCE TO CINDERELLA

Saves Her from Squalor and Beatings.

ROSE MARGUELLI.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

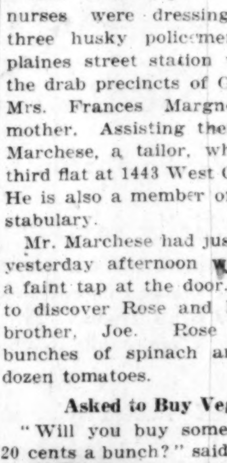
Ten year old Rose Margnelli, her gnomish body bruised from a broomstick beating administered by her stepmother, talked last night with a visitor to the Juvenile detention home. But she didn't talk about the broomstick. That's old stuff. She discussed the hot soup served at dinner. She had never before tasted any, and she hadn't eaten for two days.

And while the nurses were dressing her injuries, three husky policemen of the Desplaines street station were searching the drab precincts of Ghetto town for Mrs. Frances Margnelli, the stepmother. Assisting them was Eugene Marchese, a tailor, who lives in the third flat at 1443 West Congress street. He is also a member of the state constabulary.

Mr. Marchese had just arrived home yesterday afternoon when there was a faint tap at the door. He opened it to discover Rose and her 9 year old brother, Joe. Rose carried four bunches of spinach and Joe half a dozen tomatoes.

Asked to Buy Vegetables.

"Will you buy some spinach, only 20 cents a bunch?" said Rose.



EUGENE MARCHESE.

"Will you buy a tomato, only 5 cents," piped Joe.

"Why, we don't need any vegetables," said Marchese. "We—say—what are you two kids crying about?"

Marchese invited them in. The spinach was withered and the tomatoes mushy. He gave the children a quarter. Mrs. Marchese buttered some bread and put some jelly on it. They said they were afraid to eat it. They left. Marchese followed them.

He followed them to 734 South Loomis street, up one flight of stairs. A few minutes after they had entered he heard screaming and:

"You'll come home, will you, without selling it all, you——"

The screams ceased.

Marchese forced the door. Rose was lying on the floor, semi-conscious. The stepmother was bending over her with a broomstick. The child's body, bared to the waist was a mass of welts. Two fingers of the right hand, it was learned later, had been broken. He told the stepmother she was under arrest. She dropped the broomstick and ran out a rear door. Marchese remained to administer first aid to Rose. A 3 year old boy was lying on the floor with his head bandaged.

"O, that's Tony," explained Joe. "She beat him this morning because he wasn't tall enough to wash his face at the kitchen sink."

"Beaten Every Day."

"I never want to leave here," said Rose last night at the detention home. "They're so good to me. And the soup was so hot."

"Did your stepmother beat you often?"

"Every day, if I didn't sell all the spinach. I had fresh milk for dinner."

"Haven't you a father?"

"Yes."

"What is his name?"

"Bill."

"Doesn't he work?"

"No."

"Eggs and Hot Cakes."

"Do you ever go to school?"

"Sometimes."

"Do you ever go to Sunday school?"

"Sometimes."

"What did they teach you there?"

"About God."

"What did he do?"

"They croaked him. Tomorrow the nurse says we will have eggs and hot cakes for breakfast."

FIVE ROB MAIL OF RICH LOOT; KIDNAP GUARD

Steal Truck, Pitch Driver Out, Flee.

JOHN A. HAGEN.

Five robbers, armed with automatic pistols and riding in a touring car, last night held up a United States mail truck in the rear of the Chicago avenue postal substation, kidnaped the driver, drove the truck away, looted it, and escaped with registered mail variously estimated at between $10,000 and $50,000.

Fifteen minutes after the holdup John A. Hagen of 5107 Lincoln avenue, driven of the truck, was thrown from the robbers' car half a mile from the scene of the robbery. He was badly bruised.

Seize Three for $1,500,000 Raids.

Meanwhile the police at Chicago and Waukegan announced that through the arrest of three men they believe they have solved mail robberies in Chicago and Toledo aggregating $1,500,000.

Hagen's truck left the central postoffice at 5 p. m. He made some deliveries and started a collection tour at the substation, 2453 North Halsted street, 6:40 o'clock. Hagen told the police he got two registered sacks.

Supt. M. J. Keigher said Hagen got only one, containing about $7,000 in government funds. There were two other sacks of registered letters, whose value may range up to $25,000.

At the Lincoln Park substation, 1617 Larrabee street, Hagen, according to Clerk Mary L. Henrich, picked up one registered sack containing about $4,000 in government funds and two sacks of registered letters. Hagen then started for the Chicago avenue substation.

Robber Hops on Car.

As he approached the rear of the postal station on Institute place the robbers' car darted from an alley.

Hagen, to escape a collision, jammed his truck toward the curb.

He looked around to find a man with an automatic pistol on the running board.

Hagen was compelled to climb into the robbers' motor where three men sat on him.

One of the thieves took the wheel of the truck and drove west in Chicago avenue. The robbers' car followed.

Grab Loot and Flee.

At Sheldon street and Arbor place the truck became stalled. Three of the thieves got out and broke its door; two of them climbed in and sorted the mail bags.

They took six sacks, four of which, Hagen declared, were filled with registered mail. Then they pushed Hagen into the truck, covered him with mail sacks, and drove away. The last man to see the robber car was Hugh Jones, a grocer at 1401 West Lake street.

Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes, Lieuts. William O'Brien, William Schoemaker, and John Norton, with squads of detectives, and Postoffice Inspectors S. B. Ashton, R. B. Mondelle, W. J. Fahy, W. E. Sudor, and V. E. Albertie took up the chase.

Raid Four Houses; Seize Five.

By midnight four houses, at 11 and 13 North Ada street and 1215 and 1217 West Madison street, had been raided for suspects. Five persons were arrested and held incomunicado. It was near the Ada street address that Tommy Schuup, held for the $500,000 Union station mail robbery, was captured several weeks ago.

The two men arrested at Waukegan yesterday gave the names of James E. Babcock of 1914 North Twelfth street and Michael O'Connor of 1816 North Fourteenth street, Toledo.

Trapped in Robber Car?

At the time of their arrest they were driving an automobile which carried a license plate identical with the one used by the thieves in the $1,000,000 Toledo robbery. They were ordered held by Postal Inspectors Wieklinski and Fahy.

Elmer Rowe of 1215 West Madison street was arrested during the day by Postoffice Inspector A. E. Germer in connection with the $500,000 Union Station mail robbery here. Rowe, it is charged, attempted to dispose of $40,000 worth of industrial bonds obtained in the latter robbery.

Viviani to Urge U. S. to Stand Beside Allies

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.
[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]

PARIS, March 5.—The French government will send Rene Viviani as a special envoy to the United States to plead before the new administration and the American people the case of France.

His mission, the second trip he has made, will be to explain the position of his country towards America. He will tell of the hardships a separate peace between Washington and Berlin would inflict upon France. His previous visit to America was with Marshal Joffre just after America entered the world war.

He's Former Premier.

M. Viviani, is a former premier of France. He is expected to leave in about three weeks. He will probably spend one week in Washington and one in New York, then return.

France cannot bring herself to believe America will make a separate peace with Germany, if America really understands the disadvatage that course will bring to its war associates.

France believes America san make reservations to the treaty clauses and the league covenant.

Won't Talk on Debts.

M. Viviani will not speak of cancellation of debts.

France wants the Harding administration to understand France is not imperialistic nor unreasonable toward Germany but intends to make the Germans fulfill the treaty.

MISS BARRYMORE PREPARES A SUIT FOR SEPARATION

Actress Refuses to Tell Her Reasons.

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Ethel Barrymore, one of America's best beloved actresses, and her husband, Russell Griswold Colt, have come to a definite parting of the ways. The documents necessary to a legal separation have been drawn up.

This step is possibly only a preliminary to a final severance of matrimonial ties. It will not be a divorce, as Miss Barrymore is a devout Roman Catholic, but it is stated that the parting is definite.

Miss Barrymore is at present in Flower hospital convalescing from an operation. She declines to discuss her matrimonial affairs.

Married in 1909.

Mr. Colt is the son of Samuel Pomeroy Colt of Providence, R. I. He and Miss Barrymore were married in Hyde Park, a suburb of Boston, in March, 1909.

There are three children of the marriage. Samuel, called after the multimillionaire grandfather, was born in December, 1909. Ethel Barrymore Colt, named after the mother, was born in 1911 and John Drew Colt, christened for his mother's uncle, was born in 1913.

A Family of Actors.

Miss Barrymore is the daughter of the late Maurice Barrymore and Georgiana Drew Barrymore, both noted players. She is the niece of John Drew and the sister of John and Lionel Barrymore. She made her stage debut with her uncle, after her graduation from Notre Dame convent, in Philadelphia, and later appeared in leading roles with Henry Irving in England.

Baby Gulps Open Safety Pin; X-Ray Guards Life

Eleven months old James Buchanon Jr. swallowed an open safety pin last Thursday night while playing on a bed in the Buchanon apartment at 934 Irving Park boulevard. Then he began to cry.

His mother discovered what had happened and called Dr. Sidney Greenspahn Jr., who rushed the baby to the American hospital. He summoned Dr. W. L. Childers and together they adjusted the X-ray apparatus and watched the pin Thursday night, Friday and yesterday, prepared to operate the moment its point threatened to pierce the lining of the stomach.

"The danger is past," reported Dr. Greenspahn at 9:30 last night. "No operation will be necessary."

FLEET RUSHED TO CANAL ZONE TO KEEP PEACE

Harding Acts with Firmness, Speed.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—President Harding today directed the dispatch of identical notes to the republics of Panama and Costa Rica warning them against continuation of hostilities over their boundary dispute.

The note, which amounts to a virtual ultimatum, calls on the Central American republics for an immediate cessation of hostilities. The warning was backed by an order for United States warships to proceed forthwith to ports on both sides of the Panama-Costa Rican boundary.

The notes were sent by Secretary of State Hughes within a few hours after he took the oath of office, following a conference at the White House participated in by President Harding, Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Denby, and Mr. Hughes.

Action Based on Treaty.

Decision to make vigorous representations to the warring American nations was based on the right given to the United States in the treaty between this government and the government of Panama for the protection of the Panama Canal.

The Harding administration demand for an immediate cessation of hostilities is in line with strong representations made to both governments by Bainbridge Colby, the retiring secretary of state. It was explained today that the course of the Wilson administration would have been more vigorous had not President Wilson and Secretary Colby desired to avoid any action that might tend to embarrass the Harding administration, which was to come into power within a period measured by days.

Representations in connection with the hostilities and impending hostilities had been made by the state department on three different occasions when Mr. Colby was secretary of state.

Warships Already on Way.

At the request of the then administration of the state department, the navy department, then presided over by Josephus Daniels, had ordered the cruiser Sacramento to proceed to Almirante on the Atlantic side near the scene of conflict, where the United Fruit company, an American corporation, has valuable holdings. Instructions had also been given to Rear Admiral Henry F. Bryan, commanding the special service squadron in Central American waters, to send other warships if the constituted authorities were unable to give protection to American interests.

President Harding and his advisers determined to go farther to protect American interests and the instructions sent by the navy department today for warships to proceed to the scene of the trouble on both the Atlantic and the Pacific sides of the isthmus were the result.

The government, while calling on the two belligerents to stop fighting at once, preserves its neutral position by restricting the duties of its naval commanders to protect American interests, a broad phrase that covers most discretionary authority.

Will Enforce Old Decision.

The course determined upon by the Harding administration is intended to stay belligerent operations pending an effort to settle the controversy between Costa Rica and Panama on the basis of a boundary award handed down in 1914 by Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court as umpire, which favored the contentions of Costa Rica.

In one of the notes sent recently to the two governments by the United States it was asserted that a resort to arms was not the method that should be adopted to adjust a boundary dispute. Costa Rica has not responded to this communication, and Secretary Hughes, with the approval of Mr. Harding, decided upon sterner methods.

Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, one of the Panaman government ministers, and J. E. Lefevre, charge d'affaires of Panama in Washington, called at the state department today to confer over the situation.

COSTA RICANS INVADE PANAMA.

PANAMA, March 5.—One thousand armed Costa Ricans crossed the Sixaola river yesterday and entered Panama territory which had not been under dispute, constituting the first invasion by either country. They seized the United Fruit villages of Almirante and Gualito and were reported to be marching upon Bocas.

Two workmen were killed by the Costa Ricans at Almirante, but the Panaman police force of twenty men withdrew without resistance.

Panama Ready to Fight.

If Costa Rica "does not abandon its offensive against Panama," the latter will be compelled to attack, President Porras, Panama, declared today. His message read:

"After Panamanian forces recaptured the city of Coto, Costa Ricans have attacked our forces three times, failing each time.

"In the first attack we captured a big gasoline launch, flag, and arms. The second time we captured a small steamer, arms, flag, and a great quantity of ammunition and many prisoners.

The Third Victory.

"The third time we captured another gasoline launch, ten prisoners, and great quantities of supplies.

"Costa Ricans have invaded the province of Boca del Toro, passing the international bridge and advancing toward Almirante. We did not make resistance there, in order to avoid damage to properties and employés of the United Fruit company, but if Costa Ricans do not abandon their offensive we will be compelled to attack them to defend our territory.

No Declaration of War.

"Costa Rica has not made a declaration of war. Panama has protested before the council of the league of nations.

"Panama assembly is enacting a law to authorize the government to get an interior loan for the national defense."

LATIN UNION PLANNED

Panama, March 5.—Plans for permanent union of Colombia, Ecuador, and Venezuela into one republic were under way tonight, one of the first objects being protection of the republic of Panama, which was formerly a part of Colombia.

The move, which has been talked of for many years, took definite shape in a meeting here of a citizen's committee of three countries, following the trouble between Costa Rica and Panama at Coto.

CZECHO-SLOVAKS LAUD WILSON; GREET HARDING

Washington, D. C., March 5.—The Czecho-Slovakia legation today received the following official cablegram from Prague:

"The Czecho-Slovakia press, commenting on the change in the American administration, unanimously emphasizes the services of the United States and President Wilson in the establishment of the Czecho-Slovakia state and recalls the interest and support of the American people in the liberation of the Czecho-Slovaks, and also faithfully acknowledges the help extended them in the most critical time through the Hoover relief organization.

"Newspapers happily congratulate President Harding and cherish the anticipation that friendly relations between Washington and Prague will continue."

Harding Gets Title to Presidential Cemetery

Lancaster, O., March 5.—By a peculiar land deal, President Warren G. Harding becomes owner of a one acre tract of land just west of Lancaster that he may use for his burial ground only.

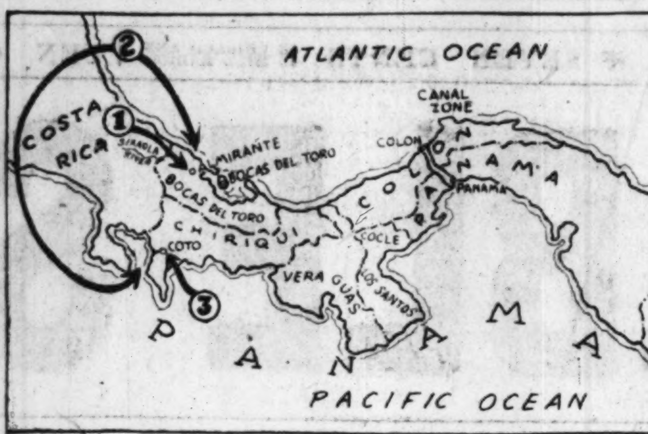
According to court records here the tract was deeded 100 years ago by Nathaniel Wilson, a pioneer farmer of Fairfield county, to President Andrew Jackson and to his successors in office to be used as their burial ground only.

Harding is the twenty-third president to be notified of his burial privilege. The donor died in 1836.

Dry Chief Sues to Remove the Mayor of Cincinnati

Cincinnati, O., March 5.—Attorney George S. Hawke, Cincinnati "dry" leader, seeks the removal of Mayor John Galvin for "failure to enforce the prohibition laws." Suit was filed today for a writ of mandamus to compel Gov. Davis to investigate Hawke's charges and, if they are sustained, "to remove Mayor Galvin."

U. S. to Stop Isthmns War



1—American warships have been ordered to both the Atlantic and Pacific sides of the isthmus to enforce the note sent by Secretary of State Hughes for Costa Rica and Panama to cease hostilities over the boundary dispute.

2—Costa Rican troops have crossed the Sixaola river and invaded the province of Bocas del Toro, Panama, and seized the United Fruit company villages of Almirante and Gualito.

3—Panama forces have recaptured Coto from the Costa Ricans.

JAPAN STICKS TO YAP CONTROL, ISHII DECLARES

Joint Cable Control May Be Offered.

TOKIO, March 5.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Yomi-Uri Shimbun today publishes a dispatch from Paris, quoting Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, Japanese ambassador to France and representative of Japan in the council of the league of nations, that Japan would insist on its mandate over the island of Yap, but was ready to make concessions regarding the cables.

The newspaper says it thinks the statement embodies the attitude of Japan

The Yomi-Uri surmises Japan will propose the Guam-Yap cable line be placed under joint control, but declares it remains to be seen whether this would satisfy the United States.

Shows Interest in Harding.

The Kokumin Shimbun calls attention to the importance the inauguration of the Harding administration will have on far eastern affairs.

It cannot be denied, the newspaper says, that it means the negotiations between Japan and the United States on pending questions must undergo renewed discussion, more especially the accord between the two countries, which had almost reached the stage of success.

"At the critical moment," the Kokumin continues, "another delicate matter has arisen, the Yap problem. The Harding administration probably will adopt stronger foreign policies than the outgoing administration, so Japan's diplomacy toward America is bound to become increasingly difficult.

The Little Love Token.

"We herewith present with our congratulations, a beautiful bouquet of roses to the new president of the United States, but we wish to warn our own government to be careful not to receive back from the American government our rose gift in the form of a crown of thistles."

PEORIA, ILL., DRY CHIEF WOUNDS 2 HOOTCH THIEVES

Peoria, Ill., March 5.—W. E. Brereton, group chief of prohibition agents in this district, tonight seriously wounded two men in frustrating what dry law officers believe was an attempt to raid the warehouses of the Great Western distillery here.

The group chief, with members of his staff, had been hiding near the distillery for several hours, as the result of a "tip" that the warehouses were to be robbed tonight.

Arthur Krither, who is not expected to live, was shot in the abdomen by Brereton, who, it is said, fired in self-defense. The other man wounded is James Perin, who was fired on by Brereton while fleeing after Krither was shot.

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5.

President Harding today directed dispatches of identic notes to Panama and Costa Rica warning them to stop fighting over their boundary dispute. The notes are in the nature of an ultimatum backed up by the sending of warships.

President Harding spent a busy day at the White House while the members of his cabinet were being sworn into office amid scenes which rivaled in a small way the impressive inauguration of their chieftain yesterday.

Herbert Hoover, in taking the oath as secretary of commerce today, declared that his department "promises more for the American people than any other."

Representative Fordney announced today that he would confer with President Harding next week for the purpose of getting ground work for a legislative program on tariff and taxes.

A crank with a fancied grievance against former Senator Henderson of Nevada, shot him in his office today.

Senators Lodge and Representative Mondell urged President Harding to call the special session of congress as early as possible.

MELLON PLANS STRICT WORK BY DRY AGENTS

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—One of the first jobs to which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will devote his attention will be a thorough reorganization of the prohibition enforcement division of the internal revenue bureau. Law enforcement, so far as liquor is concerned, will be made tighter, if possible. Methods and men are to be changed.

The resignations of Commissioner of Internal Revenue William M. Williams and Paul F. Myers, deputy commissioner, are on Secretary Mellon's desk, with those of some lesser officials. The men on the job, however, will be asked to remain until their successors qualify.

General reorganization will extend into the field forces.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer has not resigned. It is understood that he intends to stay in office unless his resignation is requested.

President Harding in his campaign and since has taken a strong stand in regard to prohibition enforcement. Any change in the next four years, it is emphatically declared, will have to be one of law.

ALL ROAD BIDS THROWN OUT BY GOV. SMALL

Excessive Price Halts State Program.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., March 5.—[Special.]—Governor Small today directed that all of the bids for road construction under the $60,000,000 bond issue, opened on Feb. 18, be rejected. Director of Public Works C. R. Miller forthwith rejected the entire lot and the road building program of the state administration is at a standstill for the present.

Simultaneously Gov. Small directed that an investigation be started immediately of the causes leading to the high prices named by the contractors. It is indicated that he will have a communication to make to the legislature Tuesday or Wednesday that will embody figures bordering on the sensational.

The governor shows that the spring bids of 1919 averaged $32,000 a mile when corn was $2 a bushel. The bids kicked out of the state house today averaged $37,850 a mile for northern Illinois and $44,250 a mile for Egypt, with corn at sixty cents a bushel.

Four Times Former Costs.

"It would require between three and four times as many bushels of corn to build a mile of road at these prices as it ever has taken in the history of the state," Gov. Small said. His assertion is that not more than 1,500 miles of the 4,000 mile road system provided for in the $60,000,000 system could be constructed. This is an impossible situation, he says, and now he wants to find a method of state construction that will circumvent the contractors.

Gov. Small, before catching a train for Kankakee, said that he wanted to correct an impression which seems to prevail generally that there are huge, unexpended balances in the state treasury to the credit of the automobile license fund.

Moreover he holds that the condition of the money market means that no state bonds can be sold at this time at anything like par. For all of these reasons, the governor says, "there shall be nothing doing until some degree of business and horse sense shall have been injected into the situation."

Gov. Small's Statement.

Gov. Small's statement in part says:

"From reports made by the division of highways it appears that during the last three years a large part of the bond issue roads have been located, surveyed, and some grading and bridge work completed.

"Four hundred and thirty-four miles of hard surfaced federal aid roads, covering parts of these forty-six routes, have been completed, and 160 miles more are under contract, the total cost being approximately $31,000,000. Of this total cost approximately $16,000,000 has been paid by the state, or will be paid out of the automobile license fee receipts, including anticipated revenue from automobile license fees of 1921; approximately $12,000,000 was allotted by the federal government, and it is estimated that $3,000,000 was advanced by the counties through which these roads run, which is still a debt of the state and must be paid back to the counties by the state.

"In order to pay for the roads under contracts let by the last administration, a large portion of the automobile license fees to be collected this year will be required."

Will Do the Best Possible.

The governor then goes into comparison of costs of construction and the price of corn, and adds:

"While it is my intention and my promise to push the construction of hard roads to a rapid completion, I must take into consideration the expressed wish of the people who voted a bond issue of $60,000,000 for the express purpose of building over 4,000 miles of hard surfaced roads. I propose to build roads as rapidly as possible, but I also intend to give the people of all parts of the state as much hard road mileage for the expenditure of their money as possible.

"I believe the people will approve the rejection of the bids submitted on Feb. 18 and will agree that their rejection is made necessary by sound, economical business principles.

"I have therefore required C. R. Miller, director of public works and buildings, to reject the bids for hard surfaced roads received on Feb. 18.

"Something Must Be Done."

"The state must do something to secure roads for less money and we will proceed to make a thorough investigation into the cost of all road materials and the necessary machinery and equipment for the hard surfaced roads to determine the feasibility of the state building its own roads or adopting some system of letting road work which will secure the state every mile possible of road for the money expended."

BLAMES "CEMENT TRUST."

Michael J. Faherty, of the Chicago board of local improvements and the American Road Building association, last night laid the blame for the high bids on the state road specifications which he declared to be "a costly joke."

"The men who devised those specifications must have been in with the cement trust," he declared. "They require one part of cement to three parts of other material. Good roads can be built with one part of cement to six or seven parts of other material. I have called this to the attention of Mayor Thompson and intend to call it to Gov. Small's attention.

"The foundation under Michigan avenue is one-sixth cement, and I defy anybody to pick a hole in it with a pickax. Cement can be manufactured for 57 cents a barrel."

The announcement made by Gov. Small did not meet the approval of the officials of the Illinois Automobile club.

The new first lady of the land has asked Pearl's parents to loan their daughter to her so she will not get lonesome in the big executive mansion at Washington.

SOLDIERS RULE FLORENCE, ITALY, AFTER RIOTING

Fatal Outbreak Quelled; Cannon at Scanaicj.

FLORENCE, Italy, March 4.—This city, recently the scene of serious disorders which resulted in several deaths, is quiet today under military occupation.

Local outbreaks by Communists in the country districts still are occurring, but it is believed the worst of the disorders are over.

One royal guard was killed in Spezia and several wounded. One landowner was clubbed to death in Savignano.

A military lorry proceeding from Leghorn to Florence was attacked Wednesday at Empoli, eight soldiers being killed and several wounded.

Lieutenant Is Slain.

The violence of the fighting in the recent disorders throughout Tuscany is indicated by details of the disturbances which have only come to light. Among those who lost their lives was Lieut. Bert, who is said to have been beaten into insensibility by Communists and thrown into the river Arno.

At Scanaici Communists barri-caded the main street and attacked the carabineers. Royal guards with machine guns and cannon were required to dislodge them. After the battle Communist headquarters was raided and pictures of Lenin and Trotzky were found painted on the backs of portraits of King Humbert and Queen Margherita, obviously with the idea of reversing the painting at an opportune time.

Severe fighting is also described in messages from Bandine, Pontedera, and San Piero a Sive.

Clash at Siena, Too.

SIENA, Italy, March 5.—Firing by Communists from the chamber of labor against members of the extreme Nationalist party was responsible for yesterday's disturbances, in the course of which the Nationalists stormed the labor bureau and set it on fire. Police and troops surrounded the chamber and ordered it to surrender.

Artillery was used to destroy the door, after which the police rushed in and arrested the inmates, some of whom, including the secretary of the chamber, were wounded.

More Infected Aliens Are Found at Gotham

New York, March 5.—Seven immigrants admitted to this country at Providence, R. I., yesterday were found infested with vermin when they arrived here today. Examinations of 1,307 other immigrants at railway stations and river piers here disclosed twenty such persons.

HEITLER BOOZE PLOT CASE PUT IN JURY'S HANDS

U. S. Urges Conviction of Twelve Men.

The trial of "Mike de Pike" Heitler and his eleven codefendants is finished. The jury, which has spent three weeks in Judge Evans' courtroom listening to testimony concerning the most startling whisky conspiracy uncovered since prohibition, was "locked up" last night.

Judge Evans announced he would charge the jury tomorrow morning. The jury will then retire.

"This whisky ring is one of the most powerful in the city," Assistant District Attorney James R. Glass declared in his closing plea. "They have operated with immunity since the law was placed on the statute books. This case is the first real test of the government's ability to fight the whisky traffic.

"There has been perjury committed in this courtroom. It has been necessary to use a corkscrew to get at the real facts behind the camouflage.

"Powerful interests have grown rich by violating the prohibition laws. Carloads of bonded whisky have been moved into Chicago and sold under the protection of high officials.

Publicity Made U. S. Act.

"Four months ago a car load of whisky was moved into Chicago. The saloonkeepers who had purchased it were robbed of their spoils as they transported it homeward. I don't know just why the government happened to investigate unless it was because of the publicity given to this violation of the law by THE TRIBUNE.

"Investigation disclosed that 'Mike de Pike' Heitler, together with Mandel Greenburg and Robert Pearlman, had purchased a car load of Kentucky whisky from the Old Grand Dad distillery. Prior to the arrival of the shipment 'Mossy' Joy, John Miller, Louis Greengard, 'Mickey' and Harry Frank, John and William McGovern, James O'Leary, and a score of other saloonkeepers had made up a pot amounting to $135,000 and turned it over to Heitler.

"Our witnesses disclosed that on the night of Sept. 31 a score of softhanded men arrived at the booze car at Gresham station. Diamonds sparkled in the dim light of lanterns as the whisky was unloaded. Policemen stood idly by or drank from the flasks opened at the command of Heitler. Chubby fisted, short, stocky, and corpulent, Heitler has been identified by witness after witness as the man who stood by the booze car with a diamond pin in his necktie and directed the booze runners. Then came the robbery."

As Mr. Glass finished speaking Heitler yawned. That was all.

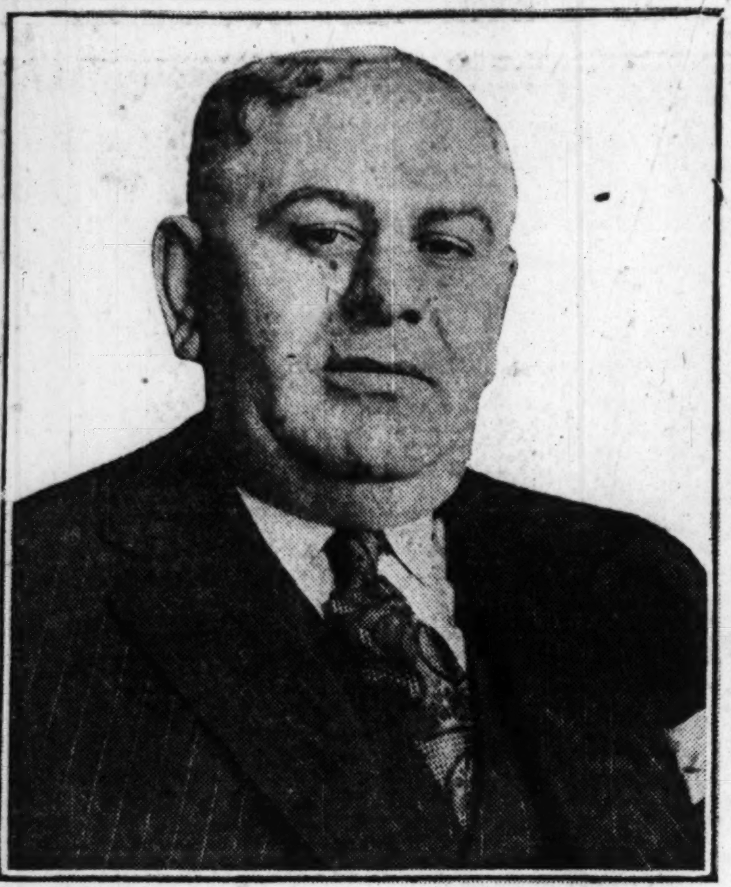
Attacks U. S. Witnesses.

Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, chief counsel for the defense, bitterly attacked the government witnesses.

"The government has tried to prove this case with criminals," he declared. "The six men headed by 'Mossy' Joy have confessed breaking the prohibition laws. Heitler on the witness stand told you that Joy and Miller were drunk on the night they entered his saloon and demanded that their money paid for whisky be returned.

"Joy tried to blackmail Heitler, and, failing, squawked to the government in an effort to punish Heitler. Are you going to send my clients to the federal penitentiary on the evidence of confessed criminals and drunken men?"

HERE HE IS!



Mike de Pike Heitler, chief defendant in the $200,000 whisky conspiracy trial, usually fights shy of cameras. Heretofore the photographic lens has caught chiefly glimpses of an eye and a part of a nose peeking out between the upturned collar of an overcoat and the lowered brim of a hat. But yesterday Heitler consented to pose for an honest-to-goodness picture. And this is how he looks. A jury in the federal court will begin deliberating on Monday as to whether Heitler ought to go to Leavenworth prison as a whisky runner. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

REALTOR CHASES PURSE GRABBERS AND NABS 'EM, TOO

Oscar H. Boenicke, real estate dealer at 953 East Forty-seventh street, caught two robbers early yesterday after a four block chase through Kenwood. One of the men, who had just taken a pocketbook from Mrs. John Prince, 3986 Ellis avenue, swung a hammer at Mr. Boenicke's head, but missed, the other jumped on his back. Other participants in the chase helped hold the captives until Policeman Bernard Heavy and Frederick Crowley arrived. The men, both Negroes, gave their names as Edward Galloway, 3748 South Wabash avenue, and Edward Davie, 2912 South State street.

U. S. AND JAPAN HAND IN HAND, EDITOR'S VISION

TOKIO, March 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Yamato Shimbun, in its welcome today to President Harding, says it thinks the United States must share the responsibiltiy of remedying the prevailing unrest in Europe.

As President Harding is a practical statesman, the newspaper declares, there is little doubt the world will benefit by his administration.

"As Mr. Harding doubtless is aware," the Yamato says, "the United States and Japan will play an important part in international politics. It is to be hoped he will map out a policy permitting both countries to work in harmonious coöperation for the peace of the world."

Attempt to Rescue Irish Prisoners Fails.

BULLETIN.

DUBLIN, March 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two officers and two members of the ranks were killed when thirty-five men, comprising a military party, were ambushed this afternoon between Killarney and Buttevant. Fighting is still going on, according to an official statement of the affair issued tonight. Earlier reports said a general was killed.

DUBLIN, March 5.—According to reports from Dublin castle the Irish volunteers centered their activities on trains carrying troops. One train conveying military was fired upon near Kilfree, but there were no casualties. Another train was held up by Irish volunteers at Durrow. Two hours later a third train arrived at the station and after a sharp encounter between the volunteers and the military both trains were enabled to leave.

Try to Rescue Prisoners.

A force of auxiliary police, which arrived at Dublin last night with prisoners, engaged in a running fight with volunteers. A British report says the police believe they killed three and wounded four or five, but the only wounded persons picked up by ambulance attendants were two girls, one aged 11 and the other 12. Both had been wounded by bullets fired by the contenders.

COMMUTE TWO SENTENCES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, March 5.—William Conway and Edward Potter, sentenced to death for a murder committed in Ireland last November, have been reprieved and their sentences commuted to penal servitude for life. General Macready confirmed a sentence of death passed on Thomas Whelan.

Important documents were stolen today from the secretary of the railwaymen's union. The documents were confidential and referred to the adjourned military inquiry on the shootings of railwaymen at Mallow by crown forces.

IRISH PROTEST TO HARDING.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—Frank P. Walsh, counsel for the provisional Irish republic in this country, announced today that he had submitted to President Harding a formal protest against the shooting on Feb. 28 last "by the British military forces in Ireland" of six men. The protest, he said, was based on the grounds that the men were prisoners of war, and shooting them was "a violation of the laws of land warfare, as declared by The Hague convention of 1907."

The men "had laid down their arms, had no longer means of defense, and had surrendered at discretion," Mr. Walsh charged, and shooting them was a violation of The Hague convention, which forbids killing or wounding "the enemy" under such circumstances. In his protest, he added, he had asked the United States to address a remonstrance to Great Britain on the subject.

Similar protests, he said, had been filed with the embassies of all foreign governments reported here.

EX-POLICE OFFICER SAVES HIS FRIEND FROM A CON GAME

LOUIS KROLL.

Eleven years ago Louis Kroll laid aside his police lieutenant's uniform after twenty-five years on the police force. Yesterday he again donned the blue when his friend, Joseph Mrukowski, of 5365 Lawrence avenue returned from Hot Springs, Ark., and confided that he was going back with $10,000 to make a fortune.

He explained that two men he met had introduced him to a "Texas banker," whose business was to "squeeze little stock dealers," and that he had finally won $60,000 in a bucket shop, but had to show $10,000 to get it. Kroll led his friend to the detective bureau.

"Chief," he said to Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes, "this darn fool friend of mine has got mixed up with con men."

"No, sir," stormed Mrukowski, "they're honest—"

But Chief Hughes wired the Hot Springs police to arrest F. W. Cartwright, Joe Connelly, and Robert Miller.

CAPITAL SHIPS FIND DEFENDER IN JELLICOE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

CANTERBURY, New Zealand, March 5.—Admiral Jellicoe, speaking before the local branch of the Navy league, declared that the day of the capital fighting ship has not passed.

"There is considerable argument," the admiral said, "as to whether the capital ship is dead and whether submarines and aircraft will supplant surface ships, but whatever happens sea communications must be secured and for many years to come they are bound to be carried on by ships that float on the sea.

"If you see a nation building big capital ships or big capital cruisers, it will be difficult to combat a menace of that sort unless you have vessels of the same class."

GERMANY SEES LITTLE HOPE IN NEW PROPOSALS

Cannot Satisfy the Allies, Berlin's View.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 5.—The German delegation today is more pessimistic about the result of Monday's conference than it has been at any time since its arrival. This is the result of constant wireless conversations with Berlin through which the members learned it is the Berlin government's opinion that it is impossible to satisfy the allies. Nevertheless Foreign Minister Simons is ready to put forward the altered proposals on Monday.

These proposals, it is declared, are hardly new, but are rather the development of an explanation of the proposals already rejected by the allies.

At the same time I am convinced some of the delegates would not be sorry to see the allied demands enforced, for two reasons. First, they believe it would convince the allies that there is little to be got out of Germany. The other is they wish the German people to be shown that they (the delegates) have fought as long as possible against the allies' demands and that no other government could have done better.

ALLIES READY FOR DRIVE

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

MAYENCE, France, March 5.—The French general headquarters today approved the final details in the plans, submitted by the French bureau of occupation, for the occupation of the Ruhr district at noon Monday in case the Germans ignore the allies' ultimatum. One battalion of British troops will participate in the invasion and will probably engage in the occupation of Dusseldorf. The French will contribute three regiments from the occupation forces. The number of troops the Belgians will furnish is unknown. None of the Americans in Germany will take part.

Although there is no contemplation at present of occupying Frankfort, complete plans for this maneuver are on hand. The only town in Baden that will be occupied in this maneuver will be Mannheim.

French Await Orders.

The French troops who will take part in this operation are resting under orders on the line of the occupied zone. The French troops destined for the occupation of the Ruhr district will leave Mayence at noon on Sunday and will prepare to cross the line into unoccupied Germany at noon on Monday.

River boats carrying guns and flying the French flag will leave Mayence Sunday afternoon and steam for the Cologne bridgehead. The allied plans for the application of force are proceeding orderly and businesslike.

Gen. de Goutte, the commander in chief of the allied forces on the Rhine, left post haste for Paris yesterday afternoon, presumably for a final consultation with the general staff.

GERMANY TO STAND FIRM.

THE HAGUE, March 5.—[By the Associated Press.]—The German correspondents of the Dutch evening newspapers declared today that the business and political interests of Germany, in agreement that it would be better to accept any consequences than yield to the demands of the allies, already are taking steps to counteract any economic coercion.

Reichstag Won't Interfere.

BERLIN, March 5.—[By the Associated Press.]—Chancellor Fehrenbach informed the reichstag today that the cabinet did not propose to interfere with Dr. Simons, the German foreign secretary, and his fellow delegates to the London reparations conference. He declared the cabinet was confident that the foreign secretary would make every effort to negotiate within the limits set.

Allied Premiers Meet Simons.

LONDON, March 5.—[By the Associated Press.]—A private conference was held this morning between the prime minister, Mr. Lloyd George, Premier Briand of France, and Dr. Walter Simons, the German foreign minister, at the residence of Earl Curzon, the foreign minister. The conference was arranged by Lord d'Abernon, British minister to Germany, at the request of Dr. Simons for the purpose of deciding upon Monday's procedure.

W. H. STUART TAKES BRIDE

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Stuart as photographed at their wedding yesterday. Notice the orange tree. Mrs. Stuart is the widow of Michael J. Sullivan, Eighteenth ward Democratic leader.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

In the presence of many prominent passengers on the Republican and former County Judge John E. Owens, liam H. Stuart, election commissioner, and Mrs. Ethel Sullivan, widow of Assistant State's Attorney Michael F. Sullivan, were married last night at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Keene Ryan, pastor of the Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian church.

"Bill" Stuart, as he is familiarly known in political and newspaper circles, and Sullivan, who died a little over a year ago, were warm political friends. They were both members of the Harrison faction of the Cook county democracy.

Among the sixty wedding guests who witnessed the ceremony were State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, County Judge Frank S. Righeimer, fomer County Judge John E. Owens, Attorney Roy D. Keehn, William Curley and William Sharp.

The minister stood on a dais banked with palms and above the bridal couple was suspended a large white bell made of flowers, attached to the clapper of which was a satin ribbon. As the last words of the ceremony were pronounced Judge Owens pulled the ribbons, sending a floral shower over the bride and bridegroom. It was under Judge Owens that Mr. Stuart served as chief clerk of the election board. He was appointed a minority member of the board last year by Judge Righeimer.

Both Mr. Stuart and his bride, twenty years his junior, were born in Brockville, Ontario. Mr. Stuart was divorced a year ago. He has a son 22 years old.

Following the ceremony and a wedding supper the couple left on a honeymoon trip that will take them to New York, Atlantic City and California before they return to Chicago to make their home in the former Greenburg residence, Sheridan and Buena terrace.

John Moravec, 15 year old student at the Harrison Technical school and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moravec, 1449 South Crawford avenue, has been missing since Wednesday night. For months he and James Voruda, a pal, have read detective stories and may have heeded adventure's lure. On Wednesday young Voruda drew a half week's pay, $8.75, which with $2 the Moravec boy had, comprise their finances. Moravec wore a brown coat, a red sweater, a blue cap, and striped gray trousers. He is blonde.

SEEKS MONEY PAID FOR STOLEN LIBERTY BONDS

New York, March 5.—An effort to trace twenty $10,000 federal reserve notes, alleged to have been given in payment in Memphis, Tenn., for stolen Liberty bonds, was made here tonight by Gov. Benjamin Strong of the second federal reserve district.

Mr. Strong sent a circular letter to all banks and trust companies in the district, advising them that the notes bore the distinct letter "H" and serial numbers 8H1A to 8H20A, and asking the banks here be notified by wire if they were located.

12 MEN SWEAR "BOOB'S" BODY IS THAT OF AHRENS

Twelve men signed an affidavit in the presence of Deputy Coroner Samuel L. Davis yesterday identifying the body of the "ragged stranger" slain by Carl Wanderer as that of Joseph Ahrens, son of Mrs. Sophie Lips of 6314 Cuyler avenue. William Reinhardt, 3337 North Hamilton street, who employed young Ahrens in a tannery two and a half years ago, declared he was able to make the identification positive by the victim's teeth.

Others who signed the affidavit were James Jackson, 243 East Thirty-second street; Henry Stieberg, 3534 Greenview avenue; Andrew Griner Jr., 721 Langdon street; Allen, Frank, August and Alex Runowski, 1924 Cuyler avenue; Peter Fornica, 1480 Webster avenue; Conrad Lips, 2111 Dayton street; Stanley Schultz, 1911 North California avenue, and Herman Reinhardt, 1509 Clybourn avenue.

Similar affidavits were signed on Friday by immediate members of the family.

Glaring Lights of Auto Cause Fatal Accident

Frank Schermock, 38 years old, 2509 West Forty-seventh street, was fatally hurt when, blinded by the glaring light of an automobile, he drove his motor truck into a ditch at Evergreen avenue and West Ninety-fifth street, Evergreen Park, and was crushed under the truck when it overturned. The autoist speeded away without stopping.

GIRL WHO WON'T WED STAR BOARDER SEIZED AGAIN IN CHICAGO

ROSE ESPOSITO.

Rose Esposito, 17 years old, who ran away from her parents' home in Franklin Park twice to escape marriage to the star boarder, was brought into the Morals court yesterday for the second time this week. She was found in company with Rollie E. Askins at 4746 Kenmore avenue.

The pair were first arraigned in the Morals court last Monday when she was found in a rooming house at 1036 South Canal street and he was picked up at the Union station while purchasing tickets for St. Louis. Rose was paroled to her mother. That night she ran away again.

"Rollie and I were to be married, but we didn't have money enough," she said tearfully yesterday. "I won't marry that boarder if they put me in prison for a million years."

Askins, son of a minister of Moweaqua, Ill., is charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Fire Fatally Burns 3; Destroys Life Savings

Muskegon, Mich., March 5.—[Special.]—Mrs. Joseph Dubouski and two children, a girl aged 13 and boy aged 11, were probably fatally burned last night when an oil stove exploded in their rooms at a hotel in Hart. The family's life savings of $1,000 were lost.

YALE SUSPENDS FOUR FRAT MEN; HINES TO FIGHT

Action of Faculty Is Held Unfair.

New Haven, Conn., March 5.—Through a decision given by the discipline committee of the Sheffield Scientific school faculty on a charge that the fraternity "The Colony" had violated the interfraternity agreement as to pledging freshmen, four members of "The Colony" are banned from the university and New Haven for a period of eleven months, seven freshmen are prohibited from joining any Yale fraternity, and the fraternity is set back three days in pledging men.

The freshmen who are deprived of election are:

Charles Boettcher of Denver, Colo.; Sollace B. Coolidge Jr. of Cleveland, O.; E. B. Thacker of Asheville, N. C.; Charles M. O'Hearn of Brooklyn, Mass.; Lowes E. DeWeese of Dayton, O.; Anton Hulman Jr. of Terre Haute, Ind., and John H. Haas of Kansas City, Mo.

Others Found Guilty.

The men found guilty of breaking the interfraternity agreement are Ralph J. Hines, '21 S. of Evanston, Ill; David E. Gibson, '23 S of Canon City, Colo.; James D. Platt II., '23 S. Portland, Ore. and Joseph B. Selover, '23 S of Cleveland, O., and they are suspended until the opening of the second term in February, 1922. Mr. Hines is the son of Edward Hines.

Director R. H. Chittenden announced the decision tonight.

The men found guilty of breaking the agreement undertook to entertain freshmen at a house party Monday night, and it was charged that they did so intending to make an agreement that the freshmen consider themselves Colony men.

The decision makes no reference to closing "The Colony" for the rest of the term.

WILL CONTEST SUSPENSION.

Edwin H. Thomas, Mr. Hines' secretary, said last night in Chicago that Mr. Hines would contest the suspension, because he believed it to be unfair. Mr. Thomas also said that the Colony club, of which the four students are members, would issue the following statement today:

"The active members of the Colony club are amazed and astounded at the extent to which a committee on discipline has upheld the action of the Inter-Fraternity council. The action so far as it affects the four members of our club is unprecedented and in our opinion unjustifiable.

"Our stand is that if there was any punishment from the faculties it should have fallen on the society as a society. The four men suspended violated no pledge or word of honor. They merely broke a rule frequently broken before by members of other fraternities.

"Our regard for them as gentlemen and fellow students is of the highest. Our esteem and friendship for them is only deepened by their seemingly unjust treatment."

Dubuque, Ia., March 5.—It took Mike Kaplanis two seconds to argue and start a fight with a storekeeper. Twenty minutes later he was looking out on a ten day vacation, officers taking three minutes for arrest, the justice ten for hearing, and the constable seven to the jail.

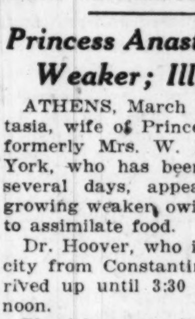
RELATIVES GET NO TIDINGS OF MISSING JACKIE



GEORGE HANCOCK.

No word has as yet been received by relatives of the fate of George Hancock, 2622 South Tripp avenue, and Leslie Woodcock, two Chicago "buddies" reported missing when the American destroyer Woolsey was rammed and cut in two by the American steamer Steel Inventor off the Pacific coast of Panama several days ago. Young Hancock, who was 21 years old and was serving his third year of a four year enlistment, was reported among the missing in the first press dispatches. He was a second class engineman. At that time it was stated 112 survivors were being brought to port by the destroyers Aaron Ward and Philip.

LENIN GUNNERS READY TO FIRE ON KRONSTADT

Moscow Admits Rebels Hold That Port.

LONDON, March 5.—Admission that the revolt at Kronstadt has not been checked is contained in a wireless message received from Moscow tonight. The report, however, denies its importance.

"From a military point of view," says the dispatch, "Kronstadt is not dangerous to Petrograd, for the Krasnaya Gorka fort commands Kronstadt and could destroy it at any moment.

Eager to Fight Mutineers.

"The entire garrison of Krasnaya Gorka denounces the mutineers and is eager to fight them.

"Calm reigns in Petrograd," continues the message. "Even the workers in the few factories in which anti-soviet meetings are held now realize that foreign agents are attempting to intimidate the soviets.

"The Petrograd garrison is unwavering in its loyalty to the soviets, while the mutineers' demoralization is increasing."

Earlier dispatches from Helsingfors said both Moscow and Petrograd were in the hands of the rebels.

Rely on Ex-Prisoners.

STOCKHOLM, March 5.—Scant reports from Russia say the Communists are concentrating detachments of former German and Austrian war prisoners in Petrograd and Moscow to put down the trouble arising out of the Kronstadt revolt.

HEARS FORT'S TAKEN.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—Official information that the soviet fortress at Kronstadt had fallen into the hands of revolutionary troops was received today by the Finnish legation.

It Would Tire an Athlete to walk or stand in the shoes worn by the average woman. With the body thrown out of poise by high heels, every pound is carried as dead weight. And with toes cramped and the foot laced against a stiff shank so that the muscles are not free to function, the gait becomes unnatural and causes fatigue.

The flexible, natural-shaped Cantilever Shoe permits every muscle the full liberty necessary to an elastic step and perfect balance. The body is swung easily from one foot to the other, a steady momentum is maintained, and one walks gracefully and without fatigue. The arch muscles are constantly exercised so that they afford strong support to the bones of the arch, preventing and relieving arch troubles.

Plenty of toe-room, correct heels, contribute to the comfort of Cantilevers. And they are made in styles approved by the fashion magazines for daytime service. Widths AAAAA to EE. Write for booklet.

HARDING TAKES HELM AS PILOT ON SHIP OF STATE

Gets Bearings on New "Normalcy" Course.

Jeune of the Marine corps and other naval officers as well as members of the senate and house committees on naval affairs, members of Michigan delegation in congress, Mrs. Denby, and a number of relatives.

There was much moving picture taking of the scene under the superintendence of Mr. Daniels, who never dodged a camera. Then the new secretary shook hands with all present, after which Mr. Daniels tilted his broad brimmed black felt hat at a more rakish angle than usual, waved his hand and departed.

Hughes Takes the Oath.

Associate Justice Day of the Supreme court, who was secretary of state for six months under McKinley, administered the oath to Secretary of State Hughes at 10 o'clock in the presence of Mr. Colby and Mr. Davis, retiring secretary and under-secretary respectively; Henry P. Fletcher, the new under-secretary, and other officials of the department. The last official act of Mr. Colby was to countersign the commission of Mr. Hughes, who as his first official act countersigned the commissions of the other new cabinet officers.

The members of the Republican national committee made a jollification meeting of the induction of their chairman, Will H. Hays of Indiana, into the office of postmaster general, the oath being administered by Associate Justice Van Devanter of the Supreme court.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was sworn in yesterday afternoon by Chief Justice White in the office of Senator Knox, and spent this forenoon taking over his duties from Mr. Houston.

Associate Justice McReynolds gave the oath to Secretary of War Weeks shortly after 1 o'clock. Those attending the ceremony were Mr. Baker, Gen. Pershing, Chief of Staff March, heads of bureaus, and members of the Weeks family. The first official act of the new secretary was to receive the resignation of Gen. March from the office of chief of staff and to reappoint him to serve in that capacity until further notice. It has been reported that Gen. March would be succeeded eventually by Gen. Clarence Edwards of Massachusetts.

Resignations Flow In.

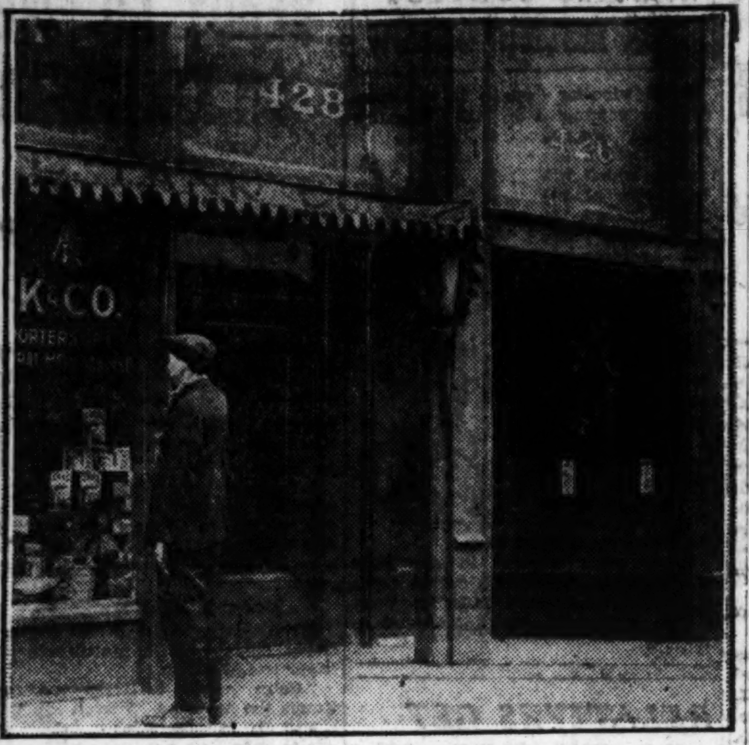
Henry C. Wallace of Iowa was installed as secretary of agriculture during the forenoon, in the presence of outgoing Secretary Edwin T. Meredith of Iowa and the bureau chiefs. Attorney General Daugherty took over his portfolio from Mr. Palmer at 3 o'clock, Associate Justice Day administering the oath. When he sat down to his desk to assume his duties the first papers presented to him were the resignations of the six assistant attorneys general. Mr. Daugherty requested the assistants to serve until their successors are appointed.

Senator Fall of New Mexico took over the office of secretary of the interior at 10:15 and after taking the oath spent a couple of hours with the retiring secretary, John Barton Payne, familiarizing himself with pending questions.

There was a big crowd of Pennsylvanians headed by Senator Knox and officers and members of the Loyal Order of Moose on hand to witness the swearing in of James J. Davis as secretary of labor by Chief Clerk Samuel Gompers Jr., son of the president of the Federation of Labor.

The forty members of the Canton Immediately after his induction Mr. Davis announced the appointment of Edward J. Henning of San Diego, Cal., as assistant secretary of labor.

"Hinky Dink's" in Dry Dock



This store space, now occupied by Chinese merchants, once was the famous Workingmen's Exchange saloon—"Hinky Dink's"—which was swept out of existence by prohibition. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ONE of the arguments used against prohibition was that storerooms occupied for years as saloons at a high rental would be tenantless if John Barleycorn was knocked out. Real estate men say that, on the contrary, premises formerly used for retail liquor purposes are rented at a high valuation.

Take the Workingmen's Exchange, for instance, at 426-28 South Clark street. This place was operated for many years by Ald. Michael Kenna. It was known far and wide as "Hinky Dink's." The bar was eighty-four feet long and the glasses in which the foamy nectar was dished out were called "tubs."

Twenty barrels of beer a day the year round was the amount consumed at the Workingmen's Exchange. A half dozen other saloons in the same block did almost as much business.

Prohibition went into effect and the barrel houses were closed. Were they tenantless? Some were vacant a short time, but others had new tenants waiting.

"Hinky Dink's" place is occupied by two Chinese merchants. All the other places formerly used for saloon purposes in this block are now occupied by business concerns, and rents, say the real estate men, have been boosted.

CABINET WAITS AS HARDING GETS PAL "THAT WON'T TALK"

Washington, D. C., March 5.—The president's mascot, a blooded airedale pup named "Caswell Laddie Boy," was brought into the executive offices by Charles W. Quetsche of Toledo, O., as a gift.

The dog arrived in the midst of the cabinet conferences, but Mr. Harding had given orders that he was to see it as soon as it was delivered. With many manifestations of pleasure he led his new pet into his office, where it made itself at home during the morning. The pup is a son of International Champion Ten Tern Tip Top.

Later the president brought "Caswell Laddie Boy" out and proudly exhibited him to a group of newspaper correspondents gathered outside his office.

"You see," he said laughingly, "I am going to have near me at least one friend who won't talk."

New York Quits Work on "Sing Sing Country Club"

Albany, N. Y., March 5.—[Special.]—To effect a saving of at least $250,000, legislative leaders, it became known tonight, plan to close the Wingdale prison and the eastern reformatory at Napanoch. All construction work on the uncompleted Wingdale prison wing will be immediately abandoned. The almost general view here is that it should be called "The Sing Sing Country club," as legislators see no need for the addition.

FUND ON WAY TO DEFEND MEN WHO FOUND BERGDOLL

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Three hundred dollars was forwarded today to Paris post, No. 1, the American Legion, Paris, France, as the first installment of the sergeants' defense fund being raised by the Stars and Stripes, veterans' newspaper, among ex-service men, for the defense of Sergts. Frank Zimmer and Carl Naef, veterans of the A. E. F., who are held in jail at Baden, Germany, for the attempted kidnaping of Grover C. Bergdoll, notorious millionaire draft dodger.

Commander Francis E. Drake of the American Legion in Paris, cabled the Stars and Stripes accepting its offer to raise a defense fund and pledging the Legion post to administer the money.

The cable states that a lawyer has been engaged to defend the sergeants by a Legion representative sent to Germany from Paris post.

Drake asked for 4,000 francs at once, which is more than covered by today's remittance.

The fund is being raised by donations of $1 each from ex-service men through the soldier paper.

On the Avenue They Don't Yet Know Vice President

Washington, D. C., March 5.—Vice President Coolidge at the close of his first day at the senate today walked up Pennsylvania avenue to his home at the New Willard hotel. As he swung leisurely along he was recognized by only a few, to whom he spoke a cheery greeting.

HOOVER AT POST: "NO JOB HUNTERS NEED APPLY"

His Department "One of Service."

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Herbert Hoover, in taking the oath as secretary of commerce, today expressed the belief that the department promises "as much or even more for the American people than any other."

Mr. Hoover addressed briefly a gathering composed of bureau chiefs and assistant bureau chiefs who witnessed the ceremony.

"This is not a political department," said Mr. Hoover. "The job hunters will not find anything here. Many of the heads of the scientific bureaus in the department have been in the service for years and have been promoted from one place to another. The appointment of some of them dates back to President Roosevelt. There is no intention to make changes in bureaus of a scientific character."

"I feel a great deal of responsibility in taking over this work, because the department of commerce has come to have a tradition of its own," said Mr. Hoover. "It is a department of service, and has devoted itself to the service of the business community. It is not a regulatory department, but a department given over to service. This department is one that promises as much, or even more, for the American people than any other department of the government. Its functions are purely constructive.

"The position occupied by the department is due to work of you bureau chiefs. I hope I may have the same loyalty and coöperation that you have given in the past."

LEADERS WANT ADMINISTRATION PROGRAM BEGUN

Important Measures Need Attention.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Senator Lodge, Republican leader of the senate, and Representative Mondell, majority leader of the house, today urged President Harding to call congress in extraordinary session at the earliest possible date. They said the new administration's legislative program, with the question of tariff and taxation revision outstanding, should receive immediate attention.

They pointed out that the important measures which perished in the legislative jam or by presidential veto yesterday would demand early consideration. Among these measures are the army and navy appropriation bills, determining the defense policy for the next year, and the Dillingham immigration bill. These measures are likely to lead to considerable debate and may consume several weeks before congress can get down to the legislative program Mr. Harding will recommend.

Army Program Will Stand.

Members of the military affairs committees believe that the army bill will be passed in substantially the form in which it was vetoed by Mr. Wilson, although there is a chance that the size of the army may be raised above the 156,662 limit fixed by the bill. The navy bill still has some stormy going ahead of it because the senate naval affairs committee wants to make it $100,000,000 bigger than the house bill. President Harding has already indicated his intention of insisting on a strong naval policy, and his influence is expected to be thrown on the senate side.

Agreement has already been reached by leaders to give the immigration bill the right of way in the new congress. This measure, restricting immigration to about 355,000 during the next year, was passed almost unanimously before it fell a victim to the "pocket veto." It probably can be repassed with little discussion.

Democrats Ask a Rest.

Senator Lodge delivered to President Harding a message from the senate Democrats pleading for delay in calling the session in order that they might go home and rest. Some pressure is being brought to bear on Mr. Harding for delaying the extra session until April 18, but the general opinion prevails that the date will be about April 4.

A determining factor will be the progress the senate makes toward ratifying the Colombian treaty at the present special session. Mr. Harding, according to his closest advisers, wants the treaty ratified at the earliest possible date to lay the foundation for a new Latin American policy. There is every indication that the pact will meet with stubborn opposition and start the new administration off with a sharp party row. Senators Borah and Hiram Johnson are bitterly opposed to the treaty, but it is believed the new administration will command the two-thirds vote necessary to ratification.

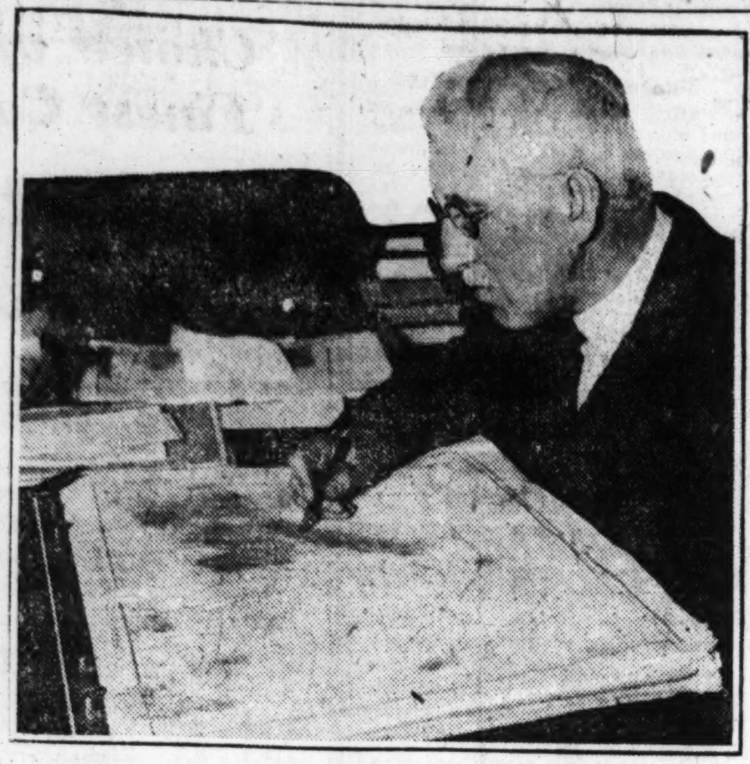
Republican Senators Caucus.

The senate foreign relations committee on Monday will take up a long list of treaties. The two most important are the Colombian treaty and the pact pledging the United States to go to war in aid of France in case France is attacked. The committee expects to bring the Colombian treaty before the senate at once. No action on the French treaty is likely. The other treaties are largely minor commercial treaties.

Republican senators cacussed today to organize for the new session. Senator Lodge was reëlected leader; Senator Cummins of Iowa was reëlected president pro tempore, and Senator Curtis of Kansas was again chosen whip. Committees to shape the order of business and reconstruct the standing committees were appointed. It is understood that Senator Morris of Nebraska will be chosen chairman of the agricultural committee.

Another important place to be filled is the position vacated by Senator Fall on the foreign relations committee. Senator McCormick of Illinois, Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, and Senator Poindexter of Washington, are said to be candidates.

TELLS "RHEUMATIZ" SECRETS



Henry J. Cox, Chicago's official weather forecaster, who explains how rheumatic persons often are able to predict a storm.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

HENRY J. COX, official forecaster for the Chicago weather bureau, explained yesterday why rheumatic persons are often able to predict a storm a few hours in advance of its arrival.

"They feel aches and pains before a storm," he said, "but this is not due to the increasing moisture but rather to atmospheric conditions. The air in the intercellular spaces beneath the skin presses, of course, in all directions. If the pressure on the outside of the skin decreases rapidly the pressure beneath becomes more pronounced and in some diseased conditions causes pain. Where the body cells are sound no pain is caused by the changing pressures."

In the picture he is shown consulting the charts used at the bureau to forecast the weather. Yesterday was the warmest March 5 in the last twenty-six years, according to announcement last night from the bureau. The temperature reached a maximum of 68 degrees at 3 o'clock. Rain late in the afternoon scattered the crowds enjoying the sunshine. This was followed by lower temperature.

HARDINGS AT THEATER; CROWD CHEERS AND SINGS U. S. ANTHEM

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Harding were cheered tonight at the Belasco theater when they appeared at the performance of Al Jolson.

Jolson, who had headed a committee of actors to Mr. Harding's front porch during the campaign, met the President and Mrs. Harding at the front door of the theater and escorted them to their box to the left of the stage.

When they entered the box the audience rose and began singing "The Star Spangled Banner." Accompanying the President and Mrs. Harding were Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings of Columbus, O.

DENBY WANTS GREATEST NAVY; WEEKS DOESN'T

Cabinet Members Split on Sea Policy.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—A difference of opinion in President Harding's cabinet on the question of the size of the American navy was disclosed tonight at the eighteenth annual dinner of the Navy League.

Secretary of the Navy Denby pronounced himself in favor of a navy the equal of any. Secretary of War Weeks thought the United States should have a navy adequate for defense against any nation which conceivably might go to war with it. Denby favors, Weeks opposes, building a navy equal to Great Britain's.

Denby Restores League.

The Navy League pledged its fullest coöperation with the new secretary of the navy. It was disclosed that the first official act of Secretary Denby after being sworn into office this afternoon, was to order that steps be taken to lift the ban placed on the Navy League by former Secretary Daniels when he fell out with that organization.

"I would belie every instinct o my being," said Secretary Denby, "if I did not believe in making a fighting navy. In the late war, thanks to the aid and protection of the British navy, our losses were exceedingly small. But you can't trust to luck always.

"I Am for Big Navy."

"I am for a big navy and I hope the present building program of the navy will be completed. I hope before we are through to see an American navy as big as any other. I know and you know that this means building a navy the equal of Great Britain's. If you ask me why we should do that I reply by asking you why not? Haven't we a coastline and far flung insular possessions that absolutely require a great navy to protect them?

"Some foolish persons seem to imagine that building a navy the equal of Great Britain's means we will go to war with Great Britain eventually. Such a war would be unthinkably horrible and, for that reason, if for no other, it will never happen."

I Want Navy Big Enough.

Secretary of War Weeks claimed a share of the credit for putting Denby in the cabinet and then, speaking as a director of the Navy League, said:

"I want a navy large enough for any purposes for which it conceivably is to be used. I want it big enough to cope with any nation with which we are likely to be at war."

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who is to be assistant secretary of the navy, warned against the unpreparedness propaganda being spread by the pacifists, who he said are still formidable.

"I asked Secretary Denby," said Col. Roosevelt, "how he and I should decide which of us should go if trouble should start anywhere. 'The one that gets to the president first is the one that goes,' the secretary replied."

HIS CABINET GIVES PRAISE TO MR. WILSON

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[United Press.]—A letter to former President Wilson from his cabinet was made public today by the state department.

"The final moments of the cabinet on Tuesday," the letter said, "found us unable to express the poignant feelings with which we realized that the hour of leavetaking and official dispersal had arrived.

"Will you permit us to say to you now, and as simply as we can, how great a place you occupy in our honor, love and esteem?

"We have seen you in times of momentous crisis. We have seen your uncomplaining toil under the heavy and unremitting burdens of the presidency. We have had the inestimable privilege of sharing some of your labors. At all times you have been to us our ideal of a courageous, high minded, modest gentleman, a patriotic servant, an intense and passionate lover of your country.

"You have displayed toward us a trust and confidence that has touched us all, supporting and defending us when under partisan attacks, with stanch and untiring loyalty, and placing at our command, always in the most considerate way, the wisdom of your counsel; history will acclaim your great qualities. We, who have known you so intimately, bear witness to them now.

"We fervently wish you, dear Mr. President, long life and the happiness that you so richly deserve and have so abundantly earned."

NEW PLACE TO GET VICTORY MEDALS.

A new office for the distribution of victory medals to former soldiers was opened yesterday on the second floor of the Federal building by Capt. James Wheelan.

SON OF GEN. WOOD RESIGNS FROM ARMY; GOES WEST

Lieut. Osborne Cutter Wood, son and former aid of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the Sixth army corps, has resigned from the army. This was learned yesterday following young Wood's departure for the west.

Lieut. Wood left Chicago on last Wednesday. Yesterday Gen. Wood said his son was in San Francisco, where he intends to become the employé of a large corporation.

The news of young Wood's resignation from the army was a surprise to many of his Chicago friends. Several months ago Lieut. Wood was transferred to Nogales, Ariz., and in January he forwarded his resignation to Washington.

Last week, however, he decided to reënter the service and took the examination for provisional officers at Fort Sheridan. Whether or not he passed will not be known for some time, according to Col. Eli A. Helmick, chief of staff of the corps, as the papers have been forwarded to Washington.

She said last night she had never met Diamus; that he was a tenant in one of her apartment buildings, but that her realty agents collected the rents. Diamus has been sent to the psychopathic hospital.

NEGROES FIGHT DUEL WITH GUNS; SHAKE HANDS

Two Negroes who entered a grocery at 755 East Fortieth street to make a purchase shortly after 8 o'clock last night became involved in a dispute as to who should pay for it. The dispute developed a fist fight, which terminated on the sidewalk. Both reached for their guns.

Pedestrians rushed to cover as the two men opened fire. Neither one had been hit when both had emptied their guns. For a moment they stood eyeing each other, then walked over, shook hands, and strode hurriedly away arm and arm.

They had rounded a corner and disappeared when a patrol wagon filled with policemen from the Fiftieth street station dashed up to the scene.

Man Who Turns In Hotel Fire Alarm Is Attacked

Fire of mysterious origin broke out in the Hotel Russell at 1234 West Madison street yesterday. A. F. Springer, owner of a meat market at 9 North Elizabeth street, turned in an alarm. Shortly after a foreigner approached him gesticulating.

"Why did you turn in that alarm?" he asked, and then struck Springer to the ground. Cursing, the man turned on Mrs. Springer, who was with her husband, and struck her on the side of the head, and then fled. The fire loss was $100.

TARIFF AND TAX PROGRAM TO BE FIXED THIS WEEK

Republican Leaders Plan Quick Action.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—A definite program for tax and tariff legislation will be mapped out before the end of the coming week in conferences between Republican congressional leaders and President Harding.

Representative Fordney, chairman of the house ways and means committee, announced to the Republican members of the committee today that he expects to begin the drafting of a bill in executive session on Monday, March 14. This bill will be ready for introduction when the special session of congress convenes early in April.

"I do not know just what bill it will be," said Mr. Fordney. "I expect to find that out during the coming week. I expect to see President Harding early in the week, as soon as it is convenient for him."

Three Plans to Choose Among.

There are three possible alternatives. One is to start work on an emergency tariff bill, based on the former Payne-Alrich law, to be rushed through congress. A second alternative is to go ahead with the preparation of a permanent tariff law. The third is to sidetrack all tariff legislation temporarily and give precedence to revision of the tax laws. If a temporary tariff bill is given the right of way, tax revision would follow and permanent tariff revision would come last.

Representative Fordney favors giving precedence to a temporary tariff bill. If this is considered impracticable he would go ahead with the permanent tariff measure.

Representative Longworth of Ohio, another Republican member of the ways and means committee, believes tax revision should be given precedence over any kind of tariff legislation. The same view is held by Senators Watson of Indiana and Curtis of Kansas, Republican members of the senate finance committee, both of whom oppose attempting any sort of temporary tariff legislation.

Agreement Needed to Avoid Delay.

The opposition of influential senators may be sufficient to cause President Harding to advise against the temporary tariff program. It is realized by Representative Fordney that unless an agreement is reached in advance with the Republican members of the senate finance committee to expedite consideration of a temporary tariff bill and head off attempts to amend it there will be little use in pushing the proposition. Delays in the senate would mean a waste of time with respect to all the measures involved in the program.

The expectation is that senate and house members will confer with President Harding separately.

BRITISH WISH HARDING WELL IN NEW REGIME

No League Unless U. S. Joins, Is View.

LONDON, March 5.—All the leading London newspapers today print President Harding's inaugural address in full, but most of the editorial comment is restricted to hearty well wishes without a detailed consideration of the policies outlined. The most outspoken of the London papers is the Morning Post, which says:

"President Harding's address will go down in history, for it has virtually pronounced the doom of the league of nations. 'Since freedom first impelled and independence inspired and nationally exalted,' the president declared, 'a world super-government is contrary to everything we cherish, and can have no sanction by our republic.' That is a majestic assertion and sentiment on nationality.

Must Have America's O. K.

"There can, indeed, be no league of nations except through the surrender of sovereign rights by members. Nor lacking the adhesion of the United States can there be an effective league of nations in any circumstances. What America offers to the world is not the abandonment of nationality, but the service of nationality in association with the other nations, and it is a noble gift, to which we in this country shall most heartily reciprocate."

FRANCE FEELS CHANGE.

PARIS, March 5.—Newspapers of this city, in commenting today upon the address delivered at Washington yesterday by President Harding, appeared to feel the change in American administration is one "from the frying pan into the fire," as far as Europe is concerned. Disappointment over the fact that Mr. Harding failed to make definite statements regarding his attitude on important affairs in Europe was evident.

"No word for the allies," said the Petit Parisien; "their names were not even mentioned. No charge against the Germans, who probably, with their accustomed obtuseness, interpret this silence as encouragement."

INDICT MURPHY AND COSMANO FOR PULLMAN RAID

Timothy D. Murphy and Vincenzo Cosmano, labor leaders, arrested several weeks ago by the federal authorities and charged with committing the $100,000 mail robbery of last August at Pullman, Ill., were formally indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday. Seven counts were returned in the indictment. Murphy and Cosmano are now out on bail.

Dr. Pinkston's Corn and Callous Remover will stop that awful pain in hard corns on top of toes, soft corns between toes, callouses on bottom of feet and on bunions, and will remove them by the roots without pain; no chance for infection. Most all painful corns and callouses have pus cavities in them, and my preparation will remove them both by the roots.

My bunion reducer stops the pain at once, removes the soreness, swelling and inflammation. It will reduce an old bunion ½ to ¾ its size, and will cure a bunion that is just starting. It penetrates to the bone and softens up the chalk deposit and absorbs it. This same preparation will stop the pain in nephritis, rheumatism, varicose veins, cramps in the feet and legs; it's the most wonderful pain killer known to science.

My antiseptic foot powder will stop that excessive perspiration of the feet, burning sensation, foul odor, cracking of the skin between the toes, that parboiled appearance, and removes all soreness and discomfort. These preparations are guaranteed to do what I claim for them, or money refunded.

Wear Dr. Pinkston's Combination Last Shoes and enjoy perfect foot comfort and shoe style. His oxfords and pumps cannot slip at heel, or bulge at side. Prices $10.00 to $18.00; extra charge for sizes over 9.

My custom made shoe department gives special attention to extension shoes for short limbs.

Price, corn and callous remover, $1.00; by mail, $1.10. Bunion reducer, $1.00; by mail, $1.10. Foot powder, 50c; by mail, 60c, or ask your shoe or drug dealer, and if he has not got it he will get it for you. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

INA CLAIRE AS CRITIC PRAISES HER ROMANCE

War Showed She Loved James Whittaker.

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Ina Claire, actress, told of her romance—her marriage to James Whittaker—during a chat in her dressing room at the Lyceum theater after the performance of "The Gold Diggers" tonight.

Mr. Whittaker is well known to Chicagoans. He is now a special writer on the Daily News of New York and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Formerly he was a Chicago music critic. He is an Illinois boy, the son of the late James Whittaker, who was an aid to Gov. Deneen during his eight years' administration at Springfield.

It has been known for months that Ina Claire is Mrs. Whittaker, but the details of their marriage were not generally known. They were married on July 9, 1919.

Married Near Chicago.

"The ceremony," said Ina Claire, "took place in a small suburban town near Chicago. I first met Mr. Whittaker after I sang at the Allied bazaar in that city. I thought him an interesting young man, but we did not fall in love at first. We had the common interest in music.

"Later some minor differences came up and our friendship was, you might say, suspended.

"I became engaged to Lieut. Lawrence Townsend of Washington. I understand now that I liked him for the same qualities I admire in the man who is now my husband. But in time I understood that I did not love him. Then I broke the engagement.

"I saw Mr. Whittaker again just as he was sailing to France with the United States artillery.

War Renewed Romance.

"War cleared my vision. I began to realize then how much he meant in my life. We corresponded. When he came back from the war we became engaged at once.

"I finished a dramatic engagement in Washington and went right to Chicago. We were married. We had no wedding journey. We came back at once to a little three room apartment Mr. Whittaker's mother had taken for us on the north side. She had engaged a maid of all work for me, but none came.

"So the first week and a half of our honeymoon I cooked and washed dishes. Or, rather, we did, for my husband helped me.

"We hid away in this little north side apartment for two months. Later I came back to New York and opened a play. Mr. Whittaker came on to see me several times.

Will Visit Europe.

"Recently he has come here to live. We have taken an apartment in New York. We will take our real wedding journey in May. We are going to Europe. I intend to study all the time I am there.

"I married James Whittaker instead of the other real or alleged suitors ascribed to me because I loved him. It was deep friendship and genuine romance of the heart, lacking in other cases of men who honored me by asking me to marry them."

Ina Claire says she has a message for the girls in her audiences and for all the thousands of young women who write her letters. It is:

"Follow your heart in marriage. Let love be the only consideration. Be a good sport in all your dealings with life."

MOTHER VANISHES WHEN FATHER TAKES THEIR BABY AWAY

Failing to find her 3 year old daughter, Dorothy Lorraine, Mrs. William E. McKinney vanished from the home of her mother, Mrs. John Basher at 3311 Ravenswood avenue on Friday. Miss Claire Basner, her sister, said that on Feb. 5 Mrs. McKinney's estranged husband took the child for a walk and did not reappear. Thursday Mrs. McKinney appealed to Judge Sheridan Fry for aid, but he could do nothing. The mother vanished the following morning.

NOT BILLION, BUT MILLION, LOST BY PROHIBITION

Washington, D. C., March 5.—Deductions from income taxes of persons whose business was ended with the enactment of federal prohibition legislation will amount to approximately $1,000,000, the bureau of internal revenue announced tonight. The estimate was made public as a result of statements recently in the senate, placing the losses from this source at $1,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000. It was based on records of claims filed by distillery and brewery interests, officials said.

ORATORY SCHOOL IS DEAD; SCHOOL OF SPEECH BORN

Announcement was made by Northwestern university yesterday that the School of Oratory exists no more (in name) and that the School of Speech of Northwestern university has been born.

On all the literature containing the new name, however, will appear the sub-head, "Founded by Robert L. Cumnock." Dr. Cumnock organized the school in 1878. In speaking of the change, which interests more than 1,500 alumni of "Old Oratory," Director Ralph Dennis said:

"Our reason for the word 'speech' lies in the constantly enlarging work of the school. We plan to cover thoroughly the constructive side of speech, debate, persuasion, the rhetoric of oratory, story-telling, its history, literature and art; play production, with a history of the drama, the stage, the famous actors, with a study of the problems of light and color; speech defects and normal methods for all who plan to teach."

MISS ELIZABETH NOURSE GIVEN LAETARE MEDAL

Notre Dame, Ind., March 5.—The Laetare Medal, bestowed annually since 1883 by Notre Dame university upon the lay Catholic most distinguished for furthering the interests of morality, education and citizenship, has been awarded today to Miss Elizabeth Nourse, native of Cincinnati and considered the first woman painter of America.

Miss Nourse was a student of the School of Design in Cincinnati until 1889 when she began the study of art in Paris where she still resides. She was the first American woman to become a member of the Societé Nationalé de Beaux Arts de Paris, has been a close friend to Duran, Colin, Casin and other artists, and has had her work accepted for exhibition and usually bought at the Salon every year since 1890.

POOR OLD PHILLY! 300 NOW CLAIM SLICE OF HEART

'Heirs to $800,000,000' Bob Up All Over U. S.

What with 300 persons laying siege to her heart and a suit for possession impending, Philadelphia—poor Quaker city—must be suffering an attack of angina pectoris.

THE TRIBUNE last Friday detailed the claim of the Rev. George Edgar Sharp of 722 Foster avenue, Evanston, to a slice off the "heart of Philadelphia." Dr. Sharp says he is an heir of Col. Jacob Baker, staff officer of Gen. George Washington, who was deeded a large section of land by the latter for bravery in action. This land, according to Dr. Sharp, comprises the center of the city of Philadelphia, is now worth $800,000,000, and was deeded for ninety-nine years to that city by the colonel.

Other Claimants Bob Up.

Since the publication of Dr. Sharp's story other claimants have bobbed up all over the country. Among these are Mrs. L. J. Gray, and her son, H E. Parker, who have offices at 154 West Lake street.

"My mother's name was Baker," said Mrs. Gray yesterday. "I'm a descendant of Col. Baker. My mother started to work on this claim ten years ago, when she saw an account of the colonel's deed in the Buffalo, N. Y., papers."

"Have you any idea where the original deed is now?" she was asked. She looked apprehensively around. Finally she whispered:

"You mustn't tell, but I understand it is in the hands of Mr. Wanamaker—you know, his big department store stands on the center of this real estate. I—I can't prove this, you know, and I don't know how true it is, but that's what I've been told."

But It's All Right Now.

"Yes," chimed in young Mr. Parker, "and we've heard Wanamaker would fight the claim to the last ditch. O, we've got some records, but we're not going to expose them. One lawyer hired to look into this disappeared. I heard later he was living in luxury in Europe. Yes, we've got to watch ourselves."

"But this time it'll be different," said Mrs. Gray.

"O, sure," Mr. Parker asserted. "We've picked Mr. Sharp to go to Washington and get the records. There are about 300 heirs and we're all going to get together. There'll be money behind it this time. I was out to see Mr. Sharp and he impressed me as all right. And he's a minister."

So it looks as though Philadelphia will have to pay the ransom or lose its heart.

MILK DEALERS GET MOST SPACE AT EXHIBITION

A check for $6,787.50 was handed to Henry J. Kramer, business manager of the Pageant of Progress exposition, yesterday by F. H. Kullman, vice president of the Bowman Dairy company, reserving for the milk distributors of Chicago the largest exhibition space taken so far by any one industry.

The milk men will fill twenty-eight spaces at the exposition which will be held on the municipal pier July 30 to Aug. 14, with working exhibits designed to educate the public to the great strides in the milk industry.

JILTED GIRL SCORNS $6,500 CUNEO BALM; PLANS NEW BATTLE

Unwilling to accept $6,500 from Americo F. Cuneo as heart balm for his failure to keep a promise of marriage, Miss Margaret C. Lavezzorio prepared to start a new court battle. Several weeks ago a jury in Judge Brentano's court found Cuneo guilty of breach of promise and awarded Miss Lavezzorio, who lives at 3769 Indiana avenue, damages of $30,000.

MARGARET C. LAVEZZORIO.

Attorney John G. Campbell, counsel for Cuneo, made a motion for a new trial on the basis the damages were excessive. Judge Brentano offered to fix the amount at $6,500. Miss Lavezzorio refused. Wallace Streeter, her counsel, will ask that the new trial be set for immediate hearing.

RANDALL'S FIRST WIFE WINS SUIT AGAINST SECOND

A jury in Judge Hebel's court wrote finis yesterday to one chapter in Mrs. Hannah Lebold Randall's eleven year court fight to clear her name. She was awarded damages of $2,500 against Mrs. Mayme Hardy Randall, 625 Buckingham place, present wife of Louis E. Randall, millionaire manufacturer, who was found guilty of making slanderous remarks.

MRS. HANNAH RANDALL.
[Archibald Photo.]

During the last eleven years Randall's divorced wife has employed twenty-five lawyers to handle her case and the dockets of the Superior court have been packed with legal charges. A bill asking that Randall's divorce decree be set aside is still pending. The bill charges the divorce was based on fraud and the perjury of four witnesses.

The damage action found its basis in remarks alleged to have been made by the second Mrs. Randall several years ago, when the two women met on a public thoroughfare. Randall has an office at 23 North Franklin street. His divorced wife lives at 1107 Lawrence avenue.

Flivver Upsets Morale of Shoe Repairers' Union

The esprit de corps of the Union Shoe Repairers of Illinois was above reproach before a flivver was added to the properties of the society. The car became not only an issue in an election of officers, it appears, but occasioned the presence in court of Louis H. Marks, secretary. Marks was arrested on complaint of Lou Levinson, who charged larceny by bailee.

Judge Howard Hayes dismissed the case. Marks said the flivver was presented to President A. Hoffman of the union by a rubber heel manufacturing company and Hoffman gave it to him to use.

Marks has filed suit against the union, claiming $605 salary is due him.

NEGROES PLAN SOCIAL CENTER IN LAKE FOREST

Buy Site Within Block of Market Square.

Plans for the building of a Negro community house in the residential section of Lake Forest were disclosed yesterday when the Rev. H. E. Johnson, pastor of the Lake Forest African Methodist Episcopal church, acquired title to a tract of land at the southwest corner of Bank lane and Illinois road.

The site is just a block south of Market Square and within a block of the residences of Arthur T. Aldis, Charles F. Atkinson, and John T. McCutcheon, all of whom are absent from home. Many other residents of the vicinity are on winter jaunts in Florida, California, and other sunny spots.

May Build Church, Too.

"Our present plans," said the Rev. Mr. Johnson, who lives in Waukegan, "are to build a community house, but we may build a church also. The site, which is only 50x150 feet in area, may be added to later on. We intend to found an institution that will lift up the tone of the entire north shore.

"All of our church members who so desire will be given training for domestic service to make them more useful and efficient employés in north shore homes."

The plans for the community house have not as yet become generally known in the suburb, but a few of the residents were informed last night by real estate men.

Seaverns Frowns on Plan.

"I do not believe the plan is a good one," said George A. Seaverns Jr., whose home is not far from the site. "It would be better, I think, to build the community house in Waukegan, where Pastor Johnson resides, or in the colored district of Lake Forest."

The property was purchased from Smith Hayes, colored, who owns other property adjoining.

SUGAR HOLDING FIRM, BANKRUPT, BLAMES SLUMP

Boston, Mass., March 5.—The Continental Products corporation, a holding company for several large sugar concerns, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today. Liabilities were placed at $5,392,288 and assets at $704,837.

Counsel filing the petition said that a composition offer would be made to unsecured creditors, who would be given the opportunity of accepting 7½ per cent of their claims in a new holding company rather than the smaller settlement that probably would result if the present proceedings were carried through to adjudication in bankruptcy. The petition was filed by vote of the corporation, it was said.

The slump in the sugar market was said to be responsible for the condition.

16 TAXIS, FRIEND AND FOE, RACE THROUGH PARK

Rivalry between the chauffeurs of rival taxicab companies resulted in another spectacular outburst early yesterday morning. Fifteen cabs raced through Lincoln park while revolvers were fired.

Two drivers for each company, who lodge dcomplaints against each other at the Town Hall station following the mêlée, were arraigned in the Sheffield avenue court later in the day. The cases were continued until March 16.

CITY HALL ASKS $26,880,575 FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Lays Plans to Make 1921 a Record Breaker.

With several of the city bond issues exhausted and large nicks taken out of others by 1920 expenditures, the city administration has asked authority to make 1921 a record breaking year for disbursement of public improvement funds.

Awaiting the council finance committee's attention are departmental estimates for 1921 expenditures for bridges and the west side street improvements amounting to $26,880,575. Last year the city spent $2,607,896 on the Ogden avenue, South Water street, Ashland, Robey, and Western avenue improvements in experts' fees and other preliminaries. However, no dirt flew on the improvements.

The controller's report gives the resources of the bridge bond fund as $1,717,319, of which only $275,565 is in available cash, but the administration declares $11,675,575 is needed for new bridges and the completion of old ones. The request presages another bond issue for bridges to make up the difference.

Viaduct Will Cost $5,200,000.

To complete the Roosevelt road viaduct, the cost of which was originally estimated at less than $1,000,000, an appropriation of $3,450,000 is necessary, the city engineer's report says, with $791,000 due from railroads listed as an asset. The final cost of the improvement will be in the neighborhood of $5,200,000. The $1,750,000 bond issue for the job, voted in 1912, has been exhausted with the exception of $4,060.

The cost of bridge building has more than tripled since the 1911 and 1915 bridge programs were laid out, according to the figures. Only about one-third of the work contemplated has been done, although the $9,755,000 authorized by the voters in those years has dwindled to less than $300,000.

Nevertheless the administration recommends such expenditures as the following for bridge construction: La Salle street bridge, $1,300,000; Madison street, $1,277,000; Adams street, $1,500,000; Van Buren street, $1,500,000; completion of Roosevelt road bridge, $1,625,000; completion of Wells street bridge, $640,000. The total to complete bridges now under way is given as $3,606,505.

Other Funds Near Exhaustion.

Among other facts gleaned from the controller's report are:

Of the $1,200,000 authorized in 1912, 1914, and 1915 for bathing beaches, $359.61 remains.

Less than $400,000 remains of the three Michigan avenue improvement bond funds, totaling $8,800,000, and about $1,200,000 will be needed to complete the job.

The 1916 bond issue fund of $3,750,000 for street lighting now amounts to $10,200.

Of the $150,000 bond issue for comfort stations voted in 1917, $119,000 remains, which the administration asks be appropriated for 1921 uses.

Street Bonds Funds.

The 1920 expenditures from the $26,600,000 bond issue for west side street improvements, the balance in these funds exclusive of reserves for discounts on bonds unsold, and the "estimated needs" for 1921 as given in the request of the finance committee are:

Improvement	1920 Expenditure	Balance in Fund	Estimate for 1921.
Ogden av.	$ 456,235	$ 4,233,055	$ 4,752,000
South Water	430,560	2,901,542	3,346,000
Ashland av.	879,536	4,152,018	4,882,000
Western av.	464,096	1,758,766	1,225,000
Robey st.	377,469	7,546,320	1,000,000
Totals	$2,607,896	$20,591,701	$15,205,000

The table shows the first official admission that the bonds voted will not furnish enough money to pay the expense of the improvements. Some members of the finance committee believe if the work is done at present price and wage levels the bond money will be less than half enough for the big jobs.

ALDERMAN CLEARED OF CHARGE HE GAVE ROBBER REVOLVER

ALD. LEO J. KLEIN.

Ald. Leo J. Klein of the Twenty-second ward yesterday was absolved in Chief Justice Charles A. McDonald's Criminal court of the charge of furnishing a revolver to a confessed bandit.

Rudolph Hazucks, convicted of robbing Charles John of $35 last December, testified that Ald. Klein had given him his revolver.

Judge McDonald summoned Klein into court. "It's absolutely untrue," Klein said, and explanied that Hazucks had tried to blackmail him.

"I'll take it all back," said the defendant.

"Very well," concluded the judge, "you can take ten years to live on the robbery conviction."

Four Hour Day Urged to Lessen Unemployment

New York, March 5.—Pamphlets advocating a four hour working day were distributed at an unemployment conference held in the Rand School of Social Sciences here today and attended, it was announced afterward, by delegates from forty-three labor organizations. Representatives of local engineering societies were present to learn the details of a plan to link together the working man and technical expert. The conference was one of several, it was announced, to be held shortly in various cities and industrial centers.

WHERE DOES U. S. END AND CANADA BEGIN ON JUNKET?

Order Covers Home Cities, but Others Are on List.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

Mayor Thompson's traction commission has spent $194,914 of the $250,000 appropriated. Ald. McCormick has been attempting for two months to get an itemized statement of the expenditures submitted to he city council. He has had two orders and one ordinance passed requesting detailed information. The traction commission failed to respond, but it is understood that Controller Harding will make a report at the next council session March 11.

Rumor had it that the expense of the western junket was to be paid from the commission's appropriation. That is incorrect. The expense of the aldermen to Kansas City, Denver, Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver, St. Paul, and Minneapolis is to be paid directly from the traction companies' receipts. A total of $6,600 was drawn from the Chicago Railways company receipts and the same amount from the Chicago City Railway company deposits on Friday—a total of $13,200 for the junket.

Joker in the Order.

This expenditure is made under authority of an order passed by the city council on Feb. 25 authorizing "a tour of certain cities of the United States," wherein may arise a little joke on the aldermen. The "tour" on which they left Friday night contemplates more than three and a half days' traveling in and through cities which are not within the United States—but are in Canada.

The purpose of the "tour," in the language of the order authorizing it, is to "secure information to be used by the committee in considering the use to be made of said traction fund in purchasing and constructing street railways in the city of Chicago." This is the fund from which was drawn $13,200.

From this same fund came the appropriation of $250,000 for the mayor's traction commission. Of the $194,914 spent of it, $181,221 was spent last year and the other $13,693 was expended during the first two months of this calendar year.

Lawyers Get Their Bit.

Take the $181,221 first. Of this the outside legal services cost $92,762. Perhaps City Controller Harding will tell the city council how much of that was paid to Chester E. Cleveland at $150 a day, how much to Edward H. Wright, Charles E. Ward, and William F. Mulvihill at $100 a day each and how much to Charles S. Wharton, Louis J. Behan and William Goldstein, other lawyers, at $50 a day each.

Their employment was authorized May 3 of last year. Recently Mr. Mulvihill has quit the payroll to take another legal job on the sanitary district payroll and former Judge F. Barrett has taken Mulvihill's place, but Barrett's compensation was made $125 a day. That was authorized Feb. 4 last.

Engineers Profit, Too.

For engineering services last year the commission paid $67,788, for draftsmen $19,200, and for miscellaneous $151. These items total more than $160,000 out of the $181,221.

Of the difference one of the interesting items is for "railway transportation outside of the city, including Pullman," which totals $151. Then there is another item for exactly the same amount, exactly $151, for "traveling expenses other than transportation."

The office force of the commission is not large. Its salaries for the year totaled only $12,094—less than the aldermen have been given to spend in the next three weeks.

For the first two months of this year the outside legal services have cost $8,225, as against only $3,819 for engineering services and $216 for draftsman's services.

Again this year the commission demonstrates that traveling "expenses other than transportation" equal the cost of "railway transportation outside of the city, including Pullman." For the former an item of $38.05 has been paid and for the latter $38.57.

Brother Officers to Decide on "Rhine Horrors" Talk

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—The speech Lieut. Col. Alexander E. Anderson of the 165th infantry, the old 69th, made at the "Rhine horror" meeting at Madison Square garden last Monday will be considered at a meeting of officers of the 165th infantry Sunday evening at the Waldorf. "All such officers are requested to be present," the announcement said.

Anderson declared he never had witnessed any German atrocities during his war experience nor had he heard of any.

TENANTS SCORN 'FAIR RENT' PLAN; SEEK STATE AID

Albany Park Flatters to Be Organized.

Consigning to oblivion the "fair rent" schedule of the Chicago real estate board, officials of the Chicago Tenants' Protective league made plans yesterday for an intensified windup of their campaign to have the Kessinger bill passed.

Harry Goldstine, vice president and acting chief executive of the real estate board, said he believed the rent schedule has been well received by Chicagoans.

"Do you recommend to landlords that they prepare new leases, using the schedule prices in cases where tenants have been forced to sign at a higher figure on or before March 1?" he was asked.

"That is what we expect them to do," said Mr. Goldstine. "Yes, we really ought to do it. Of course, I don't know what they will do if they do not care to follow our wishes. That is a matter for them to decide."

Calls Schedule "Pish Posh."

Officials of the tenants' league continued to express disgust with the rent schedules.

"So they say the schedule was well received," commented A. E. Jessurun, secretary. "And they are still talking about it. Pish posh and rumble bumble, is my answer.

"Even if the schedule had some merits, the board has no way of enforcing it. Their membership comprises about 10 per cent of the property owners of Chicago. The other 90 per cent will do as they please. They haven't even the power to punish their own members if they refuse to obey its mandates."

To Invade Albany Park.

Plans for the invasion of the Albany Park, district, where rent gouging landlords are reported to be 'running wild," were considered. The territory involved is between North Spaulding, North Kimball, Montrose, and Lawrence avenues. Meetings in this district will probably be held late this week.

Meanwhile friends of Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, were hailing him as a model landlord. Mr. Faherty, who was the principal subdivider of Albany Park, said he has not raised the rents of a building he owns for fifteen years.

"Although I have lost money on the building, I will not raise the rents," he said. "I expect that prices will be reduced to such a point that I will make a reasonable return on my investment."

Nine tenants in the building at 3935-41 West Jackson boulevard organized last night. They sent letters to Luke W. Duffy of Indianapolis, the owner and a member of the Indiana assembly, and to M. J. Connery, agent, stating they will not submit to further rent increases, and they intend to remain in the apartments. In three years they have been raised from $37.50 to $60, and this year they have been asked to pay $85.

West Park Board's Old Job Chief Reinstated

W. W. Smith was yesterday reinstated to his former position as superintendent of employment of the West Chicago park board system, from which he was removed last August by the Lowden board. He was succeeded by George C. Wharton. Smith was reinstated under a writ of mandamus issued by Judge Morrill.

The American Red Cross has appropriated a second $500,000, making a million dollars in all, for the relief of the starving inhabitants in three of the five northern provinces of China that are being swept by famine, according to a statement just received from Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the American committee for the China famine fund. John Earl Baker, director of famine relief in China for the American Red Cross cabled, referring to this new appropriation:

"This will be used to extend present operations. Tremendous task ahead. Can handle it without actual debacle only if relief is received in time."

All agencies are working together and the Chinese authorities are helping all they are able.

INSTITUTE SETS A NEW RECORD IN ATTENDANCE

Attendance at the Art institute, the largest art school in the world, set new records last year, Controller C. A Hough announces. Pupils at the school from Jan. 1, 1920, to Jan. 1, 1921, numbered 4,267.

Public attendance at the institute continued to climb in 1920, reaching 1,136,174 persons. This was nearly 100,000 more than the previous year. Visitors on a recent Sunday totaled 15,800.

In membership the institute is first in the country, Mr. Hough reports. It has touched 12,600. The museum's income, he said, is between a quarter and a half million dollars, its endowment amounting to about $3,500,000.

The Ryerson library of the institute, devoted entirely to art, has acquired a total of 14,000 volumes, while the Burnham library, devoted to architecture, has 2,700. Attendance figures for both last year reached 64,000.

YOUTH STEALS TO AID SIRE OF 10; LANDIS MERCIFUL

Pastor with Pay of $900 Needs Boy's Help.

Another example of justice tempered with mercy was written on the records in Judge Landis' court yesterday.

Adolph Kalkbrenner, 19 years old, and a son of the Rev. Adolph Kalkbrenner, pastor of the German Evangelical church in Elmhurst, was called before the judge charged with stealing $15 from the mails.

Four envelopes, torn open and their contents spent, lay on the table.

"I stole," said the boy, "to help my parents."

"How's this," said Judge Landis, turning to the boy's father. "Do you need the help of the boy?"

"Yes, judge," said the Rev. Kalkbrenner, "I have ten children and I have to feed and clothe them on a salary of $900. My boy has had a good Christian bringing up. He has always been devoted to Christianity. I know that he would not have stolen except to help me support the children.

"I can't get along without him very well, judge. Adolph has always helped me a lot."

The judge thought a moment. Then he turned to Robert A. Milroy, assistant district attorney.

"What do you think about this," he asked.

"I do not think this is a case of criminal intent," he said. "I believe it is simply a case where a youth yielded to temptation."

Judge Landis sentenced the boy to serve seven weeks in the county jail at Woodstock.

CITY HALL QUITS PLAN TO REPEAL FIFTY WARD BILL

The effort to repeal the fifty ward bill to save the jobs of thirty-two aldermen who will be automatically retired under it in April, 1922, has been virtually abandoned by the city administration. City hall leaders have decided that it would be both "dangerous and foolish" to attempt to repeal a law which voters last November approved in a referendum by more than 100,000 majority.

"I am against repealing the law, but am not against amending it to provide for an aldermanic election in 1922," Speaker Dahlberg of the house of representatives and one of the original sponsors of the fifty ward plan, said yesterday.

In the opinion of the speaker and Acting Corporation Counsel James W. Breen, such an amendment would have to be submitted to the voters for ratification at the June judicial election.

LOOP DENTISTS' OFFICE HELD UP; 1 SHOT; LOOT $3

Surf Hotel Guests Get Burglar Chase Thrill.

A lone bandit walked into the second floor dental parlors conducted by Dr. F. A. Ross at 322 South State street last night, held up three employés and two patients, shot a colored orderly in the hand, and escaped with $3.

Fifteen minutes before the holdup Dr. Ross and his wife left the building with nearly $500.

"Pair of Gloves" His Ruse.

"I think I left a pair of gloves here," the robber said as he walked in. A moment later occupants of the office faced an army automatic.

"Where's all the money?" the robber asked Dr. D. E. Curry, assistant to Dr. Ross, who was just giving a receipt to Miss Mary McDonough, a patient.

"It's gone," Dr. Curry replied. Just then Shirley Marshall, 3303 Rhodes avenue, a Negro attendant, reached toward his vest pocket for his watch. The bandit fired once, the bullet striking Marshall in the hand. The robber then fled toward the rear of the building and ran down the fire escape.

Surprise Burglar in Home.

A burglar was surprised in the home of Charles A. Steele, general manager of the Page Leather Belting company, on the third floor of the apartment at 445 Surf street, last night. Mr. Steele, his wife and two children, had been out and returned early. As they entered a man with a revolver in hand faced them. Steele slammed the door and ran down the stairs to give an alarm.

Guests of the Surf hotel, just across the street, came out to aid in trapping the burglar, but their quarry quietly slipped out the back way and escaped. He got no loot, although he had several hundred dollars' worth of valuables packed up.

CITY TO COMPARE PRICES, PORTIONS, IN RESTAURANTS

Comparative tables of restaurant prices, showing the diner the exact amount of food he is getting for his money, will be issued daily beginning next week by the council committee on living costs. This was announced yesterday in a report sent by Russell J. Poole, secretary of the committee, to Ald. Max Adamowski, its chairman.

The price lists and the weights of food portions will be given for restaurants, drug stores, hotels, and cafeterias in all sections of the city, Mr. Poole said.

"These restaurants will not be handpicked," declared Robert S. Iles, counsel for the committee. "There will be no discrimination."

Keep Prices Up, Charge.

Provision costs have decreased 50 per cent on the average, according to Mr. Poole, and the wages of waiters, cooks, and other restaurant help have been reduced from 15 to 20 per cent.

"Yet with a few exceptions," he says, "restaurant prices have not been cut more than 15 or 20 per cent; in some instances increases of from 15 to 50 per cent have been put into effect and wartime portions have not been increased.

"We find a number of places formerly containing bars cannot realize that the liquor business has 'done gone and went,' and are adding to the consumers' cost of food in order to derive the same profit as they did when they sold intoxicants.

"Many places are charging 30 cents for a sandwich throughout the day and demanding 50 cents in the evening. Their argument is that the increase is to cover the cost of the music and entertainment, but at the same time they slap on a cover charge of 75 cents.

"Two patrons at noon may eat two sandwiches for 60 cents, but in the evening the sandwiches will cost them $2.50. Such restaurants should be licensed as theaters and made to pay fees according to seating capacity.

Soft Drinks Also Jump.

"We also find the prices of soft drinks have been raised from 500 to 1,000 per cent. A bottle of near-beer over the counter costs the consumer 20 cents and the same thing in these restaurants costs from 35 cents to $1, with the addition of the 75 cent cover charge."

The report to Ald. Adamowski asks that a meeting of the committee be called early this week for consideration of the first comparative price lists.

YOUTH'S SLAYER GETS OFF WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Mother of Victim Faints at Verdict.

A jury in Judge Dever's court, after eighteen hours' deliberation, yesterday returned a verdict of manslaughter against Henry S. Vanderburg, special policeman for the federal reserve bank. He was on trial for the slaying on Oct. 2 of Clarence Siebert, a student of the University of Illinois.

When the verdict was read the mother of the slain youth, Mrs. Frank Siebert of Riverside, collapsed. She was taken to Judge Dever's chambers, where she again fainted.

In finding the man guilty of manslaughter, the jury recommended clemency. The defendant will not be taken before Judge Dever for sentence until March 19. At that time it is expected a motion for a new trial will be heard.

Siebert was shot in front of the Harris Trust and Savings bank. At the time he was accompanied by Norman Bradbury. Vanderburg, who was off duty, is said to have approached the two and said to Bradbury, who had a roll of music under his arm, "What-'ja tryin' to do—sell music on the streets?" He then shot him without Bradbury also testified that the special policeman was under the influence of "moonshine whisky." Lieut. John Norton and other policemen corroborated Bradbury.

Vanderburg declared that he thought the two boys were going to rob the bank.

DOES IT FIT?

Serve as you go—is a pretty good slogan.

Money—wages—profit—are not all.

The highest form of salesmanship is nothing but service.

Never make it easy for your concern to get along without you.

After all—money—wealth is not the real prize of life, it is only a trophy, a symbol. It may carry with it no satisfaction. Indeed, it does not carry with it genuine, lasting satisfaction unless it has been won and used fairly, honestly and honorably.

Don't fool yourself that So-and-So has everything he wants. If his advance, or what appears like success, has not been fairly won, do you imagine that he doesn't know how you and other people regard him? Do not think for a moment that he enjoys being looked at askance, or that he wouldn't exchange most of his advance or gains to stand high with you and other people—and to stand high with himself.

After all, one has to give full, fair value in labor, service or goods, or he won't last. Such natural laws are inexorable.

JAKE L. HAMON'S LIFE DIZZY; HIS DEATH SORDID

Clara Smith on Trial as Slayer Thursday.

This story gives details of the lives of the principals concerned in the killing of Jake L. Hamon, millionaire Oklahoma Republican national committeeman. The writer, Bert Love, was formerly editor of the Daily Ardmoreite, Ardmore, Okla., and is familiar with the background of the case, which has attracted nation-wide attention. The trial of Clara Hamon, who is charged with the killing, opens in Ardmore next Thursday.

BY BERT LOVE.

Ardmore, Okla., March 5.—[Special.]—At Wilson, a straggling town in the oil district west of Ardmore, where Clara Smith Hamon is living with her sister while awaiting trial, I found her apparently confident of her acquittal and eager for the trial to proceed without postponement. She is a young woman of 28, fairly good looking, not a beauty. She uses excellent language and gives the impression of being moderately well educated.

So much for Clara at the present. More of her later. Now, about the man she is accused of having killed. The man with whom, it is said, she lived for years. The man who, it is further said, told her in sober earnestness that he would yet be president and "she would be in the White House."

First Home in Lawton.

Jake Hamon was born and reared in Kansas. His mature life, his active career, belong to the southern part of this old Indian country and new commonwealth. Two places of residence, Lawton first, then Ardmore, were his. For a dozen years he was identified with Lawton, a pioneer town far to the west of Ardmore. For some ten years Ardmore, an old Indian territory town, capital of the Chickasaw nation, was his headquarters. In and from this latter town he operated in finance and in politics.

Hamon became the first city attorney of Lawton and served as territorial chairman of his party. A young graduate of the Kansas State university's law school, he came to Lawton poor and for years remained poor.

Oil Drew Him to Ardmore.

About ten years ago southern Oklahoma awoke suddenly to a gorgeous sunrise of promise—a huge oil painting, so to speak.

The Healdton oil field, thirty miles west of Ardmore, was the central attraction. Ardmore became the kerosene capital of southern Oklahoma. Healdton, Ringling, "Ragtown," and the other oil producing settlements were too close to the oily capital to permit of much refining as to the human element. A new oil town is just about the toughest settlement one may find in America today; and Ardmore, already notorious as a gunman community, partook most considerably of the toughness reflected from the neighboring oil fields.

Clara Came Along.

It was into this community that Jake Hamon came over from Lawton. With him came a young girl of about 18—Clara B. Smith, who had been a bookkeeper in a Lawton store when the future Republican national committeeman, the to-be Napoleonic financier and politician with an ultimate eye upon the White House, first knew her.

He did not bring his family, so far as I have been able to learn, since I am told that Mrs. Jake Hamon and the two children never came to live in Ardmore.

Jake Hamon built railroads in Oklahoma and in Texas, but he never built a home in Ardmore. For more than eight years he occupied a modest room at the front of the second floor of a second class hotel, the Randol. In that room, according to the state's allegation, he was shot by Clara Smith, the girl he brought over from Lawton, on the evening of Sunday, Nov. 21 last; and hardly two blocks away, the Hardy sanitarium, whither he walked after the shooting, he died on the morning of Nov. 26.

All in City Blocks.

Just back of Hamon's room in the hotel, with a connecting door between, is the room occupied intermittently for about eight years by Clara Smith.

Across Main street from the Randol hotel, in the Von Weise building, are the offices where Hamon conducted his various oil enterprises.

Just to the rear of the Randol hotel, facing the next street, is Convention hall, where his body lay in state.

Thus, within the space of three city blocks, were enacted the closing scenes of the tragedy.

MRS. HAMON TO TESTIFY.

Ardmore, Okla., March 5.—A list of fifty-two witnesses who will appear for the state in the trial here March 10 of Mrs. Clara Smith Hamon, charged with the murder of Jake L. Hamon, was made public today. The list gives the first official information that Mrs. Jake L. Hamon will appear as a witness for the prosecution.

Included in the list are the following:

John D. Appleby, Oklahoma City, secretary of the Republican state central committee; Ed Dyche, Mr. Hamon's manager in his campaign for the national committeemanship; James A. Harris, Wagoner, Okla., Mr. Hamon's successor as committeeman; Frank Ketch, Ardmore, administrator of the Hamon estate; Drs. Walter Hardy, and A. G. Cowles, Ardmore, who attended Mr. Hamon after the shooting; E. W. Sallis, taxicab driver who is alleged to have driven Mrs. Clara Smith from Dallas to Cisco, Tex., on her flight to the Mexican border, and Mrs. Jake L. Hamon.

COUNTESS SAYS HOOVER WILL SEE GERMANY IS FED

COUNTESS WILAMOWITZ MOELLENDORFF.
[Photo: Moffett.]

Countess Wilamowitz Mallendorff, whose husband died in service during the world war, addressed the American Unity Club of Chicago at luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Morrison.

"I am glad Herber Hoover has been appointed secretary of commerce," she said. "Mr. Hoover knows more about the world food condition than any other man. He will probably see that Germany gets foodstuffs. What they need most is raw material, particularly wool and cotton. Soap is also badly needed. At present it is impossible even to patch clothing. For that reason, paper clothes, rugs, carpets and even shoes are being manufactured in large quantities."

During her stay in Chicago, the countess is living at the Blackstone hotel.

PUBLIC HEALTH INSTITUTE GETS A 'CLEAN BILL'

Reporter Finds It Full of Quack Methods.

Given a "clean bill of health" by the Public Health institute, the reporter herewith returns the compliment.

There was a report extant last week that the institution was a charlatan—a sort of "quack" institution. THE TRIBUNE reporter found these rumors false so far as his experience goes.

It should be stated that the Public Health institute is an institution for the treatment of genito-urinary infections. It aims toward the eradication of so-called social diseases. Its offices are on the fourth floor of the Reliance building, State and Washington streets, where it has been established since the war by Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz, a former army physician, who specialized in the service in the treatment of the ailments he is now seeking to eradicate.

Prominent Men Directors.

The institute has been established for about a year and has on its list of directors the names of Gen. James A. Ryan, Harold F. McCormick, A. A. Sprague, the Rev. Myron E. Adams, Samuel Insull, H. M. Byllesby, A. A. Carpenter, T. R. Gowenlock, and Nathan W. MacChesney — names well known to the city. It has been advertising in THE TRIBUNE and other Chicago daily newspapers.

In spite of its directorate, THE TRIBUNE was persuaded a week ago to investigate the institute. Reports came in that the institute was fraudulent and dishonest in its diagnoses, that once in its hands a patient would be given "treatment" whether it was needful or not, that it charged exorbitant prices, and that it had fallen into all the evil ways of the old line medical quacks, whom THE TRIBUNE has had a large share in driving from the city.

Ordered to Investigate.

A reporter was assigned to investigate these charges—the same reporter who "covered" THE TRIBUNE's most recent crusade against the medical charlatans, and who succeeded in the course of it in getting the licenses of a number of these crooked doctors revoked by the state. He was told to work in the same way on the institute as he had on the medical fakers of the past. This he did, and this is his report.

The report would have been printed if the institute had been found "wrong." It is fair, then, to print this "good" report.

The Reporter's Statement.

"I went to the Public Health institute after being examined and pronounced in perfect health by Dr. V. G. Lespinasse of the Chicago Medical society," the reporter states. "As I went in I was handed a card to fill out with my name, address, occupation, and asked to state whether I was married or single. I gave the name George Tessman, a west side address, and stated that I was single. Then I asked to see the 'head doctor.'

"Dr. Berkowitz came out into the reception room to see me. He asked me what was the matter.

"'Well, I don't exactly know, doctor,' I said, using the same line of talk at which the old line quacks jumped with such avidity. 'I don't sleep well, I have pains in the back——' and I mentioned other complications, all fanciful.

"'Did you ever have gonorrhea?' he asked.

"I told him I didn't think so, and murmured something more about 'not feeling just right.' He paid no attention to this, but looked my shabby clothes over. Then he put his hand on my shoulder and said in a kindly tone:

"'Well, son, I can't tell whether there is anything wrong or not unless I examine you. This will cost you $3. If there is anything wrong with you, I can tell it by the examination. If not, I can tell that, too. If you think you need treatment, better be examined; if not, go home and forget about it.'

Examination is Thorough.

"I was examined. It was the most careful and complete examination of that nature I have ever passed through, and in my role of investigator I have been examined a plenty. While the examination was in progress I noted that all the instrumnets were carefully put into sterilizing apparatus. I was handled with the utmost care and consideration. When the doctor extracted the blood to be tested from my arm, I pretended to be frightened. Blood is extracted by piercing a vein with a fine needle, which is hollow so that it allows a great drop of blood to come forth at each heart throb. After he had inserted the needle in my arm, Dr. Berkowitz smiled at me:

"'You were scared, weren't you?" he said. "Well, you see, it wasn't so bad after all.'

As a matter of fact, it is not painful. I knew this beforehand, for I have been through it several times.

"My examination completed, I was told that 'so far we have discovered nothing wrong with you.' They told me to come back Saturday (March 5) for a report on the blood tests. This I did, and then Dr. Berkowitz told me that 'there is nothing the matter with you—nothing we can treat you for; go home and forget it; you're all right.' He gave me a copy of the report on the blood tests and bade me good luck.

"The treatment I received all the way through at the Public Health institute stands in great contrast with the invariable treatment I received by a dozen or more of the old line quack doctors during THE TRIBUNE's campaign of a year or so ago against the charlatans. Those fellows told me that I was suffering variously from everything from the dread syphilis down to neurasthenia. Every one of them held before me the specter of the insane asylum, destruction and death from 'lost manhood.' For treatment, which every one, of course, said I needed, they made charges ranging from $65 to $200, according to the amount of money they thought I had.

"The Public Health institute made no attempt whatever to get me to take treatment. Its doctors made no talk of 'lost manhood' or other fancied diseases or ailments. I was told by several young men actually under treatment there (whom I casually struck up a conversation with) that the institute is 'all right,' and that they charge $1 a visit, and do not press their patients for money."

BEG YOUR PARDON

An article appearing in THE TRIBUNE of March 3 stated that Dean Roy C. Flickinger of the college of liberal arts of the Northwestern university had danced the toddle step with a co-ed and had subsequently indorsed the form of dance for future university dances. The incident related is entirely without foundation in fact and the ban against the toddle has not been lifted, Dean Flickinger asserts.

THE TRIBUNE on March 4 stated, in connection with an article about civic activities of the Highland Park Women's club, that Mrs. O. Laurence Oleson was president of the club. Mrs. Clarence Thayer is the president.

Hamon Left Quarter of Million in New York

New York, Mach 5.—[Special.]—Jacob L. Hamon left here $254,450 in cash on deposit with the National City bank and also a $1,500,000 debt due the bank on March 3, upon which loan he pledged 500 shares of Rockland Oil company and 1,200 shares of Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth Railway company, it was disclosed in the surrogate's court today through an order signed by Surrogate Cohalan exempting the New York property from inheritance taxation.

War Record Fails to Aid Driver in Speed Court

As a sergeant in the 108th engineers William R. Ridel of 6641 South Halsted street won commendation on more than one occasion in France. But his record did not help him when he was arraigned yesterday before Judge George B. Holmes on a charge of driving the car of his employer, Dr. W. J. Hurley of 6556 South Halsted street, "over the top" of a curbing while intoxicated. He was fined $100 and placed on probation.

SPENCER FINDS WAR COST ALLIES 140 BILLIONS

China Spent More than Japan, Report Shows.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—The total gross military cost, civilian losses and damages, loans and credits, estimated pension and insurance costs, charged against the allied and associated nations in the world war was approximately $177,402,269,225, while the total final loss of these nations, after credit indemnities are deducted, will be $139,702,269,225.

These estimates are included in a report filed with the senate today by Senator Spencer of Missouri, who explained that the statement and accompanying tables were for the information of the senate.

Jap War Expense Small.

Ninety-five per cent of all the money expended by the United States was for items not included in the indemnity provisions of the treaty of Versailles.

Despite the fact that cost of Japanese participation in the war was only one-tenth of 1 per cent of the cost of American participation, Japan, it is pointed out, received not only Shantung, but also the former German insular possessions in the Pacific, as well as all of the former German owned Pacific cables.

U. S. Loss $41,873,948,225.

The first table which gives by nations the great cost, the indemnity credits, and the final losses sustained is as follows:

Nation.	Gross cost.	Final loss.
U. S.	$44,173,948,225	$41,873,948,225
Gt. Brit.	51,052,634,000	41,202,634,000
France	54,272,915,000	38,272,915,000
Italy	18,680,847,000	15,180,847,000
Belgium	8,174,731,000	2,474,731,000
China	565,376,000	465,376,000
Japan	481,018,000	231,818,000
Total	$177,402,269,225	$139,702,269,225

Where U. S. Money Went.

The following tables show the amounts paid out by the United States:

Military cost as per Secretary Houston	$24,010,000,000
Extra cost, government functions	4,500,000,000
Civilian damages, shipping loss, pensions	2,300,000,000
Red Cross contributions	978,512,225
Other relief constributions	490,000,000
Congressional European relief	100,000,000
Grain corporation credits	60,375,000
War department credits	50,000,000
Shipping board credit	3,580,000
Credit by American nations to European nations	1,921,481,000
Government loans to European nations	9,760,000,000
Total	$44,173,948,225

It is explained that the United States has received an amount of German shipping as yet unknown. But it is expected that the amount, together with other receipts, will reach the sum of $2,300,000,000, which is the amount of civilian loss, pensions, and the like.

French Lose on Loans.

On the basis that all loans and extended credits as between nations are paid with interest, the following nations would charge off the following losses:

United States	29,788,512,225

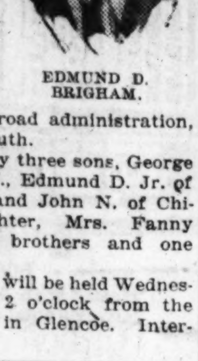
E. D. BRIGHAM, RAIL OFFICIAL, DIES AT UNION LEAGUE CLUB



EDMUND D. BRIGHAM.

Edmund D. Brigham, assistant freight traffic manager for the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, died suddenly at the Union League club yesterday after an attack of heart trouble. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Brigham entered the service of the Northwestern forty-eight years ago as a telegraph operator and came to Chicago thirty-nine years ago. During the war he was a district manager of the United States railroad administration, with offices in Duluth.

He is survived by three sons, George S. of Buffalo, N. Y., Edmund D. Jr. of Coffeyville, Kas., and John N. of Chicago; one daughter, Mrs. Fanny Brown, and two brothers and one sister.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Episcopal church in Glencoe. Interment in Rosehill.

2 BOYS STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE BOTH MAY DIE

Norman Swanson, 8 years old, 733 North Dearborn street, was taking his 5 year old brother, Raymond, to the Ogden school yesterday when both were struck by an automobile at Chicago avenue and State street. Neither is expected to live. Lee F. Smith, 1330 East Forty-seventh street, owner and driver of the machine, was held after he had taken the boys to the Passavant hospital.

An odd accident may prove fatal to James Kane, 1126 Elgin avenue, Oak Park, a flagman at the elevated tracks and Richland avenue, Oak Park. Police say he gave a signal to Jensk Doe, 2117 Bissel street, to cross the tracks, then saw a train coming, and tried to stop the automobile. It was too late and the car struck him, hurling him against the train. His legs and arms were broken and his skull fractured.

Edward Link, 6 years old, 3057 Bonfield avenue, injured by an automobile Feb. 27, died yesterday at the German Deaconess hospital.

GENEROUS SPEED CASH TO MOTHER TO BURY BABY

Contributions were received by THE TRIBUNE yesterday to bury the baby boy who died Friday night at Michael Reese hospital. His penniless mother is still ill at the home of a switchman and his wife on the south side. She learned of the baby's death yesterday and was inconsolable. No word has been received from the Chicagoan who hurriedly departed for Omaha when the girl's condition became serious. The contributions:

FORMER SENATOR HENDERSON SHOT BY INSANE FOE

Attack Result of a Land Deal 25 Years Ago.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

CHARLES B. HENDERSON.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Former Senator Charles B. Henderson of Nevada, who retired from office yesterday, was shot through the right forearm while in his office at the senate office building today by Charles August Grock of Reno, Nev.

The shooting was the result of an old grievance held by Grock against the senator resulting from a land deal in Nevada in 1896. Since that time Grock had been an inmate of an insane asylum in Nevada.

Senator Henderson probably saved his life by his quick action in throwing up his right arm when Grock pulled a gun on him and fired one shot. Immediately Senator Henderson stepped into his inner office and slammed the door in Grock's face.

Henderson Gets First Aid.

Senator Henderson was given first aid treatment by Senator Ball of Delaware, a physician, in Senator Ball's office.

In the room with Senator Henderson at the time of the shooting were three young women employed in his office. They ran screaming into the hall, calling for help. George B. Messer, clerk to Senator Broussard of Louisiana, whose office is immediately opposite Senator Henderson's, heard the screams and ran into the hall. One of the young women told him that Senator Henderson had been shot.

Gives Up His Revolver.

Mr. Messer went into Senator Henderson's office.

"The man who had done the shooting was standing in the middle of the room holding his revolver in his hand," said Mr. Messer. "I told him to drop it. Very accommodatingly he laid it on a box. I put it in my pocket and led him downstairs to the capitol police."

Senator Henderson took the whole affair smilingly.

"The man's insane," he said. "He has had a fancied grievance of long standing. He was in an insane asylum out in Nevada. They let him out too soon, that's all."

Age Wins Freedom for Man Accused by Girl of 13

It took all night for a jury in Judge Holdom's court to determine whether John Brown, 79 years old, of 6015 South Halsted street, was guilty of contributing to the delinquency of Ruth Deel, 13 years old, of 6017 South Halsted street. Brown was found guilty, was given a year in the bridewell and a fine of $200, but the jury recommended that he be placed on probation for the duration of his sentence because of his advanced age.

BUILDERS

Kewanee Boiler Company,
Washington & Market Sts.,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:

We take the opportunity at this time of expressing to you the satisfaction we have experienced in the continual use, over a period of years, of Kewanee Fire Box Boilers.

During recent years the most representative and larger buildings containing your boilers are:

Howard Theatre
Portage Park Theatre
Jackson Shore Apartments
Parkway Hotel
Parkway Annex
Webster Hotel

They have been installed in these buildings and have been successfully operated under very severe conditions.

Experience in the operation of the above buildings equipped with Kewanee Boilers has conclusively shown that there has been a great saving in coal effected, which is an important item at the present time in view of fuel costs.

Your boilers are dependable at all times - the up-keep is very low and they can be successfully and economically operated by inexperienced men.

On all future building operations carried on by us we will endeavor, without question, to install your boilers, as we believe they are one of the very essential and important parts of a successful building.

Yours very truly.

ILLINI RUNNERS CAPTURE 2 AND 4 MILE RELAYS

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Urbana, Ill., March 5.—[Special.]—Featured by the smashing of four carnival records and tying of two others, Illinois tonight carried off the honors in the fourth set of indoor relay games conducted here by the Orange and Blue institution by winning two of the major relay races. Coach Gill's performers also did great work in the individual events.

Brutus Hamilton of Missouri, one of the best athletes in the country, duplicated his victory of last year by winning the all-around title of the carnival. The Missourian scored 5,230 points against 5,078 for Osborne of Illinois. Five men started in the event and all stood the test.

The first record to be tied was the two mile university relay. Illinois took the event handily and equaled the mark of 8:04 4-5 made by Chicago last year.

Ames Ties Medley Record.

Ames was the next team to break into fame. Coach Merriam's men won the medley event and tied the carnival record of 8:24, made by Georgetown last year.

Illinois then chopped the four mile relay mark to 18:35 4-5 by winning in a romp. The former mark was 18:40 3-5, and was made by Ames last year.

The doughty Oak Park High school quartet then lowered the one mile interscholastic relay carnival record by winning the event in 3:40. University High was the former record holder. The Chicagoans negotiated the distance in 3:43 4-5 in 1918.

The successful meet was brought to a close by the victory of Penn in the one mile university relay. Capt. Eby and his teammates were not content to win by eight yards, but they established a new record of 3:29. The old mark was 3:29 3-5, made by Chicago in 1917.

Over 5,000 fans saw the event and the large band of the University of Illinois furnished music during the intervals.

Illini Win Two Mile Race.

In a great race, during which only a few yards separated the two leading teams, Illinois, with Yates as anchor man, beat Michigan by four yards in the two mile university relay. Illinois went into the lead on the first relay, but Michigan refused to be shaken off and Burkholder crossed the line four yards behind the Illinois runner. Ames, which finished third, was a disappointment. Illinois' time of 8:04 4-5 tied the relay carnival record.

Illinois scored its second relay victory by taking the four miles university event in handy fashion from Kansas Aggies and Wisconsin. Coach Gill's team went into the lead on the first relay, and never was in danger. Watson, an Olympic runner, ran a great race for Kansas Aggies on the last relay, but could not overcome the big lead which Wharton of Illinois was given.

Ames' Victory Spectacular.

Ames' well balanced team won the medley relay after a great battle with Purdue and Illinois. Graham, the last Ames runner, staved off defeat several times on the last relay of one mile when opponents tried to pass him. Furnas of Purdue placed his team second by great running in the final mile.

Not satisfied with tying marks, the athletes then started on a record breaking rampage. Walker of Michigan, Paige of Ames, and Alberts of Illinois tied in the high jump at 6 feet ¾ inch. This bettered the former mark of 5 feet 11¾ inches, held jointly by Fisher and Graham of Chicago and Webster of Illinois.

Hurdles Closely Fought.

Deering of Nebraska won the 75 yard dash in a blanket finish with Bradley of Kansas and Gallagher of Kansas Aggies. The six finalists were sent away to a perfect start, but Deering pulled away in the last five yards and won by six inches. The time of :08 was two-fifths seconds behind the carnival record.

Gallagher of Kansas Aggies, one of the best hurdlers in the Missouri Valley conference, won the 75 yard low sticks and defeated Desch of Notre Dame by a yard.

Nebraska scored its second victory of the carnival when Wright, winner of the high hurdles in last year's outdoor conference meet, led the field to the tape in his specialty. He was closely pressed by Anderson of Minnesota and Wynn of Notre Dame.

Wesbrook Takes Pole Vault.

Shaw of Notre Dame took the shot put with a heave of 43 feet 6 inches. He was the class of the field and

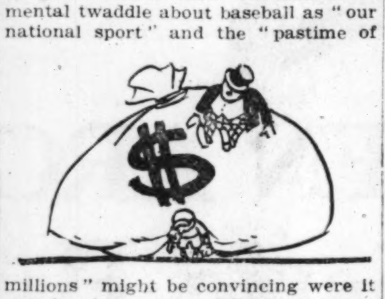
JUDGE LANDIS' PROBLEM.

IF Judge Landis continues in his dual rôle of federal judge and supreme arbiter of baseball, drawing salaries from both public and private sources, he must expect criticism. Whatever the motives, criticism will not be silenced whether or not congress at its next session censures him for his acts.

We do not think impeachment would be voted by congress, yet a majority of the house judiciary committee expressed the opinion an "impropriety" had been committed if the facts were as stated.

Personally, we had hoped this situation might not arise, because we felt baseball would be the loser if he resigned from the federal bench. Yet down in our heart we would resent the assumption of such duties by any federal judge in whose honesty of purpose we had not implicit confidence. As one of our associates expressed it, "Judge Landis is the exception which proves the rule."

Baseball needs a two fisted dictator. Judge Landis is that. All this sentimental twaddle about baseball as "our national sport" and the "pastime of millions" might be convincing were it not for its commercialized sponsors.



If Judge Landis, convinced in his own mind that he is following the right path, decides to stand the gaff, he is a game fellow—yes, gamer than most game fellows.

I long to be swinging my driver,
To be hearing it swish through the air,
With the musical click
As the ball gets the stick,
And sails straight and true down the fair.

I long to be swinging my brassie,
To be hitting the ball square and clean,
O, I want the sweet thrill
That you get when your pill
Flies straight like a bird toward the green.

I long to be swinging my mashie,
To be getting that little backspin,
O, the joy and the zest
As the ball comes to rest
A couple of feet from the pin.

I long to be handling my putter,
And the sound that I'm longing to hear
Is the clink of the tin
As the ball tumbles in,
O, pray that this day may be near!

MARKET LETTER.

WITH a Republican administration in power, we shall have, of course, higher wages, lower prices for commodities; reduced taxes, increased public revenues; curtailed appropriations, but a larger army and navy; greater exports to foreign countries, but no dumping of their products on our shores to pay for them.

All these factors should in time affect the financial marts, even if they are slow to respond because not realizing the importance of the approaching betterment.

Allowing, however, for a few disappointments in the above, the value of a firm and constructive governmental policy will be cumulative in its effects on the country at large, despite the many problems to be solved.

That's why we're a long range optimist. In the meantime, put up your umbrella when it rains, or at least wear a raincoat.

OPTIMISM RINGS IN MACKS' CAMP; PILOT ENTHUSED

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Lake Charles, La., March 5.—[Special.]—As one has been accustomed for the last six years to speak of the Philadelphia Athletics either in terms of pity or ridicule, it is surprising, if not startling, to come into Connie Mack's training camp and find a spirit of optimism has infected the place.

JAMES CRUSINBERRY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

It is not that Connie or that any of his athletes, from the strongest to the lowliest, are entertaining hopes of knocking everything in the American league flat and copping a pennant. It simply is that every one expects to get out of last place, which is more than any one could have counted on since the old days when Mack had his big champions and many pennants.

Connie himself, who is not given to boasting, perhaps is more optimistic than any of his boys. It's a bit early at this writing and scarcely a one of the players seems to have awakened to the fact that at last they might be able to beat some one out in the flag race. But Mr. Mack, always considered one of the wise men of baseball, realizes it and couldn't help but talk with a spark of enthusisam even in his customary guarded way.

Manager Mack Optimistic.

"You know, I don't like to make any predictions in the early spring," he ventured, "but I actually feel that at last we are almost on the verge of making a ball club. I still may need players for a couple of positions. That I will not know until I see the team under fire.

"This is the first time since 1914 I have come south for spring work with practically the same team I had on the field at the finish the previous year. Of course this team did not get anywhere last year, but I feel certain that I at last have some real big league ball players, or men who will be big leaguers when they finish their development.

"The boys are all, with one or two exceptions, very young. But I think they are made of the right stuff and will prove it. Perhaps I wouldn't feel so optimistic were it not for the present condition of the American league. I can't help but feel encouraged when I look over the teams we will be up against this year.

How Others Figure.

"On paper it looks as if Cleveland and New York will fight it out for the pennant. But one can't even feel sure of that. Cleveland seems to me to be a team on the decline. New York has a lot of temperamental stars. Chicago, which undoubtedly last year had a team far above either, is all shot to pieces.

"You know in the last six years there hasn't been one strong team developed. I mean by that not one that was built up from young material. We have been plugging along, trying out hosts of youngsters. Now I feel that we are just about ready to present a real team. Maybe it will take a couple of years yet to get it up anywhere in the race, but when it does get there it will be a team that should go along for a number of years."

Mack Keeps Hopes Secret.

Mack confided these things to me in the seclusion of a hotel room. One can't help supposing he wants to keep it a secret from his players, but after watching them at work on the field under the personal direction of Mr. Mack one feels inclined to think the players don't know what is in the heart of their boss.

At least there was no flash of spirit and enthusiasm among the players on the field. They went through their morning and afternoon rehearsals much after the fashion of pupils in the classroom. They do their work splendidly. The morale of the club is high. They have faith in Connie Mack. They are prompt on the field, labor quietly but industriously, observe the rules of training, and seem as orderly as a college squad with a faculty man present.

A Little "Pep" Needed.

If some one in the squad would just let out a yell or two during the daily drill, or if a couple of players would get into a red hot squabble over something on the ball field, an observer would feel more of the optimism secretly shown by Mack.

There is strength on the club. One can see it even if it isn't asserted. Just at present one can see real stuff in Catcher Cy Perkins, Third Baseman Joe Dugan, and Second Baseman Jimmy Dykes. There's no doubt about these men. That is enough of a nucleus for a good team.

The pitching staff, even in its youth,

LANDIS TO PROBE CHARGES BY ZIM; TALKS OF PERJURY

BY I. E. SANBORN.

"It may be a case of determining the preponderance of perjury," said Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis yesterday in discussing the latest baseball gambling scandal spilled in New York by Heine Zimmerman in an affidavit involving Kauff, Benton, and Toney of the Giants. "But I am going to tackle the job," the commissioner added.

"Already I have taken steps to investigate the charges outlined in the reports of the Zimmerman affidavit and I shall sift them to the bottom. It looks like a case in which one man will make a positive statement and the others will make equally positive denials, with small chance for corroborative evidence. It will have to be determined by ascertaining who is telling the truth. What sort of a man is it whose word would not command equal credence with that of Heine Zimmerman under the circumstances? Particularly when he affirmed he merely passed the word along to the other players, but received nothing himself from the gamblers. That is the weak spot in his affidavit."

Regarding the cases of the White Sox players who are expected to be put on trial this month under the indictments voted against them by the Cook county grand jury, Judge Landis said he did not plan to take any action whatever in advance of the court trials.

"Don't you think?" he said, "it would be an injustice to players who are facing trial on criminal charges for the baseball commissioner to take any action in the matter in the place where the jurors who are to try the cases will be chosen?"

Maroons Flash Into Own in Last Game; Wreck Illini Five

Indiana	6	4	.600	N'thw'ern	1	9	.100

THE DOPE

THE defeat of Illinois by Chicago last night means that no team in the conference will have a clear claim to the Big Ten basketball championship. By its victory ove Iowa, Purdue went into first place by half a game, and has now finished its schedule. Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan are tied for second place, each with one game to play. Illinois and Michigan meet tomorrow night at Urbana, and the winner is assured of a joint ownership with Purdue of the first honors. Wisconsin, if it wins from Ohio Tuesday night at Madison, will go into a triple tie for first place.

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

Playing the kind of basketball Maroon followers have been waiting for weeks to see, the University of Chicago five opened a derail in front of the rush of the University of Illinois quintet last night at Bartlett gym and when the wreckage had been cleared the Maroons had won, 29 to 26.

It was a terrific crash, but there was only one casualty. Chuck Carney, the great Illinois center, who has been out almost all season with a wrecked knee due to a football injury, tried to start with a leather and steel brace running from his ankle almost to his hip, but sustained a wrench early in the game and sank to the floor. He was revived, but could not continue.

Stars in Real Valedictory.

It was the final game for three Chicago stars, Capt. Herbert Crisler, Robert Birkhoff and Clarence Vollmer, and the trio of retiring Maroons played great basketball. Birkhoff staged what was perhaps his greatest game. The Illini chased him all over the floor and covered him tightly, but the midget stood up under rough handling and won the game for Chicago.

Birkhoff dropped five baskets, every one a sensational shot from long range, and laid half a dozen more miraculous tosses on the rim. In the first half he made seven free throws without a miss.

Maroons Never Headed.

Chicago jumped into an early lead, and was never headed. After ten minutes the Maroons led, 7 to 3, and a series of four baskets by Reitsch pulled Illinois up to an 11 to 11 tie, but the Maroons forged ahead, 19 to 12, at the half.

Reitsch was exhausted in the second half and was of no scoring value, but Walquist came to life with four of his trick one hand shots near the finish, once more drawing Coach Winter's team up close, but Chicago's defense tightened.

With additional seats arranged all records for Bartlett gym were broken. Five thousand fans packed around the floor, several hundred standing in the rain from 6 o'clock to get parking space for their feet on the sloping running track. Lineup:

Chicago [29].	B	F	P	T	Illinois [26].	B	F	P	T

Michigan, 36; Ohio, 22

Columbus, O., March 5.—[Special.]—Michigan avenged an early season defeat by winning with ease from Ohio State tonight, 36 to 22. The Wolverines took an 18 to 7 lead in the first half and numerous Ohio rallies in the last period failed to bring them within striking distance. Miller was the heavy scorer with six baskets, most of which were thrown from the middle of the floor. Lineup:

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

Where do you think the Dempsey-Carpentier bout for the heavyweight championship of the world should be held?

Where Asked.

Michigan boulevard and Grand avenue.

The Answers.

H. E. Flack, 34 East Oak street, printer—I suggest the bout be held at Benton harbor. I think that is the most logical location because of its nearness to Chicago and the center of population. Other places suggested are too far away.

Edward P. Anderson, 2 East Pearson street, bank clerk—I think Chicago's the place for the bout. Of course I realize that it is against the law for a prize fight to be held here. But Dempsey has many admirers here and Chicago is noted for its large number of fight fans.

James Groark, 1438 East Seventy-second place, student—I would rather have the fight held right here in Chicago. But as the law will not permit boxing matches, I think it should be held in New York. Europe would be all right—for those who have the money and time to go.

Roy Adams, 2653 North Clark street, typewriter repair man—I prefer to have the next fight held in Benton Harbor, Mich. It is a good railroad center and there are facilities for handling the crowd. Besides Benton Harbor is a place outsiders enjoy visiting.

Al Edwards, 41 East Chestnut street, typewriter repair man—I think it should be held in Benton Harbor because that town is near the center of the country and people from Frisco and New York would not have to go so far.

KID SKATERS OF CHICAGO SWEEP RIVALS OFF ICE

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Defeated, 58 to 29, New York tonight challenged Chicago's victorious schoolboy skaters to a contest in Chicago next year. The defi, issued by Mayor Hylan to Mayor Thompson of Chicago at the banquet given in the Hotel Commodore for the visitors, was promptly accepted.

MAYOR J. H. HYLAN [New York.] [Photo U. & U.]

It was a great victory today for the Chicago boys. In eight out of nine events they made a clean sweep, and the visitors would have taken the lone event they lost—the third—if it had not been for a mishap.

Two Mayors Spectators.

The two mayors sat in a balcony box at the Brooklyn Ice palace this afternoon during the skating contests. The palace was jammed with thousands of enthusiastic youngsters.

At the conclusion of the meet Mayor Hylan unstintingly praised the victors and gave words of encouragement to the lads who trailed in defeat. Mayor Hylan plans to head a team of twenty young skaters in a journey to Chicago next season in quest of revenge.

Inexperience played a prominent part in the downfall of the New Yorkers. Hardly a race went by in which New York's skaters did not crash to the ice, the result of overeagerness in rounding the turns or in misjudging their pace on the short stretch runs.

Emmert Falls in 440.

In the High school quarter mile—New York's one big inning, the victor was Samuel Rein, a Stuyvesant student, and he was followed by Milton Hamon of De Witt Clinton and Frederick Gruman, Brooklyn Vocational school. Leon Emmert, Senn H. S., was the first Chicago skater to finish, taking fourth.

In this event, the third race, Emmert was leading at the last turn when he took a spill and dumped another Chicagoan, Claude Brignall of Englewood. At the start of the race, Emmert set the pace and had a safe lead. Then came the spill.

The Chicagoans outclassed the local skaters in the other eight events, winning with comparative ease.

All Relays to Chicago.

All three relays, the final events, went to Chicago. In the half mile relay, elementary, the Chicago team was composed of Sears Bergren, Robert Fidler, Russell Gunderson, and Harry Weber. The time was :34.

Melvin Larson, John Sweet, O'Neill Farrell, and Howard Storch composed the winning Chicago junior mile relay.

The senior mile relay was a thriller. The team was composed of Ray Johnson, Claude Brignall, Philip Pfleger, and Leon Emmert. Until the last man New York led. Emmert gained ground quickly and went into the lead for Chicago on the last few laps. The time was 2:52.

BATTLE NO 2 WEDNESDAY

RICHIE MITCHELL.

ROCKY KANSAS.

THE fistic attraction for this week at Milwaukee brings together Ritchie Mitchell of the Cream City and Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, who battle on Wednesday. These lightweights met a couple of weeks ago at Buffalo when Kansas sprung one of the biggest upsets of the game by knocking out Mitchell in the first round. Mitchell always had ranked as a topnotch performer, while Kansas was considered a second rater. Ritchie's sudden defeat spurred him to seek a return match and this will be staged by the Cream City Athletic club in the Milwaukee Auditorium.

should be a factor in future college meets. Westbrook of Michigan took the pole vault by clearing the bar at 12 feet ¼ inch. After winning the event he did not attempt to break the the record of 12 feet 2½ inches, shared by Slaughter of Michigan and Frost of Kansas Aggies.

is perhaps the equal of anything in the league. Possibly it needs another year to develop. Hubert Scott Perry is the only veteran hurler. He's about the average.

Two young men, who didn't know much about league slabbing a year ago, are about to break to the front. I refer to Eddie Rommel and Rollie Naylor. Another, though less experienced, looks like a coming star. He is Bryan Harris,, a 6 foot 6 youth, with a world of stuff.

Bob Hasty, a stalwart young man who resembles Walter Johnson and heaves a ball after the style of Grover Alexander, is a splendid prospect.

Rommel Knuckle Ball Hurler.

Roy Moore, who came up last year from Texas, is a sturdy left hander, and Lyle Bigbee showed promise last year. Of all of these Rommel stands out as a wonderful prospect because of a knuckle ball that shadows anything ever shown in big league circles. The only trouble is in learning how to catch it. Cy Perkins describes it as the greatest ever, and something that no batter could hit except by accident.

Rommel had it last year, and doesn't remember of any one hitting it solidly. He struck out Babe Ruth with it, as well as a lot of other stars.

Mack's outfield is fairly strong with Clarence Walker in left, Frank Welch in right, and Frank Walker in center. All three have great driving power. Paul Johnson, a husky recruit; Whitey Witt, the veteran outfielder and infielder, and a youngster named Myatt from Texas are likely prospects for outfielder service.

Infield Mack's Problem.

The infield seems to be the problem. Dugan is assured of playing third and Mack says he's the best in the league now that Buck Weaver is gone. Dykes is as snappy a second baseman as has come up in recent years, but the shortstop and first base positions are still in doubt.

Clarence Galloway is slated for trial at short. He performed last year with indifferent success. He's just a kid and developing. Ivy Griffin is booked for first base, but last season didn't show up as a hitter. Mack thinks he will still come. If he doesn't there is a swatter with less fielding ability present in Frank Brazill.

JOY FOR GLEASON AS HE EYES KIDS ON WAY TO TEXAS

McFarland, Kas., March 5.—[Special.]—With all hands save one accounted for, the first batch of Kid Gleason's White Sox steamed through this city this afternoon, bound for Waxahachie, Tex., where they are scheduled to commence spring training Monday morning.

KID GLEASON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The lone absentee is Pitcher Roy Wilkinson, who failed to report. He is still sojourning on his broad acres near Rochester, N. Y., and playing a holdout rôle. Whether or not Wilkinson adjusts his differences with the management, Gleason will be well stocked with pitching talent for the coming grind.

"Fine Prospects."—Gleason.

"We've got some mighty fine looking prospects," said the Kid, as he trained his expert eye on the group of young hurlers riding with him to the Lone Star state. The boss is particularly anxious to get a line on Doug McWeeney and Dan Mulrenan, who came up from the American association. Both are strapping fellows, clean cut and intelligent.

Jack Tesar and Joe Kiefer are other lads who may play prominent roles for the Hose this season. Both are built for speed and have been up before. Red Faber, who is accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Faber, is a bit overweight, but says he will round into condition early.

Then there will be little Dick Kerr to assist in shouldering the slab responsibilities. He is expected to meet the party when it arrives there at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Others on Way to Camp.

Hodge and Jonnard, the Nashville battery, traveling direct from their homes in Dixie, are others whom the Kid expects to see in camp. Joe Berger, former infielder, who is manager of the Wichita club, joined the party last night at Rock Island and traveled as far as Wichita.

Gleason announced there would be two workouts daily, the first starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasting until noon, and the second from 2 until 4 in the afternoon. At Kansas City this morning the tourists encountered regular summer weather, and it grew hotter as they rolled southward.

Alex Teaches Cub Rooks

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., March 5.—[Special.]—Diamond drill for the Cubs here was completed today when Manager Johnny Evers sent his hopefuls through some morning practice. Then the uniforms were packed away and Doc Brady, the trainer, set sail with the trunks for Pasadena, where toil will be resumed next week.

Grover Cleveland Alexander set up a school for pitching instruction in the morning, with Percy Lee Jones and Virgil Cheeves as his pupils. He is giving tips on the foolers which has made him one of the greatest flingers in modern baseball. The lads are learning fast. The fact that Alex is working with them leads to the conclusion that Manager Evers is impressed with the prospects of these juveniles. Jones is a southpaw, while Cheeves is a right hander. Both had experience with the Cubs last fall, and both are graduates of the West Texas league.

The advance squad goes to Pasadena on tomorrow afternoon's boat, arriving early in the evening. The second squad, which is enroute from Chicago, is due there in the early afternoon. There is scarcely an ache or a pain among the athletes, although a few complain of sore feet.

MORAN TO FORGET REDS' ABSENTEES IN BUILDING TEAM

Cincinnati, O., March 5.—Advices from the Cisco, Tex., training camp of the Cincinnati Reds tell of the arrival there yesterday of Outfielder Dennis Williams, First Baseman Maynard Felix, and Pitcher Herb Brenton. This brought the total players on hand to nineteen, with twelve absentees.

"I am going to take a chance right off the reel," said Manager Moran. "If the absentees don't show up, I am going to start Fonsica at second base, Bohn at third, Crane at short, and Felix on first."

POCKET CUE EXPERTS CLASH FOR NATIONAL TITLE HERE THIS WEEK

BY JOE DAVIS.

We have with us this week J Howard Shoemaker of the New York Athletic club, who for seven years has reigned supreme as the class A pocket billiard champion of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. The tourney will be played at the Chicago Athletic association.

Starting tomorrow, he will defend his title against the attacks of five players, two of whom appeared before in the national classic, the other three having to make their initial bows.

Gus Gardner of New York, who finished second in last year's event at New York, is one of the veterans, and C. Earl Patterson of the Chicago A. A. is the other.

W. H. Leu of Rockford is not a stranger locally, as he won the championship of the Illinois Billiard association from a strong field here.

Harry Daw of Detroit is the class A amateur champion of that city, and, as the Wolverine metropolis is a strong billiard center, he is expected to display fine class.

W. J. Haworth of the Cleveland A. C., the Ohio champion, wired yesterday he could not play. His place will be filled by C. A. Vaughan of Chicago, who finished a close third in the Illinois championship.

Augie Unbeaten with Cue Race at the Halfway Mark

Augie Kieckhefer has smashed the consecutive game record of the Chicago Billiard league by winning thirteen straight contests in the fifth annual three cushion competition for the Blake cup.

JOE CAPRON.

The former world's champion has completed just half the schedule and may have a hard time keeping in front of those who are closely following him in the big field.

Joe Capron, veteran of the Leffingwell room, is in second position, and has captured eleven games in thirteen starts, a record outshone only by Kieckhefer's long and unbroken string. Charles Le Gros of the Casino is in third place, hanging on barely ahead of Leonard Kenney of Petersen's and Bert Tredick of McGarry's.

Leaders Meet This Week.

Though it seems a pity to bring Kieckhefer and Capron, respectively leader and runner-up, together so early in the struggle, the league schedule committee has carded both their games for this week.

Capron is severing his connection with the Leffingwell company and will hereafter be associated with Kieckhefer at the Recreation room. Joe, however, will play his remaining games as the Leffingwell representative.

Billiard League Standing

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Kieckhefer	13	0	Dougherty	5	8
Capron	11	2	Steffanson	6	9
Le Gros	10	4	Shea-Carlin	4	9
Kenney	9	4	Lundgren	4	9
Tredick	10	6	Jacobs	4	10
Engel-Singer	7	6	Harris	3	11
Walker	8	7	Moreau	2	11

Play Thursday and Friday.

They will clash at Leffingwell's Thursday evening and at the Recreation Friday, Kieckhefer playing 60 points to Capron's 52.

All the experts have swung into the second half of the schedule, ninety-six of the 182 games being out of the way. Nine contests are on this week's program, as follows:

Tuesday night—Lundgren vs. Carlin at Schueneman's; Moreau vs. Engel at Singer & Spokes'.

Wednesday night—Dougherty vs. Kenney at Petersen's; Harris vs. Le Gros at the Casino.

Thursday night—Walker vs. Tredick at McGarry's; Kieckhefer vs. Capron at Leffingwell's; Jacobs vs. Moreau at the Recreation.

Friday night—Capron vs. Kieckhefer at the Recreation; Le Gros vs. Lundgren at Lundgren & Sherwood's.

BUFFALO EXPERT ROLLS 299 GAME IN A. B. C. EVENT

Buffalo, N. Y., March 5.—Rolling a ball with but one finger hole, Joseph Gilligan, a Buffalo tenpin shooter, established a high single score record of 299 pins in the American Bowling congress tournament this afternoon, his high game following scores of 209 and 175, which gave him a total of 683 pins and first place in the individual event of the congress. He chalked up eleven successive strikes. Ed Hewer of Toronto, Ont., rolled into fifth place with 607 pins.

Gilligan's high score of 299 is the second bowled in an A. B. C. tournament, E. Davis of Milwaukee having accomplished this feat in the 1915 Peoria tournament. It is not an A. B. C. record, however, as William J. Knox of Philadelphia shot a 300 score in the 1913 tournament at Toledo, O.

Kalamazoo Pair on Top.

A new leader was also established in the two man event, F. Tifft and A. Green of Kalamazoo, Mich., taking first with 1,203, followed closely by eight other pairs, all breaking into the high ten. C. White and H. Galigher of Kalamazoo rolled into fifth place with 1,161.

Chicago Teams Roll.

The first of the Chicago teams took the alleys tonight in the five man event. The Wicks rolled 2,675 and the Queens failed to get anywhere near the top with 2,314.

SCHAEFER BEATS BELGIAN CHAMP IN 18-2 MATCH

Jake Schaefer of San Francisco defeated Edouard Horemans, Belgian billiard champion, in their 4,800 point 18-2 balk line match by winning the final block tonight, 400 to 118. Horemans' grand total was 4,481.

Schaefer, who set an American record by running 436 in the afternoon block, played steady billiards in the evening, averaging 100. Horemans held the lead from the start until today, when the westerner made 1,034 points in nine innings, counting the first inning of the night block as part of the unfinished last inning of the afternoon.

The grand averages were Schaefer, 47 53-101; Horemans, 44 81-100, both of which were announced as records for such a contest. Horemans averaged 39 1-3 in the evening game.

The former American record high run was 308, made by Willie Hoppe at New York in 1916. The world's record is 622, made by Hoppe in Paris in 1911.

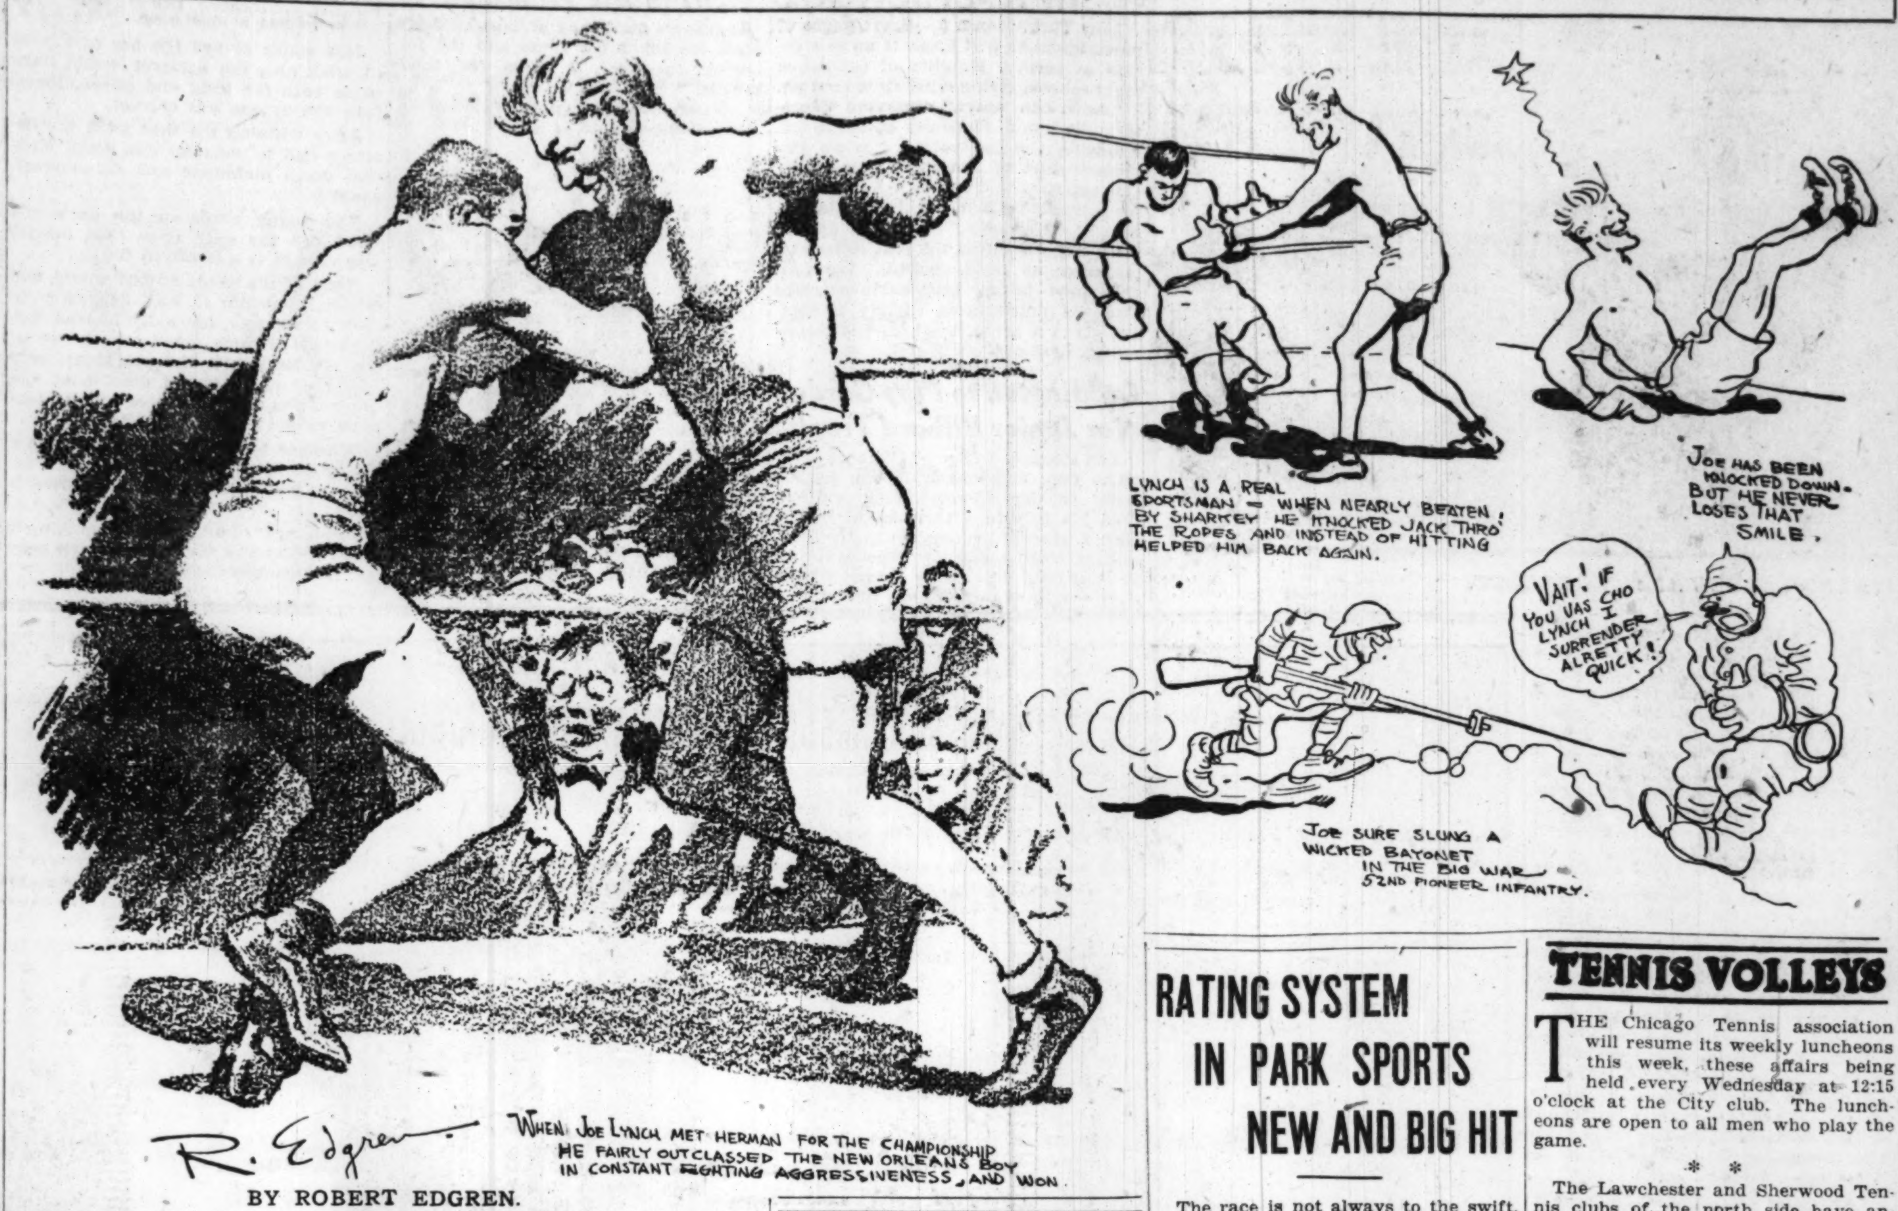
JOE LYNCH IS A FIGHTER WITH OR WITHOUT GLOVES



LYNCH IS A REAL SPORTSMAN — WHEN NEARLY BEATEN BY SHARKEY HE KNOCKED JACK THRO' THE ROPES, AND INSTEAD OF HITTING HELPED HIM BACK AGAIN.
JOE HAS BEEN KNOCKED DOWN - BUT HE NEVER LOSES THAT SMILE.
VAIT! IF YOU VAS CHO LYNCH I SURRENDER ALRETTY QUICK!
JOE SURE SLUNG A WICKED BAYONET IN THE BIG WAR 52ND PIONEER INFANTRY.
R. Edgren

WHEN JOE LYNCH MET HERMAN FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP HE FAIRLY OUTCLASSED THE NEW ORLEANS BOY IN CONSTANT FIGHTING AGGRESSIVENESS, AND WON.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

JOE LYNCH, world's bantamweight champion, is a regular fighting man and the only present titleholder who is a war veteran and who saw active service on European battlefields. Joe was in the 52d pioneer infantry, Col. Foster's regiment, with Bill Wellman and many other noted sportsmen. The 52d was a fighting regiment here and abroad, and Lynch had a busy time with the gloves as well as with the Huns.

Like nearly all of the real champions, Lynch fought his way up to the titles by degrees. There was no royal road to a championship and a fortune for him. When he whipped Peter Herman, the clever little fellow from New Orleans, he had already shown championship form in many hard ring battles, and the result of his fight for the title was no surprise to those who had followed his career.

Built for Boxing.

Joe is well built for boxing. He is fairly tall for a bantamweight, has broad, square shoulders, and is so symmetrically formed that there is no freakish point in his physical makeup. He has a good reach, is lean, sinewy, and strong, has plenty of speed, is naturally aggressive, yet a cool ring general, and has a good knowledge of effective hitting. Being knocked down only makes him fight harder, and he does his best when up against a hard opponent.

Joe's home is in West Forty-second street, New York, and it was in this fighting neighborhood that he got his first experience and knowledge of scrapping.

Is Making Fortune.

Like Benny Leonard, Joe got his start at Billy Gibson's old Fairmont A. C. in the Bronx. In his first appearance there he put on boxing gloves for the first time, as all his experience before that had been confined to boyish bare fist boxing on the streets and in vacant lots. He made a good showing, and as he won several bouts he was soon "in the money." When he got $125 for beating Billy Fitzsimmons it looked like a fortune to him. In the last six months Joe has earned more than $40,000 in the ring. He got $16,000 for his two fights with Jack Sharkey, $11,000 for boxing Abe Goldstein and Jabez White, and $7,500 for beating Pete Herman. These have been his big money battles.

Lynch is the kind of a fighter who is likely to retain the title for some time, not by avoiding his rivals, but by beating them one after another.

Brotners Also Boxers.

Joe has four brothers. None of the others have shown championship aspirations yet, but there's no telling when the Lynch family will begin to crowd the ring. Paddy Lynch, his father, doesn't object to boxing now that Joe has made such a success of it. You'll note that Joe comes by the "Lynch" honestly. He didn't have to adopt a good Irish fighting name. He had it already.

Unlike many champions, Joe Lynch didn't start as a knocker-out. Most of his early fights were no-decision affairs, and went the scheduled distance. He fought a lot of good ones, too. Among the lot he met in 1917, when he was little more than a novice, were Jack Sharkey, Kid Williams, Frankie Burns, Pete Herman, Willie Astie, Frankie Daley, Joe Leonard, Eddie O'Keefe, and Pal Moore.

In 1918 Lynch lost to Pal Moore, whom he had beaten the year before, in twelve rounds. Even a coming champion has an upset now and then. But less than three weeks afterward he fought the great Kid Williams in Philadelphia, and knocked the Kid out in four rounds.

This was Lynch's first bid for real fame. In a moment he was classed with Champion Pete Herman, who had outpointed Williams for the bantam title, and Johnny Ertle, who had been credited with winning over Williams on a foul.

Evens Up with Wilde.

Lynch lost a four round decision to Jimmy Wilde in London at the interallied tournament. It was generally said, even by English sportsmen, that the decision was wrong; but Lynch was too good a sportsman himself to make any comment at all. He evened the score with Wilde afterward in a longer bout.

After the war Joe began the spectacular rush that took him up to the championship. Tex Rickard matched him with Jack Sharkey, the indomitable little Italian. Jack knocked Joe down several times in early rounds, and it looked as if Lynch might be neatly polished off. But Joe came back stronger and full of aggression, outfought and outlasted Sharkey and at the end of fifteen rounds had gone so far into the lead that he easily earned a draw. When they were rematched, a couple of months later, the Garden was packed to the roof. This time Lynch forced the fighting from the start, hammered Sharkey all over the ring and in spite of furious resistance, finished him with a clean knockout in the fifteenth round.

Cops Title from Herman.

When Champion Pete Herman fought Lynch he had little idea of being defeated, for he was matched for a championship bout with Jimmy Wilde in England a couple of weeks later. Lynch offset Herman's skill by steadily attacking, and had so much the better of it that there was no questioning the decision that gave him the title.

Joe Thorough Sportsman.

Just one line more about Joe Lynch. He is a thorough sportsman. When Joe fought his hard ten round draw with Sharkey last September, Sharkey's plunges in the third round sent Joe partly through the ropes. As Joe tried to regain his balance the upper rope came across his eyes for a moment and held him helpless. Sharkey couldn't resist the temptation to let go a punch. It clipped Joe fairly on the point and dropped him to his knees for a five second count. Joe was dazed and it was lucky for him that the bell rang a few seconds later.

Earns Draw with Sharkey.

In the sixth round Lynch, who had been knocked down again, suddenly took the aggressive and hammered Sharkey across the ring into the ropes. This time Sharkey was tangled for an instant and defenseless. Instead of hitting, Lynch smilingly held out both open hands, pulled Sharkey back to his balance and clear of the ropes, let go, and stepped away a pace to let Sharkey recover.

It was a sportsmanlike action—worthy of a champion, especially as the fight had been going against Lynch and he was in danger of losing. Only his splendid recovery and driving finish earned him a draw.

ALD. KOSTNER URGES BOXING LAW SPONSORS UNITE ON ONE BILL

Coöperation on the part of those interested in the passage of a boxing bill was urged by Ald. Joseph O. Kostner at the weekly sessions of the Irish Fellowship club yesterday afternoon.

ALD. J. O. KOSTNER. [Walinger Photo.]

Ald. Kostner, who is chairman of the subcommittee of the city council having the matter of an athletic commission in charge, prefaced his remarks by crediting boxing skill with having greatly aided the morale of our soldiers. Boxing, he asserted, gave healthy minds and bodies and fitted young men to better cope with the problems of life.

Outlines Boxing Bill.

He outlined the main features of the bill he was sponsoring as follows:

Fifteen round bouts, no decisions.

Clubs applying for licenses must have at least 100 members, with membership of not less than a year's duration.

Permits to be obtained for each show from the boxing commission.

Boxing commission to consist of five members, serving without salary.

Local option for towns and cities.

In case of fake fights, licenses of both club and fighters to be revoked.

Reason for 15 Rounds.

The alderman said it had been thought advisable to increase the number of rounds to fifteen, as that was the number permitted in New York.

He believed it quite possible for promotors of the different bills to get together and, by showing a little of the give and take spirit, produce a consolidated measure which will satisfy the legislators at Springfield.

RED SOX START FOR SOUTH WITH M'INNIS HOLDOUT

Boston, Mass., March 5.—The advance guard of the Boston Red Sox set out for the south today with the comments of fans on the transfer of Harry Hooper to the White Sox buzzing in their ears and without the company Stuffy McInnis, the holdout first baseman. Manager Hugh Duffy headed a group of three recruits who formed the nucleus of the team that will train at Hot Springs.

McInnis, from his home at Manchester, today said he had received no reply to his demand for salary increase proportionate to that given other players, and that until his demands were met he would stay at home.

Tommy Gibbons Matched to Scrap with Al Reich

New York, March 5.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight, was signed today to meet Al Reich of Newark in a ten round no decision bout in Cleveland March 17.

REORGANIZATION FOR SEMI-PROS; MEET TOMORROW

The semi-pros are scheduled to start out this season with a new slate. Plans are being formulated that will change the entire circuit. That the Chicago league, the major organization of the city, has outgrown its toddling clothes is a foregone conclusion. Bill Niesen of the Pyotts is one of the prime movers in the reörganization.

The plans have not been developed, but they will be made public tomorrow night when the league meets at 8:30 in the Hotel La Salle.

It is expected that a smaller and more compact circuit will be formed.

Holdout Pertica Off for Card Camp to Talk Terms

Los Angeles, Cal., March 5.—Pitcher Bill Pertica, traded to the St. Louis Nationals by the Los Angeles club, admitted today he was a holdout, but said he would depart Monday for Orange, Tex., the Cardinals' training camp, "to talk terms."

RATING SYSTEM IN PARK SPORTS NEW AND BIG HIT

The race is not always to the swift, neither does the game always go to the team making the most points. Much depends on the system in vogue. Herbert G. Reynolds, assistant superintendent of the south parks has evolved a plan for competitive sport, in which it is possible for one team to outscore another and yet have the game go on the debit side of the ledger.

HERBERT REYNOLDS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

For over two decades Mr. Reynolds has been prominent in athletics, being one of the pioneers of scientific basketball in Chicago. His bailiwick contains thirteen parks peopled by thousands of virile young Americans. To successfully organize these youngsters into teams, to arrange championship competitions in various branches of athletics and at the same time to bring about the right spirit of sportsmanship, is no small task.

Must Consider Crowds.

Picking teams and arranging schedules is comparatively easy as compared with getting the little human machines, many of the hairtrigger variety, to run smoothly. There were other troubles, such as partisan crowds, to overcome.

The present system formulated after a number of experiments is as follows:

Sixty points out of a possible 100 are awarded for sportsmanship, 10 for reliability, which includes being on time and neatness in appearance, and 30 for winning the game. Thus it is possible for a team to win on the floor or track and yet lose in the final award.

From 3 to 15 points are deducted in basketball for flagrant fouls, and two points for each personal foul. Partisanship by a crowd may cost its team 10 to 40 points, while misconduct by a crowd following a game may cause a loss of up to forty points.

New Method of Rating.

At one stage of this year's competition a team which had won four straight games was behind another which had won four games and lost one.

Each of the thirteen parks is called a district, being made up from four to eight teams. Each district decides its own championship. The winners then compete for the zone championship, each zone being made up of from three to four parks.

The zone champions play for the championship of the south parks and the winners ultimately meet the champions of the west and north parks for the city titles.

Start Baseball in May.

Seventy-two teams started play in the present basketball series. In May a baseball series will be started, and this will be followed by a soccer football series in September, all being run along similar lines.

Mr. Reynolds says the rules have worked finely in bringing out clean competition.

TENNIS VOLLEYS

THE Chicago Tennis association will resume its weekly luncheons this week, these affairs being held every Wednesday at 12:15 o'clock at the City club. The luncheons are open to all men who play the game.

The Lawchester and Sherwood Tennis clubs of the north side have announced that they will continue to hold their leased grounds for the 1921 playing year, although there has been no change in the agreement by which the membership of these two clubs is gradually being absorbed into the larger Chicago Tennis club, Ridge and Thome avenues. The Lawchester club, at Lawrence avenue and Lincoln street, and the Sherwood club, at Superior and St. Clair streets, probably will be sites of local tournaments this summer.

CENTENNIAL CLINGS TO 131 POINT LEAD IN RIFLE CLUB RACE

Due mainly to the secure lead built up in the off-hand shooting, Centennial Rifle club continues to hold a 131 point lead among the local rifle teams competing in the National Rifle association's annual indoor team championship race.

The fourth round of the competition, which was shot last week, resulted in Chicago Rifle club outscoring Centennial for the week, 998 to 997, with Commonwealth-Edison a close third, scoring 996. The round was shot prone, scores accordingly being higher than in the more difficult positions of former rounds.

Nine Shoot Perfect Targets.

This was reflected in the list of perfect shooters, nine getting counts of 200 and sixteen making only one miss for 199 records. The team and high individual scores follow:

GOLFERS DODGE TRIP TO ENGLAND FOR OPEN EVENT

BY JOE DAVIS.

Prospects for a representative team of twenty American golfers competing in the British open championship at St. Andrews in June do not appear bright. It might have been well before launching the project to have made a canvass of the leading players, as it now develops that several of the leading experts feel they cannot afford to leave their courses during the busy season. One or two others who have recently been across the water assert "there's no place like home" in the United States of America. They do not care to return unless assured of treatment similar to that given them in tournaments here.

Hagen Humiliated.

When Walter Hagen competed at Deal last year he was told he would have to dress in the professionals' shop. He respectfully declined, returned to his hotel and dressed there, returning by taxi. This was depressing to a player of Hagen's class and doubtless had some effect on his play.

When he arrived in England he was shown a card of the Deal course and asked what he would consider a good round. He replied 72. Next day he was misquoted as saying he considered the Deal course an easy 72.

This is only a single instance, but differs greatly from the treatment given Vardon and Ray during their tour here. Vardon, it is true on his first visit here in 1900, was criticized by a Boston official for playing in knickerbockers, but that gentleman has long since faded from golfing prominence.

Game for Another Trip.

Hagen is game enough to go back this year and Jim Barnes will go with him. Doubtless there will be several more, but it looks as if the number will not reach twenty. It is hoped there will be at least ten. James Harnett, who has had charge of raising the fund by popular subscription, is confident the necessary money will come in.

Chicago professionals who played over the St. Andrews course do not rate it high as a test of golf. On many of the holes it is possible to run up approaches with a putter from 75 yards. It also is in an impoverished condition just now, although it is possible to improve it between now and June. The Chicagoans believe that a number of the British inland courses are superior.

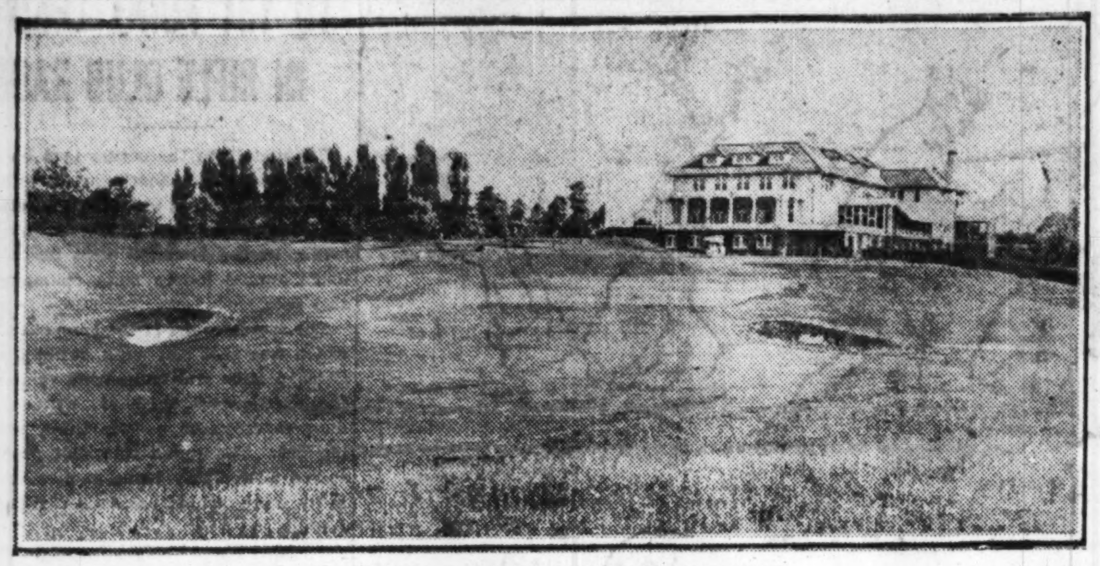
Scene on 1921 National Open Golf Championship Course



EIGHTEENTH GREEN AND CLUBHOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—The open golf championship, to be held at the Columbia Country club July 19 to 22, promises to be the peer of its predecessors. According to word received by Dr. Walter S. Harban of the club, Edward Ray of England, the present champion, will defend his title, while Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, the present British champion, will start. It is possible several other British professionals may come over.

The Columbia course, previous to its acceptance by the United States Golf association as the venue of the 1921 national open championship, had received comparatively little attention from American golfdom. Dr. Walter S. Harban, formerly vice president of the U. S. G. A. had gone quietly ahead, building the best he knew how, always in the hope his course would be awarded one of the championship plums. Now his hopes have been rewarded and to Columbia will travel the world's best professionals and the cream of American amateurs.

The course as it will be played during the championship will be some 6,500 yards in length. Columbia's difficulty bears out the thought of Dr. Harban as to what a good golf course should be by being not merely a course for the golf slogger, but one that amply repays a well placed shot. Accurately placed shots are far more valuable than the distance obtained by the long hitter, whose shots sometimes stray from the line. This feature of the course was extolled by Harry Varden shortly after he had tied the professional record with a card of 68 last summer. During that round Vardon was not off the fairway once, while his partner, Ted Ray, who had a card of 70 during the same round, lost two shots by essaying a long carry.

The course is a little less than ten years old, and was constructed among the rolling hills of Montgomery county, Md., half a mile north of the famous Chevy Chase club. Chevy Chase is the home club of President Harding, who frequently plays the course with Senators Fall, Elkins, and Frelinghuysen.

Any fear the course will be baked out by the middle of July can be definitely put aside, as the Columbia officials are planning to have the turf in good condition.

Britain and France Asked to Compete in Legion Meet

Philadelphia, Pa., March 5.—Invitations have been sent to army and navy service teams in England and France to compete at the second annual American Legion field day to be held on Franklin Field June 4, it was announced today by Maj. SPORTING PAGES AS TEXT BOOKS IN K.-C. SCHOOL

New York, March 5.—Sport pages of newspapers as text books is an innovation in certain Knights of Columbus night schools giving citizenship courses.

"American sport," Supreme Secretary William J. McGinley stated in announcing the innovation, "is an important part of American citizenship. Our teachers find sports a fine avenue for introducing Americanization to foreign born students. Especially on the sport page is found the real American language as it is spoken. We find that men taking citizenship courses progress much more rapidly if they are given a groundwork in the terminology of American sports.

West secured a small slam.

Had south played the ace of spades at trick one, the declarer would have made both the king and queen, therefore, the finesse was correct.

After winning the first trick the declarer had to consider one small club, two small diamonds and three small spades.

The losing cards in the declarer's hand are the only ones that matter when there is a declared trump.

None of the cards named would win tricks, therefore it was necessary to look to dummy for aid. It was evident that dummy could trump two of the spades, while the ace, king, and queen of clubs would dispose of the other three. This line of play was adopted and yielded a small slam.

Whether to lead trumps is always a minor question, the important one being the losing cards in the declarer's hand.

The danger of an adversary making a small trump was slight, but in any case a trump trick counts no more than any other.

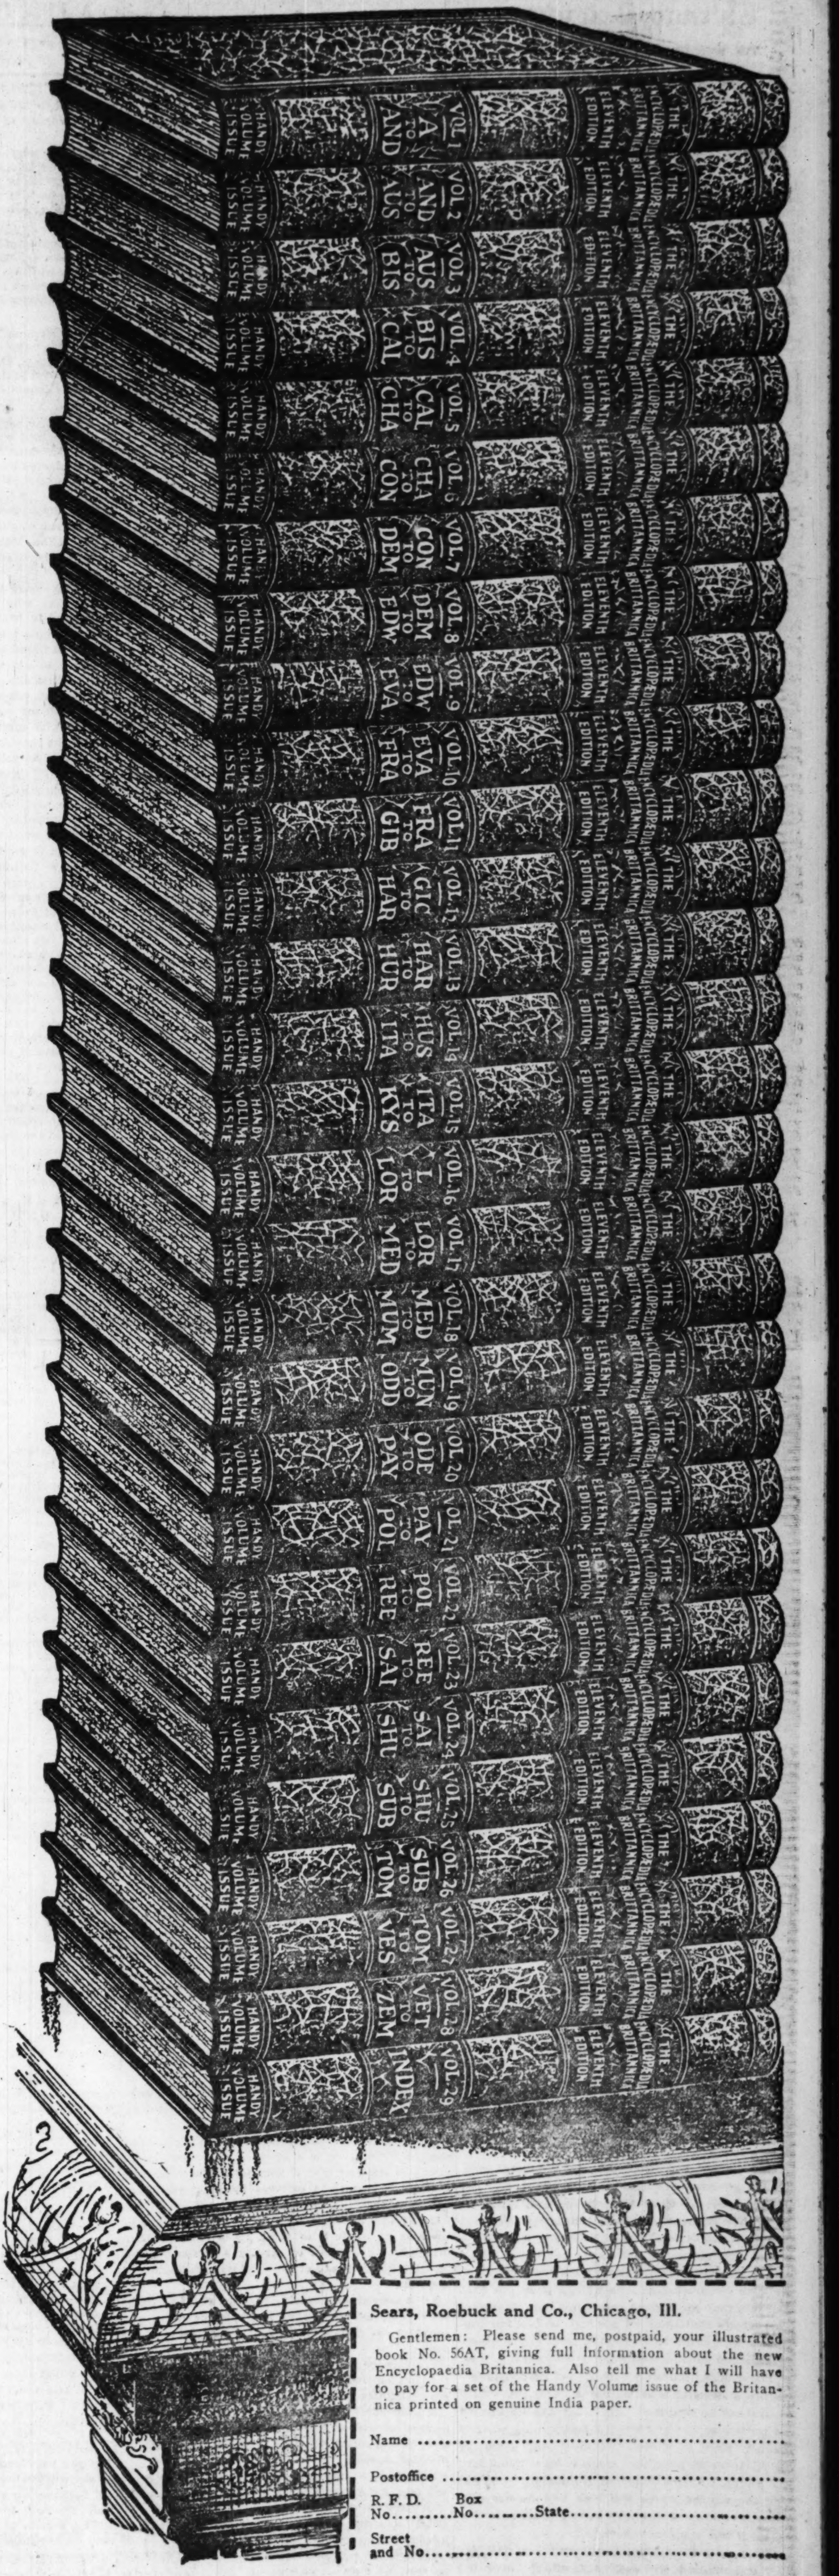
THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA



WHAT has been the lasting heritage of the war? In brief, a nation of keener thinking, knowledge-demanding people. The war had a profound effect on the 100,000,000 inhabitants of this country. It carried their interests from the town or city in which they live across the water into foreign countries, to every part of the world. They became no longer content to know only their neighbor across the street, but they wanted to learn of their neighbors in all nations of the earth. The war created in the people a thirst for knowledge, world wide in compass. The war instilled in the people the habit of thinking broadly in world wide terms, of wanting information on subjects they never dreamed of before, of thinking more deeply on the problems of the day. Over the two and a half years since the war, during the political, social, economic adjustment in this country, this habit of the people has grown stronger and stronger until today there has never been manifest such eagerness among the people for knowledge—knowledge on every conceivable subject under the sun.

The Britannica Goes Hand in Hand With the Awakened World

Where can people find the means to satisfy this demand for knowledge? The greatest reservoir of knowledge in existence—authoritative and comprehensive—is the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the most widely known, the most reverenced—the resource of thousands of men and women, seekers of knowledge in every generation for a century and a half. It is the book of the hour to satisfy the increased demand for knowledge by the awakened people of today.

Are You Keeping Abreast of the Times?

Today as never before the man and woman needs every ounce of knowledge he or she can obtain in order to cope with the present business, political, social and economic readjustment. Business particularly has been facing new and strange conditions, endeavoring to get back to a normal basis. In this tremendous readjustment it has been the men with the broad foundation of knowledge who, as executives and workers in our industries, have been able to take the responsibility and have risen speedily to positions of greater power and greater remuneration. To the business man, manufacturer, the worker in the industries, the Britannica will furnish information of practical, helpful and comprehensive character, and furnish a knowledge which will give to the man broader insight into his work and the problems of today.

The man who holds his job today during this readjustment period is he who is particularly fitted for his work, the man who knows more than his fellows. Knowledge is always above par in the market and the easiest commodity in the world to sell, as an employer will gladly pay your price if you have the knowledge to deliver. An investment in the Britannica will pay you many times over in dividends of knowledge, pleasure and satisfaction.

The Most Authoritative Work in the World

The Britannica has had a long and enviable career, and has grown in authority and esteem from generation to generation until it occupies the position today as the great reference book, ahead of any other in any country or in any language. It has had as its contributors a host of the greatest experts in the entire world throughout the 150 years of its existence. When you read an article in the Britannica, therefore, you feel confident that the information is reliable and authoritative, for the Britannica is the product of the wisest minds of the day, each a great specialist in the particular subject on which he is furnishing an article in the Britannica.

The Britannica discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, inventions and engineering, history and race development, architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology and geography, biography, law and physics. You and your family will find in the Britannica a liberal education.

A Means of Self Development—A Home University

In placing the Eleventh Edition before the public, the Press of the University of Cambridge announced: "The Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is now offered to the public by the University of Cambridge in the hope and belief that it will be found to be a trustworthy guide to sound learning, and an instrument of culture of world wide influence." Seldom has a hope been so quickly and completely realized. Thousands of owners have found the Britannica an indispensable means of self education. An instructor at Princeton has written that the Britannica has become the "collection of books" which Carlyle might term "the true university;" a teacher in a business college that "by its purchase I have secured access to a university education;" the president of an insurance company that "universally possessed it ought to educate the race. It is the people's university."

What Is to Come?

How shall America readjust her industrial conditions? Is the present League of Nations likely to succeed? Will the cost of living fall abruptly? Will wages continue high? Is the fall of the Bolshevist regime in Russia imminent? Will Germany fulfill its treaty obligations?

By means of the extraordinary articles in the Encyclopaedia Britannica on economics, industries, politics, government, labor and capital you will be able to obtain a clear insight into the problems of today.

What the Britannica Will Do for You

The Britannica will stimulate you to improve your education whether or not you've had a college education. It will furnish you with a teacher of any subject you wish to study—a teacher who is master of his subject and tells what he knows in clear, simple language—a teacher who is always at your command.

It will give you the answers to the thousand and one questions that the morning paper, sermons and books prompt in every active mind. It will make everything you see, read and hear more interesting.

It will enable you to lay out a plan of education for your children and keep abreast with their studies.

It will give you the history of every country in the world, every race, every city and the lives of all the men and women who have left their mark upon the world.

It will tell you more about every city, town, mountain range, lake, sea, desert, river, and every other place of interest than you would learn by visiting them.

THE SERVICE OF THE SONS OF KOHATH.

For many years the Grand Army of the Republic was the keeper of the ark of the covenant. It was powerful and at times even too powerful. In its political workings it may have been selfish, being human. It controlled politicians and frequently dominated politics. It focused the sentiment and also the practical interests of the veterans. It may have been responsible for pension abuses, but its real importance was that it stood before the nation as an organization of devoted patriotism.

It was the particular custodian of the flag because it was the symbol of the power which had preserved the flag with its full number of stars. Tangibly and visibly it gave the people an embodiment of patriotism and in its custodial relations to the national sacraments it was almost in the relation of the sons of Kohath to the ark of the covenant.

The successor to the Grand Army of the Republic, which time is dispersing, is the American Legion, another great body of American veterans who have survived a call to service and who by their service indicated their devotion to the national sacrament.

Times have changed as the Grand Army goes out of power and as the American Legion comes in. They have changed to make it a more impressive necessity that there be keepers of the ark. America is more conscious now of its heterogeneous composition than it was thirty, forty, and fifty years ago, and it is less confident of a binding commonness of purposes, traditions, and ideals.

It is not Byzantine, but it is diversified and conscious of its incongruities and its national anomalies. Nearly every nation in Europe can apply pressure to the United States by reaching a considerable body of American citizenship sympathetic with it for nationalistic or racial reasons.

There is no other great nation in the world which can be so approached from the outside and have its policies swayed, changed, or made doubtful by causes which do not affect it. The United States has this experience, finding itself agitated by matters which do not concern it and finding its course made oblique in matters which do concern it by the pressure of alien influences.

When the Grand Army was a power this situation did not exist. There was then no question whether the United States would consider itself first or another nation first. If there had been such a question the G. A. R. would have determined it and would have been able to do so because the respect politicians had for it amounted sometimes to fear.

It was sacrosanct in the opinion of the people, and it could not be attacked with impunity. It was listened to respectfully because it represented to the people their own highest achievement in patriotic service and sacrifice.

The place of this great organization must be taken by the American Legion. It will grow powerful and with its power probably some abuses will come. They will be negligible, even if in themselves they are serious, if the American Legion makes it obligatory upon politics to regard this country as one in which the interests of another nation cannot be advanced to the disadvantage of America.

Some power must compel what is not conceded without compulsion, and when it has become dangerous to offend the principles embodied in the Legion there will be a return to the homogeneity which this nation seems to be losing and which is necessary if it is to be a nation and not a congeries of alien influenced peoples.

We can hope that in acquiring power the American Legion will not lose judgment and wisdom and principles wholly concerned with the national good. The ark needs the services of the sons of Kohath, and we do not know in what other direction to look.

LABOR MUST BE RESPONSIBLE.

Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, has announced that the organization will introduce a bill at the next session of congress providing for the exemption of labor unions from prosecution under "all anti-combination and so-called conspiracy laws." In the language of the walking delegate; how do they get that way?

The decision was prompted, Mr. Woll explained, by the government's action against officials of the United Mine Workers to stop the coal strike in 1919. The Supreme court on Monday strengthened the federation's position by declaring unconstitutional that section of the Lever act under which the injunctions against the miners were obtained. In such circumstances it is well to point out that the fact that the highest court thus upholds organized labor's contention on one statute does not support labor's claim to exemption from any prosecution under anti-combination, or conspiracy laws.

The court's decision is a matter of law. The federation's demand is a matter of principle. They should not be confused. The court has established no precedent and no rules for determining what is morally right or wrong. Congress, which will be called upon to pass the proposed exemption law; the public, which is supposed to influence congress; and the unions, which will seek to influence congress, should get this entire matter clearly in mind before it comes up for settlement.

The unions want immunity from prosecution for any combination or conspiracy, either under the present laws or future laws. They want the power to shut off the fuel supply of the nation, to stop all transportation, to leave the cities to freeze and starve. They want the power to organize, to combine, to bargain collectively with employers for wages and working conditions. They want the privilege of entering into contracts, and, most important of all, the privilege of breaking such contracts to the probable ruin of the employer involved, without any penalty whatsoever.

Such are the ends to which the proposed legislation would lead. It would put organized labor above existing law. It would create a ruling class in America. In such circumstances labor leaders could dictate to the nation. We doubt that the nation has sufficient faith in labor leaders as yet to submit to such an arrangement.

Labor has power. It is right that it should have. But if it extends power it must accept responsibility. That is fundamental. The proposed law tends in exactly the opposite direction.

A WAY OUT OF THE TAX TANGLE.

Nearly two thousand associations of business men, voting in the United States Chamber of Commerce referendum, declared themselves overwhelmingly for repeal of the excess profits tax. They were hopelessly at a loss when asked for a satisfactory substitute. In such a situation a few plain facts must be met.

The excess profits tax is bad for business and therefore bad for the country. The government needs its revenue. If that tax is eliminated substitutes must be found or the government's needs must be reduced. Since practically no substitute has been found, the most logical way out of the difficulty seems to be to reduce the government's need.

Two ways are open. One is to economize. The other is to extend the period for payment of our debts. The economy plan undoubtedly will be adopted by the new administration, but at best it cannot save an amount equal to the excess profits tax revenue. It must be supplemented, therefore, by the second method—that of funding our war debt into long term securities. That will reduce revenue requirements sufficiently to balance the loss of that part of the excess profits tax not taken care of by economy, excise taxes, etc.

Such an arrangement will to a great extent solve our most pressing problems of federal taxation. It will do more than that. It will relieve the men who fought the war of what in many cases is a great injustice. Under present arrangements a man who gave up business or profession, sold his personal property, and enlisted is being doubly penalized. In a year's service probably he lost income which would have amounted to $3,000. He lost another $1,000 by sacrifice of personal property. Against this loss he may put his pay of $30 a month in the ranks, $15 a month allotment to his wife, $250 saved on clothing, and $600 saved on board. This leaves him short at least $2,600.

Such a man has contributed what amounts to $2,600 cash to help win the war. In addition, he submitted to hard, uncongenial work, and risked life and limb to protect the next generation as well as the stay-at-homes of this generation. It is hardly just that he should be called upon to do so much.

The next generation will profit by his sacrifice. Why should it not help to pay? It should. That would be both just and wise. It would remove the excess profits tax burden without requiring a substitute.

THE WEST INDIES FOR US.

Two senators have approved publicly the proposal to negotiate a transfer of the British West Indies to us in cancellation of or set-off against the British debt to us.

That this proposal has not been received with enthusiasm in England is not surprising. National pride always opposes giving up territory and we must make allowance for this natural sentiment. Perhaps it is so strong at this time that it precludes hope that any British government would dare to make the deal in spite of the common sense which supports it and the substantial benefits which Great Britain would derive from it.

But if the proposal is impracticable at this time it does not follow that it always will be. There was a time during the war when the exchange would have been possible, and at some future time circumstances will favor it, even though it may not seem acceptable to the British popular mind at this moment.

The proposal ought, therefore, to be formally made. That will force its serious consideration, elicit objections and all favoring considerations, and set the idea germinating in the minds of both peoples. In the United States, we believe, it will command greater favor as time goes on and we realize more clearly the difficulties inherent in the solution of our foreign debt problem. At the same time the American people will learn to think of the West Indies as properly belonging to our territory, as, in fact, they do, and their acquisition will become a definite policy persistently maintained by public opinion, as is the Monroe doctrine.

The benefits both to Great Britain and the United States derivable from this transfer are, in our opinion, so substantial and far reaching that the proposal is certain eventually to win. The sooner the better for both countries.

Editorial of the Day

THE NATIONAL DISGRACE.

[The News, New York.]

As long as there are disabled soldiers without adequate means of support the United States government should be ashamed.

This government still stands because these men went to France. It is a prosperous government—as strong or stronger than it was before the menace of German invasion was removed by their patriotism and courage.

It can well afford to keep every man wounded in the war in comfort, to teach those only partially disabled a new means of earning a livelihood, and so see that every one of them secures profitable employment.

Yet it tosses each of them a pittance of $12 a month, with treatment in crowded hospitals for those who cannot walk. This is considered by congress a square deal.

It seems too bad that congress was not sent to the trenches en masse during the war. Members with susceptibilities would have been moved to something like gratitude by what they saw there, even if they escaped unscathed. Those who were wounded would now be clamoring for fair and just treatment of disabled soldiers.

This is a question on which there is but one side, and that is the right side. The country and the world was saved by the American army. Every man who fought and was wounded in that army ought to be handsomely cared for forever after.

There is no business before congress so important as this, no duty as paramount. Until provision is made for these soldiers no congressman ought to have the hardihood to ask for the confidence of the voters in his district.

THE TOONERVILLE SCOTLAND YARD.

[From the Brazil, Ind., Times.]

Chief of Police Guy Bolin did another clever piece of detective work yesterday when he recovered two stolen umbrellas on a very slender clew. Thursday evening a well known lady of this city accompanied by her children went out on a call and as it was raining they took two umbrellas along. The umbrellas were left on the front porch and when they started home the shower sticks had disappeared. As the umbrellas were valuable the lady did not care to lose them and yesterday she reported the theft to the police. The only clew she was able to give Chief Bolin was a description of two women who were walking behind her on their way down the street. Using this description, Chief Bolin succeeded in locating the two women and recovered the umbrellas in less than two hours.

THE THOUSAND AND ONE AFTERNOONS.

XXV.

'When I was a very small boy,' began the bellhop, 'my father caught me in a lie. He was a man of violent temper, but of deep religious feeling, and in a transport of rage, at the very remembrance of which I still tremble, he put a curse on me, a most elaborate curse, such a curse as could not fail to take effect. I cannot recall the torrent of words which overwhelmed me, but I shall never forget the conclusion of his masterly anathema. "May you," he thundered, "never speak aught but the truth, though you hang for it!" And I do not doubt that ultimately I shall hang for it.' The bellhop checked a tear that had started from his candid blue eye, and heartened by the sympathetic countenances that fronted him, he resumed his story. 'The curse went immediately into effect. My school days were a continued story of punishment and humiliation, for I was driven to confess to every piece of mischief in which I was concerned, and, which was far worse, to incriminate others, so that I was obliged to leave the school, the most detested of youths. In the meanwhile my father repented of his malediction, and took every means to have the curse removed, but nothing came of it, although he consulted the most renowned astrologers, oracles, and soothsayers. He took me abroad one summer, and sought the aid of many learned psychologists, but all confessed themselves baffled. Encouraged and instructed by my father, I made every effort to lie, and sometimes success seemed within grasp, but at the last moment the truth would pop from me, and we would sob bitterly in each other's arms. In the end I gave up all hope of escaping my destiny, and lived peacefully enough until my father's death obliged me to earn my living. My first position was that of office boy with a religious monthly, but I was discharged on the second day. Although positively instructed by the editor to say that he was not in his office, I could not avoid telling the truth to the first visitor who inquired for him. My employer was much interested in my peculiar disability. "You are a noble youth," he said, "and without question you are destined to as high an end as any of Oliver Optic's young heroes; but you are wasting your gift on a religious journal, where virtue is so common as not to be appreciated. You need a larger field, and I am doing you a service in parting with you." He thereupon instructed the cashier to pay me a full week's wages, shook hands very kindly, and went back to his office.'

"WHITE MAN HEAP BIG FOOL."

WHEN the pioneers moved into the wild and woolly west they found the Indian had a sovereign remedy. It was echinacia or niggerhead or black Sampson—a wild plant found in a territory extending from Michigan to the Rockies and from Texas to Saskatchewan.

So great was the Indian belief in it as a cure all that they soon sold the faith to the white man and Lloyd says it is used in larger quantity than any other American drug introduced during the last thirty years. Many of the patent medicines contain it and many physicians use it. A doctor told me his sister, the wife of a doctor, thinks it the finest medicine in the world and whenever she does not feel well regardless of what ails her she takes a teaspoonful of it. A doctor who treats chronic bone infection "just pours it down his patients."

It is almost boundless in its geographical distribution as a plant, almost boundless in the number who use it, almost boundless in the faith it inspires and almost boundless in the range of diseases for which it is used. In fact it is this last quality which threatens to be its undoing.

Here are some of the diseases of man and beast in which it is used. For some of them it is claimed to be a specific: Infectious processes, blood poisoning, puerperal fever, uremia, pernicious malaria, septic fever, typhoid fever, goiter, pyemia, smallpox, anthrax, stomatitis, ulcer of the stomach, cerebro spinal meningitis, hydrophobia, lockjaw, erysipelas, bed sores, fever sores, chronic ulcers, syphilitic nodules, burns, gangrene, carbuncles, tuberculosis, rattlesnake bite, bites of tarantulas, spiders, scorpions, and equine influenza and canine distemper.

Potter says it is anæsthetic, antiseptic, alterative, improves the appetite and digestion, it's a stimulant and is nutritive to the nervous system and specifically antagonistic to all organic infections of the blood such as acute sepsis, pyemia, and serpent venom. There are extraordinary accounts of its efficacy in cases of poisoning by rattlesnake venom. It is antagonistic to the toxin in the blood in diphtheria, it is not poisonous and it is used internally and externally. All this sounds like an old fashioned almanac or an Indian yarb doctor's spiel as he sells his wares at a street show.

The spiel caused Crouch and Gittner of the United States department of agriculture to experiment. They tried echinacia in lockjaw. Verdict—no good. Next they tried it as a remedy for botulism. Verdict—no good. The next effort was in blood poisoning, or septicemia, or pyemia. Verdict—no good. Next came anthrax—again N. G. Rattlesnake venom was next on the list. Verdict the same. Then came tuberculosis. The verdict was that the remedy had no effect on the disease. They next tried it in dourine, a disease of horses. Verdict—no curative value.

The final conclusion was that echinacia had no organic effects. In other words, the man who wants to take it or rub it on can do so with safety just as he could take or rub on spring water. The remedy would have no curative effect and the man would have his trouble and expense for nothing.

And yet I am sure many million people have taken echinacia, have gotten well of their ills and have thanked the peerless remedy for the cure. Great is faith in producing content! Great is nature in the cure of disease!

TRAVELING MEN HEALTHY.

B. H. W. writes: "1. Please inform me what are the statistics relative to the healthfulness or unhealthfulness of traveling as an occupation. Is riding in filthy trains, sleeping in public beds, and eating indifferent hotel cooking conducive to ill health and disease or do these exposures set up an immunity from disease?

"2. What causes milk to taste strong in the fall and winter months? Does this indicate impure and insanitary conditions? Does the cows' food have anything to do with this and how can this be remedied?"

REPLY.

1. I have never seen any vital statistics relating to traveling men. I do not think they are regarded as bad risks. Perhaps that is because most of them are comparatively young men. It is the custom for drummers to graduate into capitalists, proprietors and other occupations for which their earlier work trained them, and the health harm done is assessed against the last occupation. Seriously, all traveling men always should be protected against smallpox, typhoid fever and possible pneumonia during the winter-spring.

2. It is probably due to stable odors. Certain foods affect the odor of milk, likewise its taste. Why not stick to hot milk or boiled milk? Sufficient heating kills all disease producing bacteria and also drives off most odors.

SKIN FOOD FOR CHINESE.

M. W. S. writes: "Is it true that raw carrot eaten freely turns the skin yellow? The family has been eating raw carrot as a salad once a day for several months and people are commenting on the yellow hue of our skins. Is there any connection as people believe?"

REPLY.

It is true. It has been proved that when carrots are eaten in large quantities for some time the pigment colors the skin just as feeding carrots to milch cows gives the butter a yellow color. Is eating carrots good for the complexion? Yes, for a Chinaman.

HERE'S EASY REMEDY.

Mrs. B. writes: "Please give me a formula for excessive perspiration in the armpits.

1. Is such a preparation harmful?
2. What is the cause of perspiration?
3. Would any pharmacist get up this formula for me?"

REPLY.

A 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water. Apply two or three times a week at night. Do not overdo. If this preparation is overused it causes inflammation of the skin. The formula is simple and easily used.

BABY IS OVERFED.

Mrs. F. L. M. writes: "My baby is 2 months old, large and fat. I nurse him. He sleeps very well at night, but cries almost all day and evening or else is very fussy. He seems to have pains. He passes a lot of wind and belches very hard. What can be the cause of this? I give him peppermint occasionally, but it does little good."

REPLY.

Your baby has the colic. Overfeeding is generally the cause of colic. Have him nurse both breasts, but do not let him empty either completely. Shorten the time at the breast. Give him water before nursing him. If this does not suffice give him the Grulee treatment as advised in the Journal of the American Medical Association, November, 1920. Do not wean him.

THIS—IN DAYS OF HIGH RENT.

Chicago, March 2.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—An estate was left to an administrator who did not look after the rent collections. A family lived on it for ten years and have admitted that they paid no rent.

Can they be held responsible for the rent, and after moving out, rent it to another family and collect rent for it? All told there is eleven years' rent due to the heirs, children. B. P.

MODERN HISTORY.

How long after the Lusitania was sunk did the United States enter the war? How long after he was reëlected did we enter the war? When did he finally return to the United States? J. B.

President Wilson first sailed for France Dec. 3, 1918. The peace conference met first Jan. 18, 1919.

He returned to the United States for the closing of that session of congress, leaving France Feb. 15, and left again for France March 4, 1919. He sailed again from France June 30, 1919.

The Lusitania was sunk May 7, 1915.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

SEEING ANARCHY IN THE HOUSING SITUATION.

Kankakee, Ill., March 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have read in your valuable paper, with considerable interest, of the tenants' war against so-called rent hogs. I also read your editorial a short time ago, which seems to tell the real solution of the rent problem—build.

If legislation to limit profits from private property could be enforced then the red flag might as well be raised to replace the Stars and Stripes.

Permit me, a humble farmer, to tell your tenants of Chicago what to do if they cannot meet conditions in that great city. Go to the country, where they are badly needed.

It seems to me a one-eyed bird dog could see that if there are 100,000 people idle in Chicago they are not needed there. For them to try to occupy housing space at their own price and prevent others who have the wherewith and desire to meet the price asked from occupying the house or apartment is nothing short of anarchy and should be dealt with as such, both in regard to the tenants who follow and the politicians and publicity seekers who lead. They have an un-American and disgusting idea of possessing the other fellow's property against his will.

I advise the unsuccessful tenants in the city to become successful landlords in the country, where the cows, horses, pigs, and chickens will welcome them with a rousing chorus. A. S. SMITH.

JOBS FOR NEGROES.

Elgin, Ill., March 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Referring to the numerous complaints of the colored brethren in regard to being unable to secure employment now in Chicago and other places, I was talking last night with a traveling man who had just visited several sections of the south. He advised me that if the former employés of the southland would go back there their old employers (many of them) would be glad to furnish them with employment and good housing quarters. As it is hardly probable that the industrial situation will improve in Chicago sufficiently soon to take up the surplus of white labor, how would it do for the colored men and women who have recently come from the south to work in Chicago to go to their old homes and work there until such a time as industrial conditions improve here. OBSERVER.

ROUGH, BUT MORE OR LESS TRUE.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It seems to me that the rent hogs have their feet so far in the trough that if the merchants and other business people don't watch out there will be no swill left for them. The strange part of the whole thing is that the merchants seem rather satisfied to let these swine lick up everything and not make any move to make it possible for people to spend money in their stores.

GEORGE C. WARNER.

THE WORKING GIRL'S RENT PROBLEM.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Under present conditions the moderate salaried working girl can be neither a landlord nor a tenant. Her salary will not permit of her ever buying a home or renting one. The present rate of rented rooms will not even permit of her renting a room. She is practically thrown into the street. The only place she can find to live within her means is in some low dive district.

Why?

Landlords, you answer.

First, the landlord has raised the tenant's rent $5 or $25 on the month, with the strict understanding that the tenant cannot sublet any rooms.

Your attention is called to one instance—perhaps hundreds more just like it—wherein a widowed mother is working to support and educate her only child, a daughter. She occupies the upper floor of a duplex residence. The widow and her daughter occupy the one bedroom. The other has been idle for many months, and while this idle room could be the means of defraying part of the widow's rent and at the same time sheltering some unfortunate working girl, the landlord will not permit of this room being rented.

Second, the rooms that are available are either beyond the average girl's earnings or in a location unsuited to her ideals. ANNA M. DUGAN.

A BETRAYAL OF OUR GOVERNMENT?

Chicago, Feb. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—With deepest regret I read yesterday morning that the "stay at home" vote has again lost the day. It seems to me that the 526,000 people that didn't vote Tuesday are a real menace to our republican form of government. Not only a menace but it seems to me a disgrace to our country.

I wartimes a man who betrays his country to the enemy is considered a traitor. It seems to me that the man who betrays his government to the "gangster" is also a traitor to his country. Surely the "stay at home" vote is the one that is doing the damage.

Is there not some plan by which the American public can be aroused and be shown the sacredness of the right of franchise and its vital consequences, if not exercised? It does not seem that temporary agitation can solve this serious problem. It must be done through a plan that will be constant.

C. W. HOWE.

FOR MAKING EUROPE PAY.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have just concluded this minute reading your aggressive editorial on "The West Indies for Us." It is what I call sound Americanism, and it is timely, too. I not only thank you for it, but back you to the limit in your aspect of this serious matter—the debts of Europe to the United States.

Magnanimity and generosity are fine characteristics in either an individual or a nation, but they can at times be so misunderstood, so overworked as to threaten the welfare of those who extend them. Our late associates in the war—or some of them—appear to think that they can exploit the United States to the point of saturation. This should be resented. These borrowing nations got this colossal sum—$10,000,000,000—from us in good faith. A debt is a debt to every honorable man, and the European nations who owe this country should be sternly given to understand that they must some day pay the last dollar of principal and interest. G. H.

HAZARDS ARE NOT CONFINED TO WAR.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—After reading your editorial, in which you paternally advise Kansas to adopt the motto, "Don't forget your rubbers," I ask, "How do you get that way?"

Your statement that among us "the idea to strive, fight, advance, meet hazards, etc. . . . is repugnant and frightful" is a malicious, slanderous slam against every Kansan who ever wore a uniform. And, b'gosh, I am among them.

Didn't Gen. James G. Harbord, a native of my old home town, lead the marines at the eventful battle of Chateau Thierry?

Wasn't Gov. Henry A. Allen elected to that honor while he was on the battle lines in France?

Ask Gen. Leonard Wood if the Kansas boys he trained at Camp Funston were as yellow as you would like to have them.

You base your entire attitude on the fact that a Kansas congressman stated that the old German planes were unsafe. And in the same issue of your sheet there appears an article under a Washington heading which says that a military commission recommended that these planes be abolished for the reason that they are not fit to risk lives in.

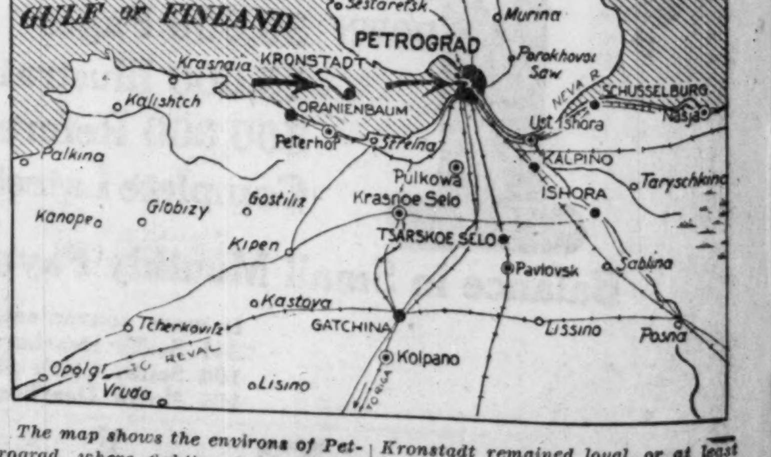
We'll admit that Kansas leads other state in progressiveness, wheat, flivvers, and clear thinking, but—aye, perhaps there's the rub. Eh, what?

CHESTER CLERIN BREWER.

"IT'S ME," BUT NOT "HE DON'T."

Chicago, Feb. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—If you will get that book written long, long ago, "We and Our Neighbors," by the very elegant writer, George MacDonald, you will see, in the beginning, his explanation for preferring "It's me," to "It is I." He explains so gracefully and moderately that there doesn't seem to be any occasion for heated debate over the matter. LEUCY REECE.

FIGHTING ABOUT PETROGRAD



The map shows the environs of Petrograd, where fighting has been reported. The bolsheviki are still in power. One arrow points to Kronstadt, the fortress guarding Petrograd, the other to the city itself. The garrison at Kronstadt remained loyal, or at least neutral. There is a saying that whoever holds Kronstadt holds Petrograd. The truth of this has been evident several times since the revolution in Russia.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's six best sellers at a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"Main Street" [Harcourt], by Sinclair Lewis.
"Mountebank" [Lane], by William J. Locke.
"The Growth of the Soil" [Knopf], by Knut Hamsun.
"Sisters-in-Law" [Stokes], by Gertrude Atherton.
"Seed of the Sun" [Doran], by Wallace Irwin.
"Poor White" [Huebsch], by Sherwood Anderson.

NONFICTION.

"The Sea and the Jungle" [Dutton], by H. M. Tomlinson.
"Letters to a Niece" [Houghton Mifflin], by Henry Adams.
"Roaming Through the West Indies" [Century], by Harry A. Franck.

Last week's six best circulators in the public library were:

"Main Street," by Sinclair Lewis.
"Moon Calf," by Floyd Dell.
"Poor White," by Sherwood Anderson.
"The Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.
"The Autobiography of Margot Asquith."
"Steeplejack," by James Huneker.

"THE Growth of the Soil," Knut Hamsun's latest novel, is the sort of book which leaves one speechless, not groping for words, not in an emotional turmoil, just dumb at the sheer power of its stark beauty. Mere criticism of such a book, which is as eternal as the soil in which its roots are fastened, mere laudatory words about a work which is a mountain are an impertinence.

Unless he can become as Knut Hamsun, can peel away the husks of words and write with that sweet, bare reality with which the book is written, the reviewer must needs find himself without anything to say. He can talk about the reality of the book—the amazingly unadorned structure of the thing. He can say that not once in the two long volumes does Mr. Hamsun tell what any one of his characters is thinking. And often he merely sketches what they are doing. They are not articulate. They speak in monosyllables. And yet, such is the genius of Mr. Hamsun, that you know exactly what is going on in their minds; you know their inhibitions, their flowerings, their motives.

I have never read—and "never" is a powerful word which I use with all knowledge of its significance—I have never read a book written so simply. There is not one sentence of "fine writing" in it. Not one page of beautiful description. Not a line of the peculiarly sensitized writing which vivifies most of the great books of the world.

A child might have told it, or an old, old man free of the trappings of words. But there is nothing childlike about it, nothing patriarchal. It is as young as the spring, as old as the winter, as stirring with life as the cycle of the days. It is naked life.

It is the story of Isak, the farmer, a primeval man, a giant of body, and with a calmness of soul like an Old Testament father. It is the story of the growth of the soil through his family and the small peasant group which grows up about them, almost as if the soil had taken its roots in them and grown upward into their lives, rather than their growing downward into the soil.

Such things might a person say who is more articulate than I. All that I can say is that it is so truly great a piece of work that it says everything for itself. The American edition is published by Alfred A. Knopf, and brings to the larger public in America the book which has already in the English edition profoundly won the respect and awe of a few American readers. Those whose knowledge of the work of Mr. Hamsun was confined to "Hunger" will be less surprised about his receiving the Nobel prize when they read "The Growth of the Soil."

For two successive years Hugh Walpole has won the Tait Black prize offered by the University of Edinburgh. Last year it was for "The Secret City" and this year for "The Captives."

Mr. Henry B. Fuller, who is one of our really distinguished Chicago writers and who writes about a tenth as much as I, for one, wish he would write, has been kind enough to share with us the plans which Luigi Carnovale has made for the sixth centenary of Dante. Those plans are set forth in a handsome pamphlet in Italian, the gist of which is that an organization among the Italian-American newspapers provide: For one university, preferably the state university, in each of the forty-eight states, and for the public library of every American city with a population above 100,000, [1] a bronze tablet in honor of Dante; [2] a complete set of Dante's works; Dante features in every Italian-American newspaper of Sept. 14; a proclamation by President Harding of a Dante Memorial day, with exercises in all of the public schools of the country.

In England E. T. Raymond's "Life of Arthur James Balfour" is being discussed at every dinner table almost as Margot Asquith was discussed. Americans may read it if they wish. Little Brown & Co. have brought it over.

Do you remember Homer Croy's "Boone Stop"? I thought it was one of the most amusing things I had ever read—a story of a Seventh-Day Adventist community. Homer Croy has written another story of the frontier called "Turkey Bowman." It isn't half so good as "Boone Stop," but it's an amusing story of a boy who runs away with a man who has a talking dog and of their adventures with the Indians. It's real frontier.

"The War of the Future" is a new book by Gen. von Bernhardi, not, as many have suspected, an old one dressed up in a new spring suit. You remember how "Germany and the Next War" startled every one. This new book is said to start startling where the last one left off.

"Further E. K. Means" is just what it says, more of Dr. Means' stories of his black neighbors. Dr. Means writes Negro stories with a strange reality to them, although his writing is far from being good. His characters are realer than the more fascinating ones of Hugh Wiley and Octavus Roy Cohen, but they are less impressive. Dr. Means hasn't the knack of picking a few sprigs of reality and making a bouquet of them. He digs up a bush and it makes a somewhat awkward handful.

"Zizi's Career" is the story of a girl's losing fight with life, of her beautiful mother who cannot own her motherhood, of her gay, cruel little sister who not only ruins Zizi's career as a great actress but almost breaks her heart. It is told in Zizi's own simple words, Evelyn Van Buren acting as amenuensis.

A queer twist of mind, that which made me say last week that Norman Douglas' new book is called "They Go" when it couldn't possibly be called anything but "They Went." I ask your pardons, mesdames et messieurs. It is the story of the fatal love of a beauteous princess. She cast her eyes upon me and, like the sons of the Asra, he died of love, except that he merely disappeared and did not go through the lyric passing of the Asra. He just went. And when they began to disappear in crowds "They Went." A gorgeous idea, calls it. Dodd, Mead & Co. will bring it out here this spring.

"The Last Knight" is the title of the new collection of the poems of Theodore Maynard, whose "Poems" did not so much make him known to the crowds along the Appian Way as his "Tankard of Ale," that anthology of drinking songs which he collected con amore. Mr. Maynard writes the good old-fashioned kind of poetry that rhymes and can be scanned and celebrates nature and religion and beauty. He is like the plain, noble-hearted girl who has all of the unpleasant virtues but none of the interesting vices. He makes devoted friends, but rarely passionate devotees.

Two steps have been made by American publishers to bring down the prices of books—one of them a radical departure from precedent and the other the first slide in the inevitable downward jaunt of prices. The Stokes company published Gertrude Atherton's "Sisters-in-Law," bound both in cloth and in paper. They took what was their "biggest" novel of the spring to try the paper-bound experiment on. The cloth edition sells for $2, the paper for $1.50.

Every one in the book business is watching the experiment with a somewhat cynical eye. They say that the 50 cents difference in the price is not enough to lure readers to the impermanent form of the paper backed novel, and unless the circulation is thus immensely increased the publishers would be losing money on paper-bound books which they sold at 50 cents less than the cloth-bound ones, because the binding costs them between 12 and 25 cents. That is, if a book should sell, in cloth, for $2, to pay a fair profit to the publisher, if he sells it for $1.50 in paper he is losing exactly 25 cents if his binding costs the maximum price and more as the cost of binding decreases.

The difference between America and France is that American book prices are based on the bound book and French prices on the unbound book. If we can, however, by binding in paper, so materially increase the market for popular novels, the publishers will be able to afford paper-bound books. It sounds paradoxical, but it really isn't. The cost of manufacture of books is affected only in the smallest percentage by the binding. The author's royalties, the paper, the plates, the printing, the major work of making the book are all stable amounts.

The suspicion among publishers and booksellers is that the Stokes company will lose money on the Atherton experiment and will prove only that the American public prefers its books in sturdy form. "Men and Steel," Mary Heaton Vorse's steel-strike exposé, was bound in paper, but it was done so that it might be sold for $1. It was propaganda and the figures of its circulation would prove nothing in the question of American taste in binding.

The other step is that Doubleday, Page & Co. are going to lower some of their prices on June 1, and they are publishing their spring fiction at $1.75 instead of $2. But that, again, doesn't prove a great deal, because the most popular novels of the year, "Main Street" and "This Side of Paradise," have been respectively $2 and $1.75, and the 25 cents difference in price has never apparently affected in any way the sales.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

BEDOUIN LOVE SONG.

By Bayard Taylor.

From the desert I come to thee
On a stallion shod with fire,
And the winds are left behind
In the speed of my desire.
Under thy window I stand,
And the midnight hears my cry:
I love thee, I love but thee,
With a love that shall not die
Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold!

Look from thy window and see
My passion and my pain;
I lie on the sands below,
And I faint in thy disdain.
Let the night winds touch thy brow
With the heat of my burning sigh,
And melt thee to bear the vow
Of a love that shall not die
Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold!

My steps are nightly driven,
By the fever in my breast,
To hear from thy lattice breathed
The word that shall give me rest.
Open the door of thy heart,
And open thy chamber door,
And my kisses shall teach thy lips
The love that shall fade no more
Till the sun grows cold,
And the stars are old,
And the leaves of the Judgment
Book unfold!

CLAIM STRIKE SUPPORTS ORDER OF RAIL BOARD

1,500 Quit and Tie Up A., B. & A.

Atlanta, Ga., March 5.—Approximately 1,500 of the 2,000 union employés of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway tonight had responded to the strike order issued because of dissatisfaction with the order of Feb. 28 last for reduction of wages amounting to 50 per cent on increases since 1917.

An order was handed down late today in federal District court by Judge Sibley stating that the wage reduction order would be given "no other or further effect than it ought to have by law under the facts which may be established at the hearing already set for March 26."

Authorized by Court.

The wage reduction order was originally issued by the receiver for the road upon authorization of Judge Sibley after statements had been set before him to show that present wage scales were unwarranted in view of the financial condition of the property. The men had claimed that their views had not been adequately taken into consideration in reaching this decision.

At Fitzgerald, where the shops of the road are located, it was reported that all trains, including those carrying mail, had come to a stop. Other reports indicated that no trains were being operated on the road, which serves many Alabama and Georgia towns.

Test of Law, Union Men Say.

Heads of railroad unions in Chicago declare that the strike called on the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway is to enforce compliance on the part of the carrier with the provisions of the transportation act. Their position is that the wage cut is in violation of the order of the United States railroad labor board that no reduction be made pending further conferences between the line and its employés.

As the labor board unofficially views it, the A., B. & A. development has raised a clean-cut issue of whether a federal court can override the machinery set up by the federal transportation law, and it is deemed likely that a decision from the United States Supreme court will be required.

OUTLOOK FOR IDLE TOILER SLOWLY BUT SURELY IMPROVES

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—A definite turn for the better is evident in the unemployment situation, it was said at the office of the National Industrial conference board. Although rapid improvement has not been recorded and is not indicated by any figures the board has obtained, it was expected that there would be a steady increase as the spring opens.

The United States department of labor's latest figures are as follows:

	Jan. 1, 1920.	Jan. 1, 1921.	Pct. now emp'd.
Industry
Packing, food	1,111,421	900,941	81
Clay, etc.	541,482	437,327	80.7
Metal	2,870,956	1,887,862	69,5
Lumber, products	793,424	538,766	67.8
Leather	417,209	271,931	65
Textile	1,819,590	1,175,086	64.5
Building trades	1,067,572	508,322	47.6
Autos, accessories	780,340	240,413	36.8

"These figures were obtained by the department of labor at a time when seasonal unemployment coincided with the lowest point of the business depression," said an official. "They may be taken to indicate the fullest extent of unemployment at its worst for the current year."

U.S. LABOR BOARD ASKED TO CALL RAILWAY CHIEFS

Unions See Attempt to End Wage Parleys.

The United States railroad labor board was asked last night to subpœna members of the labor committee of the Association of Railway Executives for examination as witnesses Thursday when the hearings reopen in the controversy over national working agreements.

The request was filed by B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employés' department of the American Federation of Labor, as an answer to the action of the executives at New York Friday in abolishing the labor committee, of which Gen. W. W. Atterbury has been chairman. This was construed in labor circles yesterday as indicating that the roads would decline to enter any conferences looking toward a settlement on national lines, the railroads taking the position that each carrier should have the right to conduct negotiations with its own employés.

A few days ago Mr. Jewell sent a letter to the labor board charging that originally a majority of the members of the executives' labor committee favored joining with the workers in establishing national boards of labor adjustment. In asking that the members be summoned as witnesses the idea is to go into this angle.

From the railroads last night came a set of figures that at present rates, the lines are running far below the 6 per cent return on which the advance in passenger and freight rates was based. They state that last September the return upon valuation was 4.1 per cent; in October, 4.6 per cent; in November, 3.3 per cent; in December, 1.2 per cent.

"In terms of dollars," says the statement," the railways to attain 6 per cent should have had a net income of $407,815,000 during these four months. They actually earned $233,110,000, which was short of 6 per cent by $175,000,000. The extent to which the railroads now or in the future may fail to earn a 6 per cent return represents a permanent loss; the desire to avoid which puts an effective pressure upon raiload management for the best economy and efficiency possible.

PROFESSIONAL MEN ALLOWED RELIEF ON INCOME TAX

The Tribune income tax bureau has many queries from professional men as to what constitute expenses in their profession. The official procedure in deducting professional expenses is outlined in the regulations in this language:

"A professional man may claim as deductions the cost of supplies used by him in the practice of his profession, expenses paid in the operation of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues to professional societies and subscriptions paid to professional journals, the rent paid for office rooms, the expense of the fuel, light, water, telephone, etc., used in such offices, and the hire of office assistants. Amounts expended for books, furniture, and professional instruments and equipment of a permanent character are not allowable as deductions."

However, depreciation may be deducted on the last named articles.

E. C. writes: "Am a married man, running a household, am supporting my aged father, who is also running a household and under a doctor's care. He has been in the hospital seven weeks, paying all fees and doctors, rents, and other miscellaneous bills. I am working overtime which brings me over the $2,000 mark. Am I allowed the deduction of the bills I am paying?"

REPLY.

If you are the chief support of your father you may take an exemption of $200.

SHIPPERS OPEN FIGHT ON HIGH RAILROAD RATES

Declaring they can no longer profitably ship goods and produce because of high freight rates, shippers of the midwest are about to take steps to force a showdown with the roads.

Attorney generals of eight midwestern states, delegates from industrial associations, and representatives of railroad labor and managements will attend a conference in Chicago March 14, which, it is hoped, will result in a general revival of freight shipping and a reduction in rates. The call for the meeting was issued yesterday by a group of Chicago and Illinois organizations and Attorney General Brundage.

"The present high level of freight rates has helped to demoralize business in the country," the invitation read. "Shipping has dropped off to such an extent that where there was a shortage of 100,000 cars a week this time last year, there is now an excess of approximately 340,000 cars weekly."

The meeting, Attorney Clifford Thorne, one of the signers of the call, declared, will not be antagonistic to railroads, but will seek to take action to relieve the situation and decide on a policy that will again start the wheels of commerce.

"Americans Fire on Us," Mexican Guards Complain

El Paso, Tex., March 5.—[United Press.]—Complaint was made tonight by R. Davilla, chief of the Mexican river guards, that American soldiers fired at a detachment of his men near Ysleta, Tex., about twelve miles southeast of here.

The statement said that the Americans fired from this side of the international boundary. It also added that while none of his men was injured, Davilla ordered his force to cover to save their lives.

American military headquarters here declared there were no troops at Ysleta.

Directors of Prominent Chicago Financial House Enjoy North American Food at Weekly Luncheons

Chicken Salad

If it is good it is one of the finest things in the world to eat. We want you to compare our Chicken Salad with that served by the most expensive hotels and restaurants. It is made from the tenderest, sweetest, white meat of a chicken and the portion we serve is a great big generous one . . . 50c

And of course it isn't the price that interests these gentlemen. They would very quickly patronize one of the many other restaurants in the city if they were not completely sold on the exceptional quality and cooking which have made the North American outstanding in Chicago's dining places.

Men who know tell us constantly that the North American is an unusual restaurant because its food matches that of the most expensive and exclusive hotels and restaurants and yet the prices are low.

You never hear the North American compared with any but the best restaurants and hotels in the land. Our patrons are the men and women who formerly dined regularly at the best hotels. They didn't change to the North American merely to save money. They are glad to do so, of course, and our Common Sense prices appeal to their good sense, but they know there is no better place to dine and that the food can't be beaten at any price.

Because it had courage enough and foresight enough to break away from costly and useless service the North American has become a rendezvous for the best business brains in Chicago. It has built up a remarkable clientele by serving good food at sensible prices.

The change to the Serve Yourself plan hasn't hurt it one bit. It is still the high-class restaurant it always has been. It is the same beautiful room, said by experts to be the best ventilated restaurant in Chicago, and you dine at your own table and are provided with snowy linen and glistening silver. The only difference is the prices are lower.

Prices Like These are making the North American Restaurant famous. And every portion we serve is a big generous one—often ample for two. The food can't be beaten anywhere at any price.

So that the Public May Know

The attacks made on our cabs late at night by members of a so-called taxi-cab company, are not due to "labor troubles" as has been stated, but to ordinary thuggery and a desire to intimidate our men who are getting the great bulk of public trade.

Nor is it a revival of a "taxi-cab" war. There can't be any war unless two sides are fighting. And the attitude of the YELLOW CAB has been wholly defensive. If some one blows up your store, or takes a shot at you on the street, you can't call it war. It is plain attack and assassination.

The YELLOW CAB is doing no fighting, and, owing to the character of the attacks, which come late at night when there are no passengers around, we have been almost powerless to defend ourselves and our property. Our men are not armed like these gangsters and products of the poolrooms, and whatever protection we are getting is through the police. The police sympathize with us and know the facts as we relate them here, and we feel that sooner or later they will stop these depredations.

The Attorney-General of Illinois has filed suit to dissolve this "Company," whose members are making these attacks, on the ground that it is a "fraudulent" concern. And only recently a Coroner's Jury of Cook County, sitting on a case where one of these peculiarly painted cabs killed a man, declared its system of membership "a subterfuge to avoid liability and financial responsibility."

The Competitive concern in question is NOT doing much business and our recent decrease in rates has angered them to the point of bombing our stations and attacking our cabs. They also realize that our first reduction of rates was only a start.

We can't indulge in revolver battles in the streets. Our responsibility is fixed and our Company is owned by well known citizens and business men of standing and integrity.

These are the facts. We do not want you to be misled. Hence these plain words.

CROWE PLEASED AS SMALL DENIES SLAYERS PARDON

3 Chicagoans Plead in Vain for Leniency.

Three Chicago prisoners were among fourteen convicted murderers denied pardons yesterday by Gov. Len Small. Thomas Inns Sr., Joseph Koestner, and Joseph Boush, serving terms for murders committed during the last six years, were the Chicago supplicants.

Inns, a veteran church janitor, was implicated in the killing of Louis Lichtenstein when robbers attempted to wrest $25,000 worth of diamonds from the victim in 1916. Inns was shot in the neck, but succeeded in avoiding the police net for days. He was sentenced to seventeen years in the penitentiary.

Killed Mother-in-Law.

Koestner was sentenced to life in the penitentiary for the murder of his mother-in-law in 1916.

The others refused commutation of sentence include Sam Seracusa, La Salle county; Joseph Causey, St. Claire county; George Morris, Jackson county, and Nathan Walston, Madison county.

Crowe Is Pleased.

"This strong policy on the part of Gov. Small will aid every court in the state in obtaining justice," said State's Attorney Crowe. "There may be cases where leniency is necessary, but the state executive has exhibited excellent judgment in his stand against coddling criminals."

Capitol Marble Room to Become Senators' Lounge

Washington, D. C., March 5.—The famous "marble room" adjoining the senate chamber is to be barred to visitors under the new Republican régime. In a caucus today Republican senators decided to use the room as a lounging place, like the house gold lobby, and to receive visitors in an adjacent room.

FARM NO GOLD MINE, REPORT OF U. S. SHOWS

Average Capital Return Is 5 Per Cent.

New York, Mach 5.—[Special.]—Considerable light is thrown on the question of farm profits in a bulletin just issued by the United States department of agriculture, giving the results of a study through a period of five to seven years of the business of 185 farms in three areas, one each in Ohio, Indiana, and Wisconsin. Live farm questions being asked by farmers and city folk alike with widely varying answers, include:

Are many farmers making large profits?

Are there many farmers who are making only a bare living?

How much do farmers make?

Have farmers' profits been greater during the recent years of relatively high prices for farm products than during former years of lower prices?

The Farmer's Income.

"The average farm income of twenty-five farmers in Palmer township, Washington county, O.," the bulletin says, "for the seven years 1912 to 1918 was $610, the labor income $276, and the return on the capital 4.6 per cent.

"The average farm income of sixty farmers in Forest and Johnson townships, Clinton county, Ind., for the seven years 1910 and 1913 to 1918 was $1,856, the labor income $558, and the return on capital 5.7 per cent.

"The average farm income of sixty farmers in Verona and adjacent townships, Dane county, Wis., for the five years 1913 to 1917 was $1,293, the labor income $408, and the return on the capital 4.7 per cent. This gives an average of 5 per cent.

Raise Part of Food.

"A considerable part of the farmers' living came directly from the farm. In the Ohio area the value of the items food, fuel, and house rent furnished by the farm was estimated at $350 per farm for the seven year average, increasing from $300 in 1912 to $494 in 1918; in the Indiana area the value of these items was estimated at $425 per farm, increasing from $356 in 1910 to $620 in 1918; in the Wisconsin area the five year average value of these items was $391, increasing from $351 in 1913 to $525 in 1917.

"None of the 185 farmers in these three areas made as much as $1,000 labor income every year. Four [2 per cent] made over $500 labor income every year, one each in the Ohio and Indiana areas, and two in the Wisconsin area. Thirty-three farmers [18 per cent] failed to make a $500 labor income in any year of the period—ten each in the Ohio and Indiana areas and thirteen in the Wisconsin area.

"From the study of the profits of the farms in the three areas," the bulletin says in conclusion, "we have seen that the incomes of most farmers were much higher during the last few years than for previous years. In this connection it must be remembered, however, that the increase in income is more apparent than real because of the decreased purchasing power of the dollar."

Forty Cities to Confer on Automobile Theft Evil

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—With a view to coping with automobile bandits and other criminals operating in the metropolitan district Police Commissioner Enright has sent invitations to heads of police departments of forty cities and communities within 100 miles of the city to attend a conference next Tuesday. The proposition pertaining to federal legislation needed to bring about a central police bureau in Washington will be gone into fully.

LANDIS ORDERS BOOZE SALE AT RAINBO STOPPED

A temporary injunction restraining the owners of the Rainbo Gardens from further liquor sales was granted yesterday by Judge Landis on the petition of Assistant District Attorney Myer Linker. This is the second time in the last six months that Fred Mann, owner of the gardens, has been in trouble in the federal courts.

He was indicted on charges of possessing and selling whisky early in December after agents of Frank D. Richardson, federal dry chief, had raided his café and seized two truck loads of whisky.

Violation of the temporary injunction carries a jail sentence of one year and a fine of $1,000. Hearing on the writ asking for permanent closing of the gardens will be heard next month.

Hoboken Nabs Alleged Bond Robber from Detroit

New York, March 5.—Carl Lordy, alias Frank Wells, was arrested in Hoboken late today as one of six robbers involved in the theft of $180,000 from a bank at Wyomissing, Pa., on Feb. 4. Lordy, according to the police, also is wanted in Detroit in connection with the killing of two detectives and a hold-up of a bond broker's office.

Why the Oakland Outperforms Other Cars in its Field

A condensed statement of the causes of that competent, reliable and economical performance for which Oakland Cars are everywhere known

As Oakland owners well know, the performing qualities of the Oakland Sensible Six are little short of sensational in so moderately priced a car.

Its action is distinguished by that smoothness, quietness and pronounced flexibility that only the highly developed six-cylinder overhead-valve engine can give.

It has likewise that instant acceleration, that positive and easy response to control, found only in the properly engineered and carefully built chassis.

And finally, it has that sustained economy, of gasoline, tires and maintenance alike, that is possible only from a lightweight and scientifically designed car.

The Source of Oakland Power

The real basis of the superior performance of the Oakland Sensible Six car is ample power efficiently applied.

The source of this power is the six-cylinder Oakland engine of overhead-valve design, the type used in all airplane and racing car engines.

Contributing to the efficiency of this engine are very light but strong reciprocating parts which reduce bearing loads and minimize vibration, a superior method of vaporizing fuel, and the best lubricating system yet devised.

These and other individual features enable the Oakland engine to deliver a full 44 horsepower, far more than is delivered by other engines of similar size.

The Source of Oakland Economy

Supplementing the efficiency of the Oakland engine is the remarkably practical Oakland chassis, which embodies immense strength without a single pound of needless weight.

This chassis reflects in every detail the latest accepted engineering practice, while its lightness contributes importantly to Oakland operating economy.

It helps the Oakland owner enjoy more miles from the gallon of gasoline, more power per pound of car weight, quicker getaway, easier hill-climbing and greater flexibility, than are available in any other car at anywhere near the Oakland price.

It assists in delivering the Oakland owner a measure of combined efficiency and low cost from his car that in our opinion no other automobile can rival.

The Assurance of Oakland Worth

The Company that builds the Oakland is the world's seventh largest manufacturer of automobiles, and is an important unit of the General Motors Corporation, the largest automobile producing organization on earth.

The Oakland car being manufactured today has behind it as an endorsement, the record of more than 200,000 other Oaklands already satisfactorily serving owners.

These owners report returns from their cars of from 18 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and from 8,000 to 12,000 miles on tires.

Surely the value, ability and economy of the Oakland, and the record of reliable service behind it, recommend that you have an early demonstration of this car.

A GUIDE FOR CAR BUYERS

Use this chart to tabulate the specifications of the cars you are considering. See how the Oakland, feature by feature, outranks other cars selling at anywhere near its price.

CAPITAL GIVES HIGHEST HONOR TO CHAMP CLARK

Tribute Paid Memory of Dead Chief.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Champ Clark, Democratic leader of the house, former speaker and leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination for many ballots at Baltimore in 1912, who died here Thursday at the close of a long congressional career, received a remarkable tribute today at funeral ceremonies held in the hall of the house of representatives.

Members of the United State senate, the Supreme court of the United States, foreign diplomats, members of the cabinet in both outgoing and incoming administrations, and high officials of the army and the navy, including Gen. Pershing, gathered in the house chamber to hear eulogies over the body of Champ Clark.

The cabinet members were led in by former Secretary Daniels. Members of the diplomatic corps followed Ambassador Jusserand of France.

Eulogy Given by Mann.

Addresses of eulogy were made by Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, who was Republican floor leader during the time that Champ Clark presided as speaker, and by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

During the exercises Champ Clark's widow and son, with a small party of relatives, occupied seats to the left of the speaker's desk, while the Supreme court sat in the right.

After the exercises in the house the casket was opened, and remained so for an hour, during which time there was a continuous procession to take a last view of the Democratic leader.

Representative Mann paid a feeling tribute to the former speaker, reviewing their associations as opposing party leaders.

Loved Even by Strangers.

"Those who knew him best loved him most," Mr. Mann said, "and yet there are millions who never saw his countenance—molded like a Greek statue—who never heard his voice, who loved him, too.

"A great legislator, a wonderful parliamentary debater, a strong partisan, but always a stanch friend and believer in the plain, simple citizen. He was a plain, simple man himself, whose ideals reached to the sky, but whose feet never left the ground."

REAL ESTATE NEWS

ALLEY THEATER NEWEST NORTH SIDE PLAYHOUSE

Garage to Be Made Into Tiny Auditorium.

BY AL CHASE.

Back yard playgoing on the north side will receive fresh impetus soon, when Chicago's newest playhouse, the Alley theater, a 200 seat midget place of amusement, is opened in the rear of 1160 North Dearborn street. Architect Robert Dwen is now working on the plans, which will convert the garage in the rear of the one time John N. Jewett residence into one of the most luxurious of our several "little theaters." Mr. Dwen plans to have it ready about April 15.

On that date the Lyceum Arts conservatory, now in the Lyon & Healy building in the loop, will move its music and dramatic school into the twenty-two room Jewett residence. It will use the Alley theater for its students, but the playhouse also will be given over to public performances of various sorts.

Elias Day, president of the conservatory, purchased the Jewett residence from Mrs. Phillipina Simpson, through Harold Bradley & Co., for a reported $39,000. The lot is 41x150.

Rent Boost Brings Move.

"We were notified that our office rent in the loop was to be raised from $280 a month to $550, and we felt we had to move," said Mr. Day. "Some idea of the beauty of the old residence we've bought can be formed when one knows that Mrs. Simpson recently was offered $3,000 for the hand carved mahogany stair railing which runs to the third floor. The house couldn't be duplicated for $150,000 today. The woodwork, fireplaces, and decorations are of the most elaborate and substantial sort."

The conservatory's 450 students are from twenty-four different states. The school has a dormitory in Pine Grove avenue, between Surf and Diversey, and will use the upper floor of its new home on the north side for dormitory purposes.

Brick Walk to Theater.

As the Alley theater is only fifty feet south of Division street, alley playgoers will enter the tiny playhouse from that street as well as from Dearborn. A brick paved walk, lighted by antique, wrought iron lanterns, will extend from Division street along the alley to the theater's main entrance, in the rear.

The late John N. Jewett, former owner of the residence, came to Chicago in the fifties and was one of the city's best known attorneys. He was president of the Chicago Historical society. His wife was one of the founders of the Fortnightly club and the Antiquarian Society of Chicago.

Club to Move North.

Another recently reported addition to the rapidly growing north side music and art colony, a couple of blocks south of the Alley theater, is the new home of the Palette and Chisel club at 1012 North Dearborn street. This old time residence, 60x150, was bought for a reported $35,000, through the Bowes Realty company, from Hannah Hynes Maloney, title being taken by David L. Adams, president of the club. The organization, now at 59 East Van Buren street, will move north on May 1.

Vacuum Oil Leases South Side Du Pont Warehouse

The Vacuum Oil Company of New York has leased from Henry F. Du Pont, represented by Elliott S. Rice, the four story concrete warehouse at Ford street and Union avenue, for fifteen years from May 1, at a reported term rental of $236,250. The building contains 52,500 square feet of floor space. A one story garage for the lessee's trucks will be built by Mr. Du Pont near by in Twenty-second street and leased for the same period at a term rental of $22,500. J. A. Prassel & Co. represented all parties as brokers.

Interior Decorators Buy Old Boul Mich Residence

After being at 1216 South Michigan avenue for the last thirty-two years, Spierling & Linden, interior decorators, furnishers and art glass manufacturers, have purchased from Margaret E. Enders, the three story residence at 1628 South Michigan for a reported $18,000. The lot is 22½x192. The buyers will remodel the building at a cost of $30,000, and occupy it as their permanent place of business. Hyde W. Perce was broker.

Economist Moves Offices to North End of the Loop

"The Economist," after many years in the Woman's Temple, La Salle and Monroe streets, last week moved its editorial offices farther north to 112 North La Salle street, opposite the city hall.

Some Leases

Hulbert & Co. have leased space in the Chamberlain building at 325 South Market street for the establishment of western headquarters of a large eastern concern, the M. & P. Corset company; for the Richardson Silk company, represented by Albert H. Wetten & Co., space on the third floor of the Mercantile building to the Model Brassiere company, Inc., for five years at a term rental of $18,000.

GRAHAM, ANDERSON, PROBST & WHITE ARCHTS.

Above is now the new home of the State Bank of Chicago will look. Plans have been drawn by Architects Graham, Anderson, Probst & White for a 260 foot structure to be erected at the southwest corner of La Salle and Monroe streets, where the Woman's temple now stands, as soon as building conditions warrant. The bank is now occupying rented quarters in the Chamber of Commerce at the southeast corner of La Salle and Washington streets, where it has been for many years.

$1,000,000 LABOR TEMPLE PLANNED BY CLOTHING WORKERS

Ashland boulevard is fast becoming a street of labor temples. The newest addition contemplated is a $1,000,000 six story building to be erected, probably within a year, by members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, at the northwest corner of Adams and Ashland.

According to present plans it will be devoted entirely to the clothing workers, for headquarters and club rooms. There will be a gymnasium, swimming pool, billiard room, library and possibly a bank of their own on the first floor. There will be no outside interests in the building. An architect has not yet been selected.

The site, fronting 125 feet on Ashland and 200 on Adams, improved with the Stockbridge apartment building containing twenty-four flats, and five stone front residences, was purchased from Walter D. Wilcox and Annie Aline Halstead by Joseph Padorr, representing the Clothing Workers, for a reported $80,000. E. Woltersdorf & Co. were the brokers. Peter Sissman and Clarence Darrow represented the buyers as legal advisers, and Spencer L. Adams represented the sellers.

Apartment Sales

Following are several good sized apartment house deals closed during the last week but left out of the daily real estate column because of lack of space:

Silas C. Hopkins of Joliet purchased from William E. Meyers, Frank T. Zino, and Joseph S. Wise the twenty-four flat building at the northwest corner of Madison street and Scoville avenue, Oak Park, for an indicated $100,300, subject to $70,300. The lot is 158x150.

The forty-two apartment building at 7230-7248 Harvard avenue has been sold by Francis O. Pich to Eli A. Rysdon for a reported $125,000, subject to $87,000. J. W. Barney and C. V. Bronell were brokers.

The thirty flat building at 1416-28 Lunt avenue, lot 115x172, has been sold by August H. Skoglund to Eric E. Skoglund for an indicated $130,000, subject to $85,000.

The fifteen flat building at the southwest corner of Pine Grove avenue and Gary place has been sold by Lui S. Lande of Flint, Mich., to Edward J. and William J. Birk for a reported $59,000, subject to $48,000. C. & R. Rauschert and K. R. Beak & Co. were brokers.

The six flat building at 5221-23 Winthrop avenue, lot 50x150, has been sold by John Blaine to Jacob C. Darfler, through Frank K. Reilley & Co., for an indicated $52,500, subject to $15,500.

S. A. Simons has bought from Harry Holton the six apartment building at 5512-5516 University avenue, lot 60x170, for a reported $35,000, subject to $15,000. T. D. O'Hern of John A. Carroll & Bro. was broker.

The eighteen flat building at the southeast corner of Michigan avenue and Forty-ninth street, lot 50x160, has been sold by Abraham J. Franks to William T. Webster for an indicated $57,500.

BUILDS PLANT IN 72 WORKING DAYS.

In celebration of the completion in seventy-two working days of its $270,000 plant at 201-239 West Sixty-third street, the National Plumbing and Heating Supply company will hold a reception tomorrow evening, with speeches, music, and refreshments, in the new buildings. An imposing list of speakers is given on the invitation. Holton, Seelye & Co. built the plant, which covers two acres. L. E. Russell was architect.

ALL SET FOR BIG SKYSCRAPER FOR LA SALLE STREET

Here is an example of how prospective Chicago builders are marking time while waiting for some one to act or something to happen which will bring down the cost of construction. The State Bank of Chicago, now in the Chamber of Commerce building, has had plans drawn by Architects, Graham, Anderson, Probst & White for a $2,500,000 twenty-one story bank and office building, to supplant the present Woman's temple at the southwest corner of La Salle and Monroe streets. A building permit was taken out a few days ago.

But—and this but is a whopper—work isn't going to start until building conditions improve. According to Architect Peirce Anderson of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, a strong hope is felt in the breasts of the architects that something is going to happen during the next two months to construction costs.

Impossible to Build Now.

"The bank finds it impossible to build at today's figures and consider it a good investment," said Mr. Anderson. "But if things change materially and we feel they may inside of sixty days, wrecking the temple will begin at once and the new bank should be completed in about a year's time."

The site is almost the geographical center of the La Salle and Monroe street banking district. The building will front 190 feet on La Salle and 98 feet on Monroe, and will have about 425 offices. The bank will use the basement for safe deposit vaults. The savings, bond, and real estate departments will be on the ground floor, and the main banking department will occupy a two storied room comprising the second and third floors. There will be bank offices on the mezzanine floor. Additional office space will be cared for in upper stories as the bank grows.

Site Value Grows.

The increasing value of the site is shown in an offer recently received by the bank of $500,000 over the amount paid for the property.

Automobile Body Factory for the Northwest Side

Ground will be broken this week for a one story factory to contain 13,200 square feet of floor space and to cost $40,000, on Armitage avenue, 125 feet of north frontage, seventy feet east of Harding avenue, for the manufacture of automobile bodies and wagons. Orlanda A. Pecchia, who bought the site from R. F. Summers and Mrs. Charles A. Pierce of Elgin, will lease half of the factory space to Aloys J. Herweg, an automobile body and wagon painter. Mills & Sons were the brokers.

Oakley Theater Owners Quit the Show Business

The Oakley theater, at 2320 West Chicago avenue, corner of Oakley avenue, has been sold by the Flower and Meyer Amusement company to Salo Auerbach for a reported $75,000 subject to $50,000. The sellers are abandoning the show business. The Barnett and Bluhm company was broker.

$250,000 TODDLE PALACE FOR NORTH SIDE TROT EXPERTS

With nearly every one learning to toddle, it's only to be expected that toddling space must be provided for our increase in dancing population. Plans for several unusually elaborate fox trotteries are being drawn, but the first to reach the construction stage is the $250,000 ballroom at 3136-48 Sheffield avenue, work on which has just started.

Architects B. Leo Steif & Co. designed it for the Kendallund Amusement company after the Spanish renaissance. It will be operated by Jack Lund and Ethel Kendall, who now have the Merry Garden ballroom at the northwest corner of Cottage Grove and Sixty-first, one time the main dance hall in old Sans Souci.

The new north side ballroom will accommodate 2,000 couples. The building will be 150x125. In addition to dancing space the two story building will have a store on each side of the main entrance. The Union Bank of Chicago has underwritten a bond issue of $120,000. Jack Lund and Frederick A. Siebold Jr. took title to the site at an indicated consideration of $45,000. Emma Knoll and others were the grantors.

News of the Architects

Koenigsberg and Simon, architects and engineers, moved their offices on March 1 from the Hartford building to suite 1305, Tacoma building, 5 North La Salle street.

Adds Shakespeare Movie to Chain of Theaters

H. Schoenstadt & Sons, who now operate seven moving picture theaters in Chicago, have just purchased the ninety-nine year leasehold at the northwest corner of Forty-third street and Ellis avenue, consisting of twelve flats, nine stores, fifteen offices, and the 1,000 seat Shakespeare theater.

The price is not stated, but is understood to be approximately $150,000, subject to a first mortgage of $60,000 and a second of $55,000. The present lease on the playhouse expires May 1, 1922, when the new lessees will add it to their chain of houses, which includes the Atlantic, Boulevard, Halfield, Archer, Brighton, and two smaller theaters.

The assignment of the ninety-nine year lease was from Edward Browarsky, who is lessee under a lease from Caswell A. Sharpe, owner of the fee. Lewis F. Jacobson of Jacobson, Bays & Tompkins represented all parties.

If You're Interested in Building, Read This Item

If you're interested in the latest ideas in new houses and gardens and building in general, then you'll surely want to attend the Thirty-fourth Annual Architectural exhibition at the Art Institute beginning next Tuesday and continuing for several weeks. There'll be pictures of practically every new building of importance erected in Chicago recently and those contemplated. Photographs of the exteriors and interiors of most of the new Chicago and suburban residences of merit will be shown and prospective builders will get many good ideas for their homes. A private view will be held tomorrow from 5 to 10 p. m.

NOW—WHILE THEY CAN BE HAD

The dreams and fables of the past are a living reality today!

The hearts and minds of humanity are ever seeking enjoyment, pleasures and amusements amid pure and pleasant surroundings.

Ancient Rome, in the height of her glory, with her lavish entertainments, Olympian Games, Chariot Races and other varied forms of amusements for her people, all were gross and immoral, as compared with the highly interesting, instructive, intellectual and intensely enjoyable, modern Moving Picture Entertainment, as exemplified nightly at the Tivoli Theater.

The Tivoli Theater is second in seating capacity—but first in beauty and classiness, on the American Continent. Newspapers have lauded it to the skies as marking an "Epoch" in the history of architectural beauty, and the quintessence of purity and genius in intellectual amusement for the entire family. Its success is already attested by the overwhelming crowds that have flocked to it from every section of Chicago and its environs.

These First Mortgage Serial Gold Bonds, with interest coupons attached, are in $100, $500 and $1,000 denominations.

Price: Par and accrued interest.

Bonds are dated November 1st, 1919, with interest payable semi-annually, May 1st and November 1st.

Any additional information with illustrated circular about the Tivoli Theater and its Bonds will be mailed on request.

Owing to the popularity of this investment, we advise an immediate response to this announcement to avoid any possible disappointment.

GRAINS DIP ON SELLING WAVE, LED BY WHEAT

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Increased selling pressure and a lessened buying power took the bull edge off the grain market and, while the lowest prices were not held on wheat, the coarse grains finished at the inside, with net losses of 1⅝c to 2c on wheat, ½c on corn, ¼c to ½c on oats, 1¼c to 1½c on rye, and 2c on barley.

The week witnessed stronger and higher markets for five days, with a setback at the last, which was only natural with more selling pressure and a reduction in the short interest. Closing trade, compared with a week ago, showed wheat up 3@5½c, March being the weakest; corn, 1¼@2¾c higher; oats 1¼@1½c, rye 4@4¼c, barley, 2c, pork 60c, lard 15@17½c, and ribs 27½@32½c higher.

Cash Wheat Weakens.

A break of 3@5c in cash wheat; with hard winter premiums 1c, and soft reds 1@2c lower, while spring wheats were hard to sell, combined with predictions of rains for a good part of the winter wheat country, offset the effect of all bullish news. The markets felt the effect of the reduction in the urgent buying, which has been a feature, and in the increased selling pressure, which more than overbalanced the reports of high and dry winds and the numerous green bug reports from Kansas and Oklahoma.

There was enough selling by a few local longs, openly and through brokers, to carry prices down 2½c from the close of Friday. Local professionals bought early, following the commission houses, and sold out later when they saw the non-response to the bullish news. After the decline came a rally of nearly 1c, with a close ⅝c over the inside.

Trading was the largest in May, which ranged $1.61¾@1.63¼. There was selling of March and buying of May credited to leading elevator interests.

Receipts show good gains over last year.

Light Trade in Corn.

Corn was on the market and the support was poorer. Brokers who led the selling early were buyers later on the decline. May broke from 72c to 71⅜c and finished around the low point. It was not a large market at any time; in fact, brokers said it was the smallest of the week. Country offerings were not heavy and purchases to arrive not large. One house bought only 500 bu at fifty stations in Illinois and Iowa. One house loaded out 2,000,000 bu for export during the week.

Oats felt the effect of the heavy covering on Friday. Hedging of small lots and poor support carried prices down ⅜c and made at tame close. Green bug reports were without effect. Seeding operations are said to be nearly completed in the south and southwest and are advancing in southern Illinois.

Rye weakened with wheat, with slow business in cash and futures and with no buying of consequence.

Provision Trade Light.

A light business was on in provisions, with limited fluctuations. The bulk of the trading was at the opening. At the finish pork was 20c lower, lard unchanged, and ribs unchanged to 5c lower. Packing here since March 1 shows 135,000 hogs or 19,000 more than last year. Shipments of lard and meats for the week were 31,032,000 lbs, against 30,314,000 lbs last year. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

If good rains should cover the winter wheat states today and tomorrow, lower prices are expected for wheat. If there are no rains traders are looking for an advance. The local short interest has been increased and the professionals held less wheat at the close yesterday than for several days, while commission houses were estimated as having increased their holdings. The market is extremely nervous. Wheat is headed to Chicago from outside markets. Cancellation of receipts for the week were 115,000 bu. Receipts for the week, however, of 324,000 bu, compared with shipments of 175,000 bu.

Winnipeg reported a fair cash demand for round lots of No. 2 and No. 3 northern at ½c better than Friday's close. Car lots are coming out fairly. A message from there says the demand will have to improve materially to maintain present premiums, should prices advance to around $2 for No. 1 northern.

From the character of the corn trade it is said leading holders had reduced their lines on the early bulge, but took most of it back at a small decline. A traveling man who was out in the country the last week said the bulk of the corn in Illinois that has been sold to raise money is nearly through coming to market, and this week is expected to see a lighter movement at the last. He believes that farmers will hold their corn back after the next ten days and that there will be no heavy run until after the planting season. By that time he believes that farmers will have to become accustomed to the readjusted conditions and sell freely.

Shipments of clover and timothy seed from Chicago since January 1, aggregate 15,660,000 lbs, or 333,000 lbs more than last year, which were unusually large. Receipts of 12,700,000 lbs show a decrease of 6,000,000 lbs from last year. There has been a big demand for timothy and clover for seeding down this year which has largely exceeded recent years.

Receipts of corn at Chicago Monday are not expected to materially exceed 700 cars, as only three of the railroads ordered out inspection crews for work Sunday.

CORN MOVEMENT LARGE

Movement of corn from the country is the heaviest in recent years, with the exception of 1918. Chicago received 5,358,000 bu last week, or 1,800,000 bu more than the previous week and 3,188,000 in excess of last year. Total receipts of all grains of 7,503,000 bu increased 2,314,000 bu for the week and exceeded last year's by 3,200,000 bu, and were 2,200,000 bu in excess of the five year average.

At primary points receipts of corn were 10,880,000 bu, compared with 12,849,000 bu in 1918. They exceeded the previous week by 4,417,000 bu and last year's by 5,150,000 bu. Wheat receipts gained 1,684,000 bu over last year, and oats lost 1,412,000 bu. Total primary receipts were 2,540,000 bu above the average, being 20,093,000 bu.

There is a tightening in the box car situation on a few of the western roads, as well as on eastern lines, who are doing more business in grain, handling 3,943,000 bu out of Chicago last week, an increase of 994,000 bu over the previous week and 1,530,000 bu over last year.

The New York Central has received 1,000 steel 100,000 pound box cars and 500 steel forty foot automobile cars.

Armour Leather Dividend Paid by Parent Company

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Armour Leather company, held yesterday, no action was taken in regard to the preferred dividend, but an arrangement was effected with Armour & Co., the founders, that upon receipt of a warrant (to be sent to each stockholder of record on the books of the company at the close of business on March 15, 1921) assigning to it the rights of the present and future holder of such stock to preferred stock dividend No. 5 when declared, properly signed and witnessed, Armour & Co. will on April 1, 1921, or as soon thereafter as reasonably possible, send a check to such stockholder for the full amount of dividend of $1.75 per share.

So far as is known this is the first time one concern has voluntarily offered to pay the dividends of another affiliated company.

U. S. Worsted Co. Loses $5,344,093 for 1920

Boston, Mass., March 5.—The United States Worsted company in 1920 suffered an operating deficit after charges and taxes of $5,344,093, compared with net profits of $2,073,552 in the previous year. President Andrew Adie said a plan had been suggested for depository banks to extend the company's obligations pending liquidation of its inventory.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

The British commission was reported as in the market for cash wheat, but intimated it would pay about 5c per bu less than exporters could secure the grain. Argentine wheat, however, was quoted at about 10c under domestic via the gulf, so that the bids were regarded as very significant. Flour sales were 16,000 brls in the last two days. Exporters secured 270,000 bu corn in the west, with the seaboard reporting 160,000 bu sold abroad.

Domestic shipping sales at Chicago were 12,000 bu wheat, 20,000 bu corn, and 60,000 bu oats.

Minneapolis offered dark No. 3 northern wheat for shipment to Chicago on the basis of 5@6c under the March, while bids were 7½@8c under the latter, a full delivery basis. Offers from Kansas City were out of line. Omana is consigning wheat to Chicago, 10 cars of No. 2 hard being received during the day and sold at 1½@2c over March. Premiums on hard winter were 1c lower. Receipts, 29 cars. Outside markets were weaker, with prices 1@3c lower.

Cash corn prices were unchanged early, but the finish was ½c lower, with No. 4 yellow and white at 7½@8¼c under the May, and No. 3 yellow 4@5½c under. Receipts, 286 cars. Outside markets were generally ½c lower.

Offerings of cash oats were not large, 86 cars, and sold at unchanged prices early, and ¼c lower later, with No. 2 white ¼c under and No. 3 white 1c under the May.

RESERVE BANKS PASS SEASONAL CREDIT DEMAND

BY O. A. MATHER.

The ease with which the country passed through the March settlement period and met the current payment of federal taxes is shown in the weekly statements of the federal reserve banks, issued yesterday. Also it is evident that liquidation is continuing, while at the same time there has not been enough of business revival to inspire new credit demands to any degree.

Thus, the consolidated statement of the twelve Federal Reserve banks shows a decline in loans of $54,749,000, those on government obligations and those on commercial paper receding $22,135,000 and $32,614,000, respectively. Bills purchased also declined $6,499,000, so that total bills on hand receded $61,248,000. This marks a reduction of about $475,000,000 from the high mark of November, whereas in the same period last year there was an expansion of $269,000,000.

Credit Deflation Substantial.

This substantial deflation of credit was accompanied by a reduction of $4,216,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation, which now is $362,000,000 below the Christmas week figure and about $27,000,000 below a year ago. Gross deposits declined $9,101,000, including a drop of $6,043,000 in government deposits. Gold reserves expanded $22,777,000, but, owing to a recession in subsidiary currency, total reserves increased only $18,764,000. The member banks' reserve account receded $17,528,000. Total earning assets dropped $65,066,000.

As a result of these changes, the ratio of total reserves to net deposits and Federal Reserve note liabilities combined rose to 50.8 from 49.9 per cent in the preceding week, now standing at the highest figure since September, 1919, and 8¼ per cent higher than a year ago. The ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposits, rose to 59.3 from 58.1 per cent in the preceding week.

Large Cities Make Gains.

The statements of the New York and Chicago Federal Reserve banks were in keeping with the improvement shown by the system as a whole. The New York institution showed a decline in loans of $36,235,313, those on government obligations and those on commercial paper receding $19,747,734 and $16,487,579, respectively. Bills bought increased $6,388,764, so that total bills on hand declined $29,846,550. Total earning assets receded $27,854,550. The member banks lowered their reserve account $5,311,223.

Gross deposits declined $21,272,335, but Federal Reserve note circulation increased $5,533,350. Gold reserves expanded $24,993,766, while total reserves increased $23,209,582. The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and Federal Reserve note liabilities combined rose to 42.2 from 40.5 per cent in the preceding week. This is the highest percentage since last September and only 1½ per cent below the high mark of 1920.

Chicago Reduces Loans.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reduced its loans by $17,150,457, with those on government obligations remaining about unchanged. Total bills on hand receded $18,046,389. Total earning assets receded $18,061,889. The member banks lowered their reserve account by $2,704,038. Gross deposits expanded $10,832,137, including an increase in government deposits of $4,171,766. Federal Reserve note circulation declined $1,848,915. Gold reserves expanded $6,595,038, but subsidiary currency declined $3,499,000, so that total reserves increased $3,096,038. The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and Federal Reserve note liabilities combined rose to 51.6 from 50.2 per cent in the preceding week.

Clearing Banks' Reserve Off.

The statement of the New York clearing house banks makes a disappointing showing. The excess reserve fell $10,357,330 and now stands at $3,983,650, a purely nominal figure. This decrease was primarily the result of the member banks lowering their reserves at the Federal Reserve bank by $7,641,000. Aggregate reserves declined $7,622,000. Loans receded $17,782,000. Demand and time deposits increased $21,415,000 and $1,914,000, respectively. Government deposits receded $13,815,000. The figures follow:

·CHICAGO·STOCK·TRANSACTIONS·

Trading in Chicago stocks yesterday was the dullest for any week-end session in many months. If there could be said to be any trend, it was upward. The largest turnover was 535 shares in Union Carbide, which was fractionally higher. The packing house issues were irregular. Middle West Utilities preferred was up 2½ points, Godchaux Sugars, 2; Peoples Gas, 1½; and Shaw, Shaw rights and Quaker Oats preferred, a point each.

The New York Times.

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—As measured by actual transactions, today's stock market fell to the lowest level of activity since last summer, and there were virtually no changes in prices except trifling fractions. The market was reflective neither of passing news developments nor yet of a positive technical position calling for initiative in any direction.

There was active buying in Reading, which imparted some strength to the rest of the railroad group. Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies also was in demand. Copper descriptions were a bit heavy. Firmness underlay the market as a whole.

Foreign Situation Improves.

No particular interest was displayed in price movements and brokerage houses were virtually deserted. General approval was heard of President Harding's inaugural utterances, although they could scarcely be regarded in any sense as a market factor.

Improvement in the foreign situation was noted and it was assumed that Germany would have a new and less preposterous offer to make to the allied powers on Monday in obedience to the British prime minister's ultimatum. However, this, like Mr. Harding's induction into office, was to be accepted as something on which to base hope for the future rather than market commitments at the present. Evidently operations against the week end recess were completed yesterday, and nothing was left to be done today save a few odds and ends.

Week Shows Irregular Course.

The net changes for the whole week were exceedingly irregular. Declines predominated, but with a very considerable list of net advances also, running in many stocks to several points, and the same was true of bonds.

Foreign exchange ended the week with moderate declines, mostly recovered before the close. The only financial movement of today positive enough to attract attention was another half penny decline in silver at London to 30⅝ pence per ounce, the lowest price since the summer of 1916. The decline from the high point of February, 1920, has now been 66 per cent, a fall half as violent again as the average decline in commodities.

CHICAGO CURB STOCKS

Little interest was displayed in the local unlisted securities market, prices with few exceptions being steady. Butler Bros. declined to sales at 34, but improved at the close to 34½ bid, offered at 35. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was traded in between 37 and 39, while Inland Steel was unchanged at 41½@43½. The announcement of the passing of the dividend on Moline Plow preferred had no effect on the market, sales being made as high as 41, closing at 40@42. Goodyear Tire and Rubber preferred was slightly lower, sales ranging between 29 and 32, closing at 30@31. The common improved fractionally to 13¼ bid, offered at 14.

Continental led the motors in volume of trade, declining to 5⅛ on the announcement of the passing of the dividend, but later improved to sales at 6⅛, closing at 6. Paige-Detroit was traded in between 20 and 20½. Packard common improved fractionally to 11⅛ bid, 11½ asked. Stearns changed hands between 22 and 23. McCord common was actively traded in between 5½ and 7, closing with a net loss of a point at 6@6¼.

The sugar issues were easier, Holland-St. Louis declining to sales at 7¾; at the close the stock was offered at 8, with small lots wanted at 7¾. Columbia was firm at 11¾@12½, while Michigan was unchanged at 7¾@8.

Public utility sales were as follows: American Light and Traction common, 9½@11; preferred, 81@83. Cities Service common, 235@238; preferred, 67½@68. Commonwealth Power common, 13@14; preferred, 33¼@35. Northern States Power common, 48@49; preferred, 80@81. Standard Gas common, 11¾@13¼; preferred, 35½@35¾. United Light common, 23@23½; preferred, 57@57¼.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, March 5.—Bar silver, 30⅝d an ounce. Money, 5¾ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 7 per cent; three months bills, 6⁹⁄₁₆@6⅝ per cent.

PARIS.—Prices were firm on the bourse today. Three per cent rentes, 58fr 92c. Exchange on London, 54fr 40c. Five per cent loan, 83fr 93c. The dollar was quoted at 13fr 93c.

Character

Character is the thing that cannot be swerved from its purpose; it is what makes men powerful and nations great. Character is the force that rebuilds a business from the ashes of failure; it is that quality, above all others, that makes a man of value to the world.

The Engineer's whole training develops character. His analytical and constructive thinking have made easier and more effective nearly all the activities of human life. Although his work has been largely unrecognized, his character has ever kept him at his task.

This name that we bear, and this profession in which we are engaged, has character.

If your business deserves a housing that means character, we can give it.

New Issues

The first two months of 1921 have offered unprecedented investment opportunities. An unusual amount of long term bond issues with high yields have been readily absorbed by investors. Short term security holders have been quick to realize the opportunities, and many have converted their securities into long term issues. We are glad to submit suggestions for such trades. Among the new issues, we recommend the following as especially attractive investments:

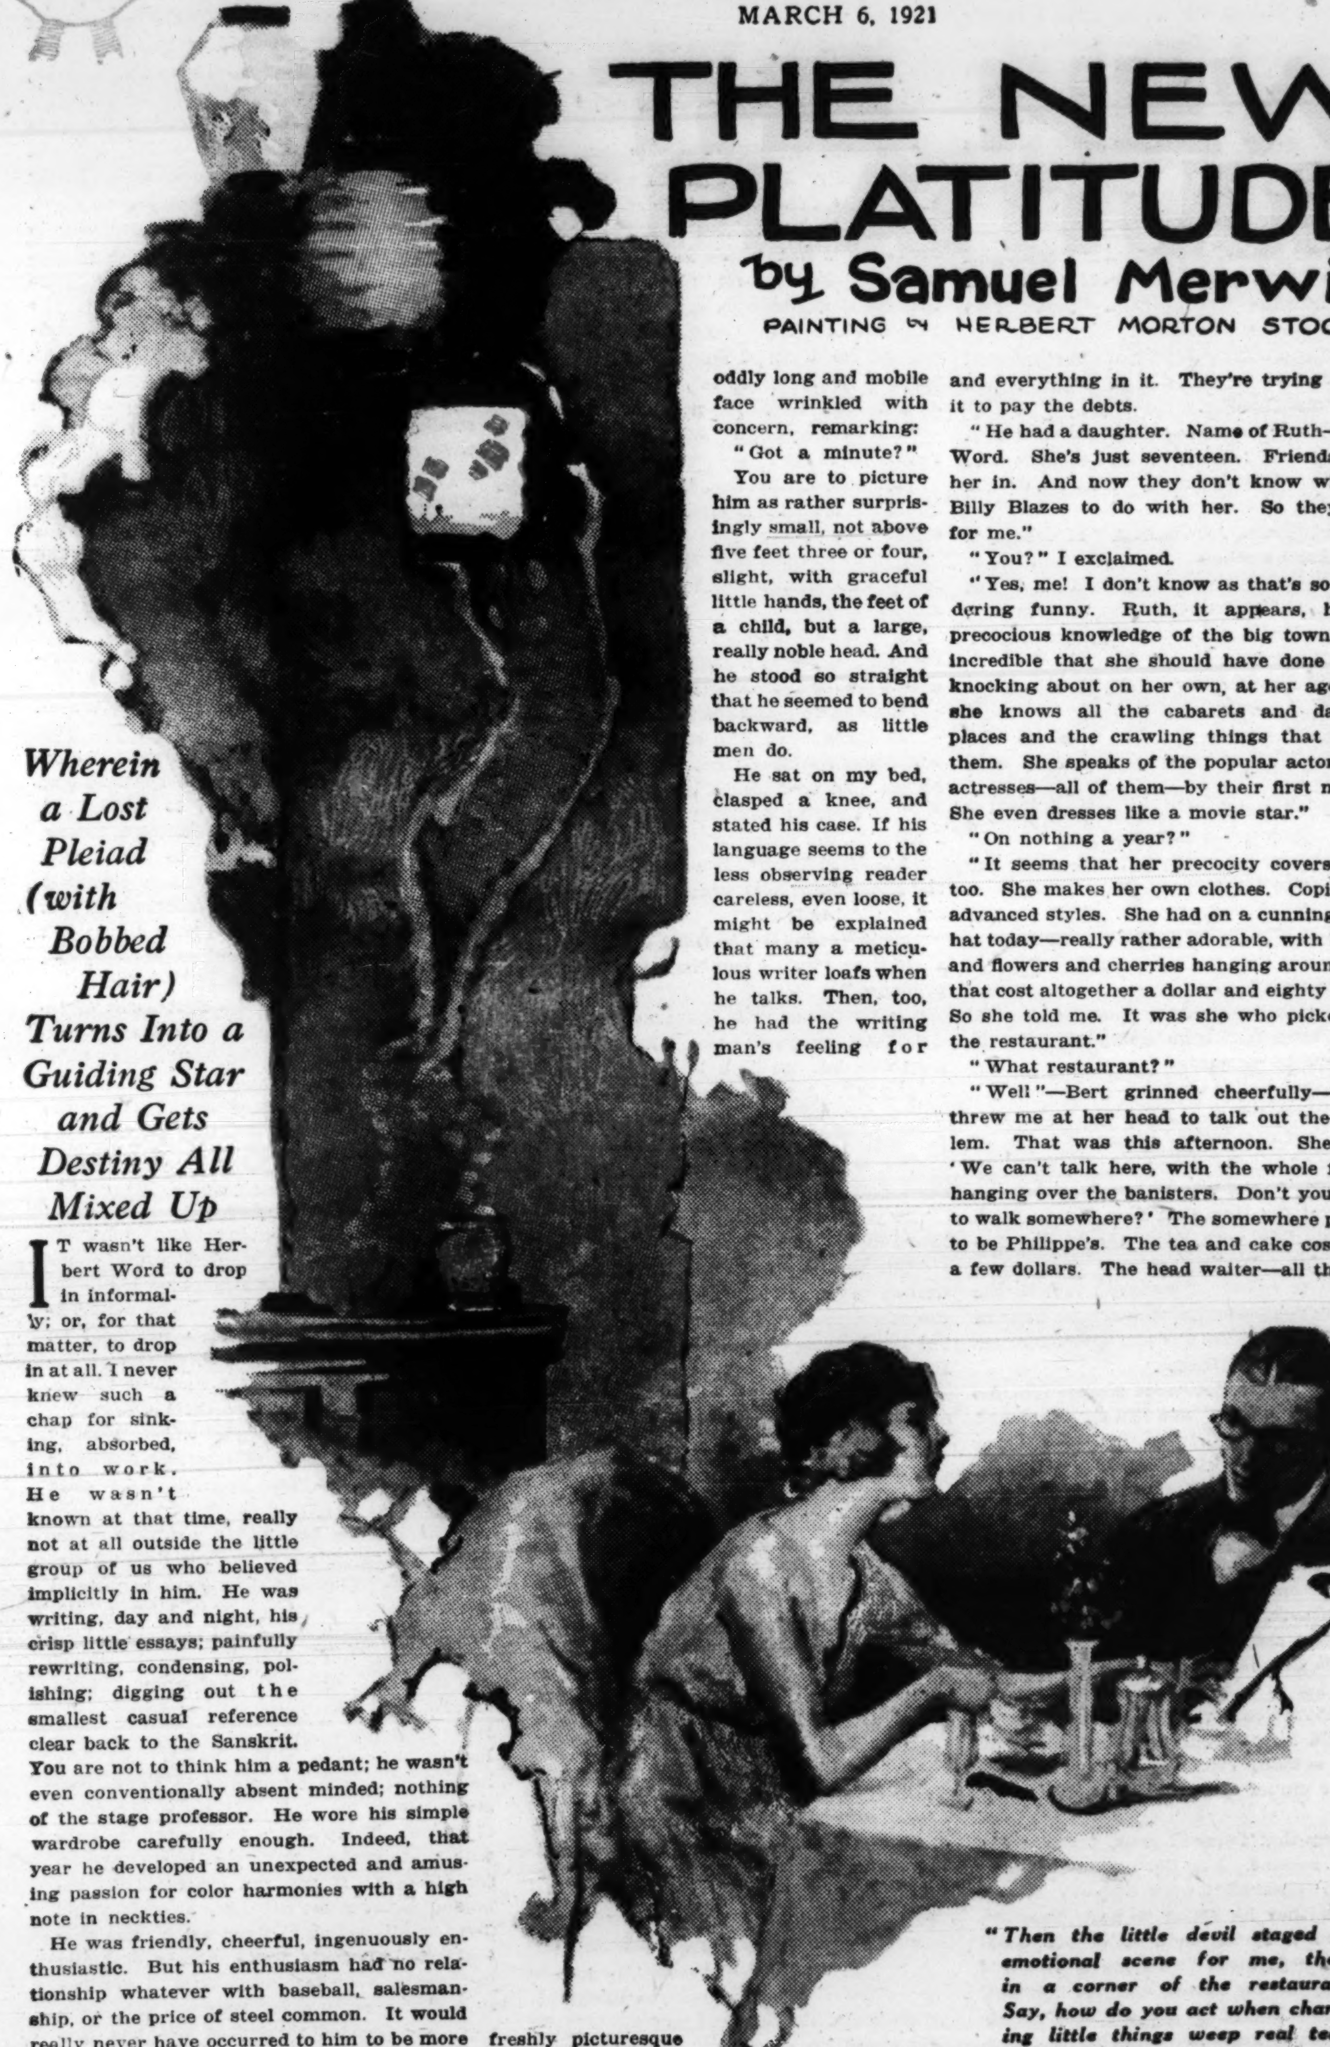
THE NEW PLATITUDE

by Samuel Merwin

PAINTING by HERBERT MORTON STOOPS

Wherein a Lost Pleiad (with Bobbed Hair) Turns Into a Guiding Star and Gets Destiny All Mixed Up



"Then the little devil staged an emotional scene for me, there in a corner of the restaurant. Say, how do you act when charming little things weep real tears on the tablecloth?"

IT wasn't like Herbert Word to drop in informally; or, for that matter, to drop in at all. I never knew such a chap for sinking, absorbed, into work. He wasn't known at that time, really not at all outside the little group of us who believed implicitly in him. He was writing, day and night, his crisp little essays; painfully rewriting, condensing, polishing; digging out the smallest casual reference clear back to the Sanskrit. You are not to think him a pedant; he wasn't even conventionally absent minded; nothing of the stage professor. He wore his simple wardrobe carefully enough. Indeed, that year he developed an unexpected and amusing passion for color harmonies with a high note in neckties.

He was friendly, cheerful, ingenuously enthusiastic. But his enthusiasm had no relationship whatever with baseball, salesmanship, or the price of steel common. It would really never have occurred to him to be more cordial than usual if he met Mr. Morgan or Mr. Rockefeller. Likely as not, even if he caught the name, he'd chatter like a healthy and happy child about the lighting and seating arrangements in Shakespeare's Globe theater, or (a current interest of his) the significance of virulent minorities in human society, such as the assassins of medieval Syria and the Bolsheviki of today, or the tremendous importance of early Chinese landscape painting.

A half hour of Herbert (when the chatty mood was going well) left the average business man helplessly angry. He never got on at the University, where he came originally as an instructor. To the less athletic students he was stimulating, but the (then) Teutonized faculty found his lack of method intolerable.

It was apparent that he had a little income, though very little. He lived at the Putnams', in a tiny room on the third floor, directly over mine.

He stood now in my open doorway, his oddly long and mobile face wrinkled with concern, remarking:

"Got a minute?"

You are to picture him as rather surprisingly small, not above five feet three or four, slight, with graceful little hands, the feet of a child, but a large, really noble head. And he stood so straight that he seemed to bend backward, as little men do.

He sat on my bed, clasped a knee, and stated his case. If his language seems to the less observing reader careless, even loose, it might be explained that many a meticulous writer loafs when he talks. Then, too, he had the writing man's feeling for freshly picturesque words; a feeling that carried him on, often, into casual, highly colored profanity. It was always amusing to hear him swear; he looked so fragile and thoughtful. It gave you a start.

"I had an uncle a few times removed [he said] in the City. North Side. Big, impressive house there. Uncle drowned himself last fall. He'd gone completely bust. The wife had died a year or two earlier. The house has been standing vacant, furniture and everything in it. They're trying to sell it to pay the debts.

"He had a daughter. Name of Ruth—Ruth Word. She's just seventeen. Friends took her in. And now they don't know what in Billy Blazes to do with her. So they sent for me."

"You?" I exclaimed.

"Yes, me! I don't know as that's so thundering funny. Ruth, it appears, has a precocious knowledge of the big town. It's incredible that she should have done much knocking about on her own, at her age; still she knows all the cabarets and dancing places and the crawling things that infest them. She speaks of the popular actors and actresses—all of them—by their first names. She even dresses like a movie star."

"On nothing a year?"

"It seems that her precocity covers that, too. She makes her own clothes. Copies the advanced styles. She had on a cunning little hat today—really rather adorable, with leaves and flowers and cherries hanging around it—that cost altogether a dollar and eighty cents. So she told me. It was she who picked out the restaurant."

"What restaurant?"

"Well"—Bert grinned cheerfully—"they threw me at her head to talk out the problem. That was this afternoon. She said: 'We can't talk here, with the whole family hanging over the banisters. Don't you want to walk somewhere?' The somewhere proved to be Philippe's. The tea and cake cost only a few dollars. The head waiter—all the persons in evening clothes that she calls 'captains'—bowed to her; spoke to her by name. And then the little devil staged an emotional scene for me, there in a not overly obscure corner of the restaurant. She quite threw herself on my sympathy. It's the crisis of her life, she says. Say, how do you act when charming little things weep real tears on the tablecloth?"

"Of course, you know, you're telling me nothing. Nothing whatever! And that's a fool question, anyway!"

"No—wait! Here's her photograph. You'd better get a picture of her in your mind before I tell you any more. Because you've got to advise me."

"You exchanged photographs at the first meeting?"

"No. But she ran into the house, when I was leaving her, to get me hers." He was feeling through a wadded-out pocket. "Here it is."

My eyes fell first on this inscription in bright green ink, sprawling across the lower part of the picture: "To Herbert Word, who is a sympathetic and understanding cousin." Then a heavy dash, and the signature.

"She tells me she always uses green ink," remarked Bert. "So if I get any letters I'll know right off who they're from."

"Whom."

"She said who."

The picture had an amusingly theatrical appearance. Miss Ruth wore her hair bobbed. She was extremely pretty, with an oddly knowing face—the features small and regular; the eyes level, large, provocative; the still more provocative little mouth twisted into a faint, reflective smile. It was by no means a commonplace face and head. My next question (I realized later) might stand as an index of the effect the picture had on me. It was:

"Is her profile as pretty as the full face?"

He nodded. Snatched it away from me. Said, rather explosively:

"Gosh, Frank, it's no use—she's a pippin! She's amazing! Seventeen years old, doesn't know a damn' thing——"

"Except life and the human critter."

"Don't be sententious! If you'd been through what I have today——"

"Get on with your story!" said I.

"Well—little girls scare me to death, anyway. The world has changed on us, Frank. Victorianism is gone forever. We're up against a new proposition. I tell you, the little girls of today——"

"O—what happened?"

"Well, it seems the child casually kept a key to the house. Somewhere in her knockings about—you have to skip around in this narrative; Ruth skips around, you know—she annexed an ambitious young picture director. Naturally he fell in love with her. At once. Stands now on the brink of self-destruction. Well"—he paused for breath—"he decided that the old Word house would be ideal for certain interior scenes in a new film which is to be called"—Bert grinned engagingly—"'Her Naked Soul.' . . . Frank, if you could hear that child chatter about love and marriage and divorce and—O, my God!"

"You said all that before." I was impatient. "The world has changed. Admitted. Now do get on."

"Well, the director made her up and put her into some of the scenes in 'Her Naked Soul.' Evenings he took her out in his car. Now he proposes marriage—just as soon as he can get his divorce."

"O!" was all I could say to this. At the moment. Then I went on with, "And this, I suppose, is what precipitated the crisis."

"Yes. She threw it, like a well timed brick, into the orderly domestic circle of the guardian friends. And for the life of her she can't see why they're making such a fuss about it. The thing that bothers her is that she doesn't know how to tell the somewhat more eligible youth that she really thought she loved before she met Ruthven Mainwaring."

"Ruthven being the picture director."

"Yes. She wants me to break it to the more eligible one. He works in a bank. He's been saving for their home. O, there's another man that's getting a divorce for her, but she knows he's stringing her. It was at this point that she wept on the tablecloth." Bert's smile was slightly acid now. "And she made an extraordinary confession, Frank. It was because I was of the intellectual type—that's how she put it—that she felt she could. It seems that her own emotional intensity frightens her. She falls in love with a man to the point of utter desperation. It's terrible. Then she turns quite as violently to some one else."

"Suppose," I suggested, "she were to fall

A Beautiful Skin with KIRK'S JAP ROSE SOAP

Golden Transparent

REAL beauty lies in the skin—not on it. To be beautiful the skin must be healthy—to be healthy it must be clean, the pores open, clear of all foreign matter and free to 'breathe.'

The prejudice some women have against soap, is one acquired from the use of cheaply made soaps, which do clog the pores with the undissolved particles of filler and artificial coloring matter.

But JAP ROSE Soap is another thing entirely. It contains no filler or artificial coloring matter of any kind, and every atom is cleansing, healing and absolutely soluble in any kind or temperature of water.

Its purity is paramount, and the gentle glow which some feel after using it, comes from the healing effect of the c. p. glycerine that keeps the skin soft, healthy and beautiful.

out of love with Ruthven just after he's got the divorce."

"I spoke of that possibility. But this time, she says, it's the real thing. It was never like this before. And once again she put before me the proposal that I dispose of Fred for her. Fred's the M. E."

"M. E.? O, the More Eligible. And were you such a fool as to accept that delicate little commission?"

"Now, look here, Frank, it's easy enough for you to sit here, cold, in your study, and talk like that! But if you——"

"Then you have accepted it?"

He seemed not quite to hear this, or perhaps was sunk at the moment too deep in his problem. We sat thinking.

It did seem high time to bring the poor simp to his senses. Jolt him, even.

"Of course"—I tried to speak with dry humor—"you know how she would describe her conduct with you?"

"What do you mean by that?" He even flushed.

"She was vamping you. That's what the little girls call it when they charm men into helping them out of difficulties—vamping."

"Frank, you see here! Quit this kidding!" The flush remained. He was curiously serious. "Do you realize what this problem is? The girl is only a child, after all. She is an intense little thing. She really is. And God he knows she's in mortal peril."

The breathless quality of his voice sobered me, I will admit. I looked again at the photograph.

"My God!" I found myself crying. "Have you, Bert, the faintest realization of the gravity of this situation?"

Said he, earnestly, "That's exactly what I'm trying to impress on you."

"But she's only seventeen!"

"Yes."

"She knows more of life now than many a Victorian matron ever learned."

"True."

"The world has changed—slipped out from under our very feet."

"Exactly." He uttered this word rather dryly, then went on: "And here I am, with this primitive child as good as in my keeping."

"Did you out-and-out promise to talk to the M. E.?"

He dropped his head into his hands. His low groan I interpreted in the affirmative.

"What else did you say to her? What could you have said to her?"

He raised his noble head.

"Frank—here's the truth of it—the situation was so disturbing that I scolded her, exhorted her, begged her to give up adventurous impulses, at least for a few years, and go to school. I tried to point out a few healthy truths—O, I was blunt; you're likely to be that with her, I find—tried to get it into her head that you can't get anywhere on a program of undisciplined emotions. Since she doesn't take marriage seriously as a vocation—that's an outstanding fact—I urged her to submit her mind to a little rudimentary training. She spoke of going on the stage as one possibility. Well, I told her what little I have observed of the difficulties that confront the actor—of the grinding years of toil in stock companies and still harder years in small parts on the road—of the laboriously acquired technique of a Bernhardt, a Coquelin, a Mrs. Fiske, an Edwin Booth. I tried my darnedest to get it into her adorably pretty little head that you cannot, on this particular earth, get very much for nothing. That's what she needs, you see—sobering. I even spoke of myself—here I am, thirty-five years old, with twenty years of education and work tucked away and my first book not yet published."

He paused. Came around and gazed, over my shoulder, at the photograph. What a dainty little thing she was! Exquisite, really!

"It seemed to me, then, that my arguments were making some impression," he continued. "She had covered her face with her hands. Tears were falling. She seemed to be struggling with sobs. Even in the corner of that nearly empty restaurant I felt rather conspicuous. I think the waiters were standing in a wide semi-circle, a few tables away, taking us in . . . I remember saying, after an hour or so of that earnest talk, 'Oh, here, Child! There's no good in sitting here, handing you a lot of platitudes! . . . And what do you think her reply was? She just spread her fingers—all wet with tears—and peeped out through them, and said, 'Oh, go on! I love platitudes!' . . . Laugh away, you! All you want! I admit it's funny. But that doesn't alter the fact that here's a very lovely little girl, all temperament and impulse and absolutely without guidance—excepting what I can give her. The friends she's with are puritans; have no patience with her; are about to wash their hands of her—let her go to smash if she likes."

It was a sobering thought, that. Together we studied the photograph.

"You see," said Bert, "she's asked me point blank to stand by her. Says I steady her. After she's talked with me, things look different." He was back on the bed, his head again in his hands. "And I rather guess you've got to stand by me, Frank. I can never carry the responsibility of that child's tempestuous life all by myself."

"Of course," said I. "But what does that mean? What do you figure I can do?"

"Oh, help me think it out, for God's sake! She'll be bringing all her problems to me. Then I'll bring 'em to you. See? Two heads'll be better than one."

I filled and lighted my pipe. Bert smoked cigarettes, one on the end of another. We thought and thought.

"It sort of makes your heart ache?" said I.

"It makes you wonder what's to become of our American civilization," said he. "I'm afraid it's typical."

I found myself murmuring, "of course, if the potential mothers . . ."

"If it only led somewhere," said he. "But it can't work out into anything, not possibly. Without education, or technique, or experience of any sort . . ."

"Is there any money at all?" I asked.

"Hardly a cent."

"I was thinking . . . here we are, two old grouches without a serious care . . ."

"Potential fathers," he muttered; with, I fear, a tinge of mischief in his voice.

"We might chip in a little—send her somewhere to school."

He shook his head. "She wouldn't go. I'm afraid she's already out in the big current."

"Then just keep me informed, Bert."

"I'll do that."

"We'll talk it over from time to time. If we can keep her from going straight to smash, it'll be something."

We clasped hands on it.

On the second day following little Miss Ruth packed a suitcase, smuggled it out of the house of the distracted friends, and vanished. This in the late afternoon, apparently at about the time that Bert was in town having his talk with Fred, the M. E. Regarding this talk, Bert refused flatly, then and later, to report. I gathered that it was painful; in retrospect; particularly as none of the elaborate reasons she had given him explained her disappearance.

Certainly the half-divorced picture director could throw no light. She had already found time to inform him that Herbert Word (Dear old thing!) was her closest friend and counselor—and so to Bert he came. He proved to be large, close-lipped, wearing marvelous clothes, and with the manner of one who conceals, with some effort, an inner magnificence of spirit. For him Ruth had left no word whatever. His only clew was a chance remark that she was having a test made in the studio of another picture concern. He had told her at once that these people were crooks; they would rob her at every turn; she should have nothing to do with them. She had actually ridden out with him to a roadhouse dinner the evening before her departure.

The year that followed sank, for me, into a sort of routine. For Bert, as the months passed, it appeared to grow difficult. It was noticeable that he failed to have Peterson make him a spring suit. And his usual whimsical enjoyment in buying a new and rather gay hat for Easter was not indulged. Instead of going up to one of the Lake resorts for the summer he stayed at the boarding house. And he said less and less about his own affairs. Oh, he kept up his tennis, and generally made a fair front of it; but to me it was evident that all was not going well. I naturally worried a little, particularly when I came to see that his spirits were really down.

Late of an afternoon in the following Autumn, I knocked at his door. It swung inward under my hand, and I beheld him, wrapped in a frayed old bathrobe, pale of countenance—really, rather gone—standing over his little round stove (Mrs. Putnam's furnace didn't reach to the third floor). He was just stuffing a double handful of paper into the roaring stove when I paused on the threshold. A heap of papers lay on a chair beside him. Leaves lay scattered on the floor about his feet.

I cried—"What on earth are you doing?"

"You may as well know," said he, after a moment, miserably. "Come in, and shut the door . . . I'm destroying every damn word I've ever written."

"What on earth!" I cried.

"Sit down," said he. "Sing a hymn if you like. God knows it's funereal enough." He stopped and peered at the blaze, through the opened stove door. "'Lead, Kindly Light' wouldn't be inappropriate."

I waited; watched the thing out. Then remarked—

"Hadn't you better tell me about it?"

"Just as soon." He lighted a cigarette. "Plain fact is, Frank—the jig's up."

"What jig?"

"All this. Writing essays." He smoked thoughtfully. Blew rings and watched them, one by one, float away. "To start at the beginning, I've been more of a fool than you dreamed. I had a little money—a few thousand—not income—capital. Oh, I know you thought it was income, but it wasn't. I gave myself three years, when I left the college job, to live it up. I figured that I ought to be able, in that time, to work up an income as a writer. Well—it's no go."

"That's nonsense!" said I. "Haven't I read a lot of it?"

"Oh, yes, Frank, I've got a decent endowment of brains. I have some sense of style . . ."

"It's more than that, Bert. You have the rarest of faculties—clarity. Also you have wit. Surely—"

He raised a calming hand. "Unfortunately for your argument, Old Thing, every reputable publisher in America agrees with me."

"But you've published some things, and—"

"In three years I've earned two hundred and sixteen dollars from the sale of manuscripts. In that time I've spent three hundred and twelve on paper, ink, and postage. I tell you, the jig's up."

"But Good Lord!" It was difficult to grasp the situation at such abrupt notice. "What are you going to do?"

"Don't know. Got to think that out within a week or two. I can last that long, with prudence."

"So far as money is concerned," I began—

"That's no good! Oh, I know you'd be generous, but we both know that wouldn't help at all. A man of my age can't borrow the money he lives on. I'd rather pound pavements or go into a mill. As a matter of fact, it might do me good, start me toward something."

"If you were a little younger . . ." I heard myself musing.

"Oh, by the way!" He looked about his writing table. "If I haven't burned it with the other truck. I meant to show it to you, but I've been so darn low it slipped my mind. Here it is."

And he handed me a deep blue envelope addressed in a faintly familiar hand. The enclosure read as follows:

"Dear Cousin Bert—

"There isn't anybody else for me to turn to. Oh, if you knew what I've been through it's awful the constant worry and strain. I wouldn't mind the hard work if it wassnt for that. I've started to write to you ever so manny times but something always came up. I've said oh if only he was here to tell me what to do and help me think you see theres never been anybody else since I went away who could help me like you did. Oh uneasy does lie the head that wears the crown. I'm going to be in the old city next week and I think I'll run out and make you talk to me I get so blue and everything the lawyers say make it worse they aren't human do you think so.

"Yours with love as always—
Ruth—I'll always be just Ruth to you you know."

"What's it all about?" I asked.

He raised his shoulders. "Search me."

"But she assumes a certain knowledge of her life."

"Which I haven't got."

"This is actually the only word you've had from her since she went away?"

"Actually."

"That about the head that wears the crown and the lawyers, and she'll always be just Ruth to you—what on earth——"

"Put it in your pocket, Frank! Make anything you like out of it! Just at the moment. I've another life to straighten out, one much dearer to me than that of just little Ruth."

"Suppose she does come out. Her next week is our this week."

"I shall advise her to marry the iceman at once and have thirteen children."

"Meantime," said I, with, I believe, some spirit, "you're coming out and play with me. We'll run in town and have dinner. Perhaps we'll go to a show. I propose to restore your sense of humor if the thing can be done."

After a leisurely little dinner we wandered about town. At one of the huge motion picture palaces we were delayed by a curious crowd. Many flocked about the curb, where was a lemon-colored runabout with wire wheels built (as a glance at a hub-cap made plain) by the makers of the highest priced automobiles in the American Trade. The seats were upholstered in bright green leather. Instead of a windshield there were two ovals of glass set in frames of what appeared to be polished silver. The wheel base was, I think, the longest I ever saw.

Many others pressed in toward the little glass house of the ticket seller, a bored young person, who chewed gum as she deftly pressed the buttons of the vending machine. A lone special officer struggled valiantly to form the crowd into a queue. Overhead and on each side of the broad entrance huge placards announced that during this, the first run in any city, of the Super-Masterpiece Film Drama, "The Devil's Bride," featuring Sybil Sweetly," Miss Sweetly would appear in person at each performance and speak a few words of greeting to her millions of devoted friends. There was some further announcement of a Great Contest in which all girls under twenty who could qualify as natural blondes were eligible; the Contest to be decided by Miss Sweetly and her mother.

"This looks diverting," said I. "Let's take it in."

"But I never go to the movies," Bert replied.

"May as well make a beginning. We all come to it."

Accordingly, after a long struggle, we secured tickets and entered the spacious and luxurious tabernacle of (so to speak) art. Our seats were known as orchestra divans, with the accent, according to both ticket seller and usher, on the di. These proved to be enormously upholstered couches, at the sides. We rested our heads back on the soft plush, stretched our legs out comfortably and lighted cigarettes.

Bert was exhibiting the first signs of interest. Keenly he took in the amazing expanse of marble wall, the lofty dome of the ceiling, with its rich and by no means ugly decorations, the skillfully soft lighting, the immese architectural structure on the stage that inclosed the "symphony orchestra."

"Evidently," Bert remarked, in a dry voice that failed to conceal a quickening of his delicately responsive nervous system, "the picture business is looking up."

I said nothing; quietly watched him.

The symphony orchestra played the overture to William Tell, with a spotlight on the poetically attired conductor and an accompaniment of dramatic lighting effects. The vast audience stormed their approval.

"Where have I been all these years?" murmured Bert, half to himself. "This is amazing. . . . Hm—Essays! A dead epech!"

"The curious fact is," I ventured then, "that you're in for a further little shock, I'm afraid. The film drammers in general are still almost hopelessly poor, I admit. Oh, you find spirited action and really stunning photography, but the stories are all ground out of a mill. Quantity production. Cheap themes, false characterizations, absurdly unreal climaxes. These picture people are mostly vulgarians with a knack, and they haven't yet more than begun to let the real story tellers in. But still there are signs of growth. There appear to be rebellious ones within the ranks. Take this Sybil Sweetly, for example. If you can overcome the repugnance her name naturally arouses, you'll find her interesting in some ways. She photographs amazingly well. She is dramatic in a rather new, humorous way. I saw her in a sticky sentimental romance this summer, and decided then that she has dramatic quality."

"But, this thing—what is it? 'The Devil's Bride.' Don't try to tell me we're to expect to find anything in a drammer with a title like that!"

"No. I grant you the story will be awful. The direction will almost certainly be lurid and false. The titles will turn your delicately literary stomach. They will certainly be ungrammatical. Words may even be misspelled here and there. And, of course, they will use 'lay' for 'lie,' 'less' for 'fewer'—all the loose new American tongue. But just try not to mind, Bert. Overlook it all, and watch little Sybil."

Bert grunted doubtfully. The review of the week, the soprano soloist (also with dramatic lighting), and the inevitable "scenic" passed swiftly. Then, at a stereopticon announcement of the Super-Masterpiece, a battery of spotlights were aimed down at the apron of the stage; footlights flared up; the poetic conductor effaced himself; the audience, craning forward, breathlessly waited; and finally a stout, fatherly man walked stepped over and lay down on the bed—bandaged and white and small, Peggy hovering uselessly over her, able to do nothing but kiss her hand.

After a little while Edith spoke to her: "You mustn't suppose I'm greatly grieved, Peg. I think it's a relief more than anything else. . . . I asked the judge to give him another chance. You heard me in there. I'm very glad I did that now. He'd gone wrong in business—stolen some of the judge's bonds. But I think, Peggy—I think he never could have gone straight again, so it's more of a relief than anything else. . . .

"I wanted, my dear, to ask that of the judge and get him another chance if I could—and so pay it all up. . . . But I should never have lived with him again. He beat me today, and choked me."

Peggy could not utter a cry; her eyes were quite dry; it seemed to drown her. She sank down on her knees beside her, clutching one of Edith's hands between her own.

"He was drunk," Edith explained quietly; "and crazy with fear over what I was going to do. He'd set out to blackmail the judge—Judge Crane will tell you all about that—only the judge doesn't know he beat me. Not telling him that was part of paying it all up, you see. I think he never could have gone straight again—decayed, Peggy."

Peggy could say nothing—but just clutch Edith's hand, while her heart cracked with pity.

"I want to talk to you by and by, Peg," Edith went on after a moment. "I want to talk to Ted, too—especially to Ted. I love him, too. But I want to talk to him. He's been lazy and aimless and self-indulgent. I know he's only a boy. But it's time he stopped now. He must stop now—before he marries you. . . . You see, Peggy, when I married Lester it was fairly like you're marrying Ted. You see what a smash it came to. I know Ted's good, but I want to talk to him. And you, Peggy—it's your job, too; the woman as well as the man. It isn't just a wedding and a honeymoon and a pretty story that ends with that. You've got a long road to go."

The tears came to Peggy's eyes then. In humble reverence she bowed her head to the breast of the woman who had gone the long road steadfastly and paid it all up.

After a little Edith said, "Judge Crane will have something to tell you—about Katey."

on leading by the hand a pretty little thing in a trim frock. The vast auditorium rocked with applause.

"My God!" said Bert. "It's Ruth!"

And he reached for his hat and coat.

"Where are you going?" I whispered (for the little thing was speaking, in a small, clear voice, of her art and her serious purpose in life, stretching out pretty little hands to her dear, dear friends).

"If we watch by that car she'll be coming out pretty soon."

And he went darting up the long side aisle, extraordinary slim and small; rather appealing, even, with that finely moulded head, that was full now of the one idea.

We waited—two old things—something more than half an hour by the lemon and green car with the glass ovals in front. Bert was all live interest now. He hummed softly to himself, an absent little trick of his that I have at times found annoying. I felt distinctly foolish.

Ruth was out-and-out bewitching. She had an air of shrewdly quiet self-possession that Bert said later was new to him. To the colorless woman at her heels she remarked:

"Just wait for me at the hotel, Mother."

Then she bundled us into the car; herself took the wheel; and with the cut-out wide open we went roaring up the street. At the staring policeman she merely smiled sweetly.

I heard Bert ask where she picked up the mother. Her reply, uttered very sweetly, was:

"Oh, you have to have 'em."

To me she said over her shoulder (I was clinging to my hat within the little seat behind):

"You don't mind being run off with, do you? I've just got to have a good talk with Cousin Bert."

"I can't tell you what a terrible trouble I've been going through." Thus Sybil Sweetly, over the ice cream and coffee, dimpled elbows on table, the large eyes mournfully lovely behind the long lashes. "Sometimes I cry all night. And the lawyers are so horrid. They get me bewildered. And then"—this earnestly, with a simple sincerity that I found deeply moving—"they're not fair. They're not just.

"The trouble? Why, you see, these Inter-Stellar tied me up on a five-year contract last spring. I didn't know a thing about the business. I was absolutely at their mercy. Really, I wasn't more than a child, you know. There wasn't a friend by to tell me what the business really was. How could I know? . . . And they said they were going to put across my youth and girlish innocence—make me the Maude Adams of the screen. Of course, the money seemed a lot then. I was so inexperienced! And now, right in the face of all the fine things they said—oh, they said 'em!—they turn square around and make me do a horrid, vulgar picture like this 'The Devil's Bride.' And when I kicked they just got out the contract and tried to prove that I was completely tied, had to do everything just as they said. They even had the audacity to say it should be a matter of honor with me—those crooks!"

Bert and I were both moved. Though he did begin in a murmuring voice, uncertainly—"Of course, a contract . . ." But that, the slightly corrective note she sensitively felt in his voice, brought tears into the lovely eyes. I, too, must have shown my indignation in my face; for his voice died out into silence.

"I've got a new lawyer—just today," she went on. "He's going to fix it up for me."

"But how?" Bert contrived to put in, evading my glance.

"Break the contract. He says the Inter-Stellar hasn't a leg to stand on. Any court, he says, would interrupt the contract in the light of the common understanding between us when we signed it. You see, he understands. He's got sympathy. Those other lawyers were beasts. And, besides, God knows I'm not making a cent. Their whole plan was to let me get famous and then rob me. They're robbing me now. Why, would you believe it! Mary Marlebone told me herself that they—these same Inter-Stellar people—agreed this summer to pay her two million in three years."

"Two million—dollars?" It was Bert's voice, very weak. And what small instinct for logic had clung on within my curiously weakened intellect fell away then; disappeared. I could only hang, doglike, on those lovely curving lashes and the exquisite tint of the cheek beneath them.

"Of course! And what do you suppose they're paying me? Two thousand a week. Think of it! Just a mean little two thousand a week! And they won't guarantee me more than thirty weeks of work in any one year! Why . . ."

Bert lunched with her next day; spent the afternoon. Apparently she drove him forty or fifty miles out to a charming restaurant by a lake. He was sheepishly exhilarated. I had to lend him twenty-five dollars; for the luncheon had strapped him.

We spent the evening walking along the beach of our own great lake, and sitting on lonely breakwaters; talking and talking.

"She's told me things," Bert explained, "that she couldn't very well talk about before you. I tell you, Frank, it's the most dramatic story I ever heard. The child is living in the—the vortex of a maelstrom."

"Financially?"

"No, emotionally. You've no conception. You see, her life is really all public. Everybody knows her. Nearly everybody—every man—falls in love with her. And the tact she has to use—the sheer skill in managing men!"

"You'd better watch out," said I.

"Oh, Heavens! It's not obscure little pikers like us. No fear! It's wealthy brokers and presidents of our greatest corporations and eminent lawyers. Authors, too—all sorts."

"What's become of Ruthven Mainwaring?" I asked, dryly, I fear.

For a moment Bert seemed nonplussed.

"We—we didn't speak of him," he replied then. "As a matter of fact, Frank, she seems to have outgrown her environment of last year. It takes your breath away."

"It certainly does that," said I.

"And the power a child like that wields. . . . Frank, I never imagined such things could be! And she's so simple and sweet, with it all! Why, do you know, she asked me today—think of it, asked my permission to get the Inter-Stellar people to employ me writing the titles for her next picture. She says I have the perfect mind for titles. And they'd pay—oh, a hundred or more a week just—for a tryout. But she won't let me tie up with them on any long contract. She seems to have an idea that she'll be using me later in some other way."

I laid a friendly hand on his shoulder.

"Bert," I said; "you'd better do it. At the very least it would be amusing. It might even turn out to be stimulating. But there's one word of advice I've got to give you—don't—for God's sake, don't let yourself fall in love with her!"

"Oh, no, I—you don't understand what a——"

"Listen! You're not a boy. You're thirty-five years old. You're intelligent and well trained. You've got everything in the world—except money. A little of that right now might easily prove the making of you. Put you in the position to use your really fine mental equipment. But it all depends on keeping your head—and your feet."

"You needn't worry, Frank. I'll admit it's exciting. This sudden glimpse of such a glittering new world does stir the blood. But so far as losing my head over Ruth is concerned—well, I'm pretty deep in her confidence, and, of course, I can't tell you much, but I'll tell you this. There are two men. At the moment she's wavering between them. She realizes that this is her emotional crisis. She sees clearly that before the year's out she'll marry one or the other One is the lawyer that put through the reorganization of Computed Copper; the other is—oh, well, I may as well name him—William P. Dabney.

I held my breath. For it was William P. Dabney who cornered May wheat in 1911. He had houses on the Lake Shore drive, on Fifth avenue, and at Newport, and owned the largest private steam yacht in the world.

"I suppose," I ventured, "she quits work when she marries. Where'll you be then?"

"She'll never quit work," said he, confidently. "It's her life."

In this one particular Bert guessed right. She didn't quit her work. But within a little less than two months' time she married James Morton, a wealthy cotton merchant from New Orleans. With his money, and entirely surrounded by lawyers, she broke her contract, established Sybil Sweetly Highart Pictures Incorporated, and sent for Bert.

He borrowed from me the money that took him out to the coast; and returned it within a month.

One morning in the following spring there came a knock at my door.

The caller was Bert—smiling, amazingly well dressed, on the best terms with the world.

"Well," he remarked, seated as of old on the bed, and lighting a cigarette, "how's it going with the Old Thing?"

"Great!" said I, gloomily. I felt his keen eyes taking me in, and added, defensively—"They've sold three editions of my book."

"Hm!" said he, musing. "Three editions! Fair-sized ones?"

"Yes,"—my spirits were sinking—"pretty fair. I'll make upwards of three thousand dollars this year, one way and another."

Of course I shouldn't have said that. It was childish, absurd. But he had caught me off my guard.

"I've come after you," he remarked, after a long pause, thoughtfully considering the smoke from his cigarette.

"After me? . . ."

"Yes. I'm going to make you write scenarios."

I felt my head wobbling in a negative shake.

He sprang up—how crisply alert he was in body and brain—and paced my narrow rug.

"Here's the situation, Frank! You're grubbing along, trying to live through an art. You can't do it. The only possible chance you stand, as you're going, is that some particularly bad thing of yours will make an accidental hit. Then you'd have a little money and could strike decent terms with yourself. It really can't be done, you know. Book successes are almost all accidental. You don't realize it, but what you're trying to do is to overcome single-handed a country-wide lack of organization in the book business. The readers are there—millions of 'em. But the publishers haven't faced and grasped the problem of reaching them. Not in a large way. Now, in the picture business, we reach 'em—the whole bunch."

He lit a fresh cigarette; talked on with a nervous brightness of manner that increased my depression.

"You're simply beating your head against a stone wall. You can't win. Roulette would be safer and quicker; better, because it wouldn't wear you out so. Surely you're old enough to know that there's nothing in waste effort. Your best years, too!

"Take my case, now. I'll be putting away about eighty thousand this year, after paying my income tax. More next year. Then I'm going to retire. If you'll come in with us now, I'll guarantee that you'll be able to retire with me. What say? Oh, you won't be a millionaire, but there'll be enough to give you a nice little yearly income Then, a year from next January, if we feel like it at the time, we'll step quietly out go to Italy, and write as we want to write I can't bear to see you wasting your life . . . Of course, it's no good my going on handing you platitudes——"

"Go ahead, said I, acidly. "I love platitudes."

"——but I'm convinced that there's only one course for reasonably clever fellows like you and me. Hitch your wagon to a movie star."

And so I went into the picture business I must admit that Ruth—or Sybil, as I have learned to call her—busy though she is, has been more than kind in all her dealings with me. And it is always possible, during those moments when the irony of it bites into my soul, to escape in pleasant day dreams of the Italy that lies surely ahead.

APPLE SAUCE

5,000 smackers. I call that dealin' off the top o' the pack for fair."

"O, well," said May. "In the first place I never crossed a partner in my life. For another thing, you've all been pretty blue since Midge and me were stuck up, and I always felt I was part to blame.

"Now, good-by."

"What do you mean, good-by?" said Thumby.

"I'm going—I'm through—out. You've all done me the honor at one time or another to make a play for me. The single ones amongst you have all proposed to me. The married ones have been kind enough to offer to blow their wives for me. I'll say I've been royally treated by this mob, and I'd be a low down heel if I pulled a holdout on you.

"But I'm through with grifting—forever. I've met a man, a mechanic, who tells me he earns good wages. He's thrifty. He told me he was saving to go into a business where there's good kale—the oil business. This morning he phoned me that he had $6,000 worth of stock in a small outfit in Oklahoma and he was going out there to look around and try to run it into a bank roll. And I'm going to marry him in the morning and go west with him. His name is Mulloy—Ballard Mulloy—and he doesn't know I ever sprung a crooked trick. So I have to beat it.

"I'll take my grand—never mind the share in the junk on the table. Now good-by and good luck."

And she turned, smiled sweetly, then sadly, and departed.

"Ain't that a shame?" said Thumby, who was the first to find his breath.

"No" said Midge, with a tragic trill in his throat. "In a town like this, rotten with guns an' yeggs an' dips an' sharpshooters an' porch climbers an' bottom dealers, it's a blessin' that a decent, upright gal like Milwaukee May gets a break to hook up with a hard workin', honest man. She'll make him a good wife, May will. I hope he never finds out she was on the bend, becus' she's the squarest dame what ever lifted a dollar. Whoever this here Mulloy is, I'll say he's winner on the turn. Let's dish up the apple sauce."

APPLE SAUCE

by Jack Lait

A Chapter in the Heart Affairs of Milwaukee May Busby, Pickpocket

THERE is an old story, one of those "bright sayings of children" things, which sets out that when little Ferdinand was asked by what arithmetical process four apples could be divided among five people, he answered, "Make apple sauce."

That bewhiskered "gag" has been adopted by actors, gamblers, and thieves—and let us hope that only in their adoption of this have they anything in common.

Among crooks "apple sauce" means a pooling of loot and a division of the proceeds, and the one chosen to dispose of the stock and to distribute dividends on the net takings, transmuted into specie, is "the cook."

It so chanced that a band of pickpockets, having "worked" a massmeeting assembled to ascertain ways and means to curb crime in the community, came by their various routes unto the business office of the "dip" corporation, the home of "Thumby" Hassom, and divulged from their own pockets the watches, stickpins, lavallieres, and miscellaneous gimcracks they had acquired with fingers and nippers at the law and order rally.

Present, in addition to Thumby, were "Riot Call" Smathers, "Alibi" Bates, "Midge" Wann, "Oilcan" Randle, and "Milwaukee May" Busby. May was the darling of the lot, as nifty with her dimples as she was with her digits, slender as she was slick, winsome as she was wicked, elusive as she was acquisitive. Not a "gun" in the lot whose fingers did not itch to pilfer from her heart the treasure of love so safely hidden there—hidden, as far as any of them knew, always.

Milwaukee May, "teamed" with Bates (good pickpockets always work in pairs, and often in larger companies for most efficient results), had held up her end. She turned in a man's share of the plunder and she was to receive a man's share of the turnover. She could have had any man's share in that room besides her own, too.

Wann, called "Midge" because of his pint size proportions, was the "cook" of the "outfit." He looked innocent and virtuous. Although he dealt largely with professional "fences," still these points were assets, for it was he to whom the "stuff" could be most directly traced, and if a showdown in court should be forced, unlikely but possible, Wann could make the cleanest showing of the lot on form and record. He had never been convicted, a distinction he shared only with May in that gang.

Thumby, as the acknowledged leader, inventoried the gross receipts, which piled up a glittering and promising heap on his dining table.

"If we can't drag down a couple o' grand ($2,000) for this mess o' junk, the price o' stones an' metal has flopped," he announced.

"A couple o' grand?" echoed Randall, the "Oilcan," so-called because he was stingy, not because he was smooth. "Say, the lead in that bum fob the Riot Call hauled in is worth eleven bucks a pound alone."

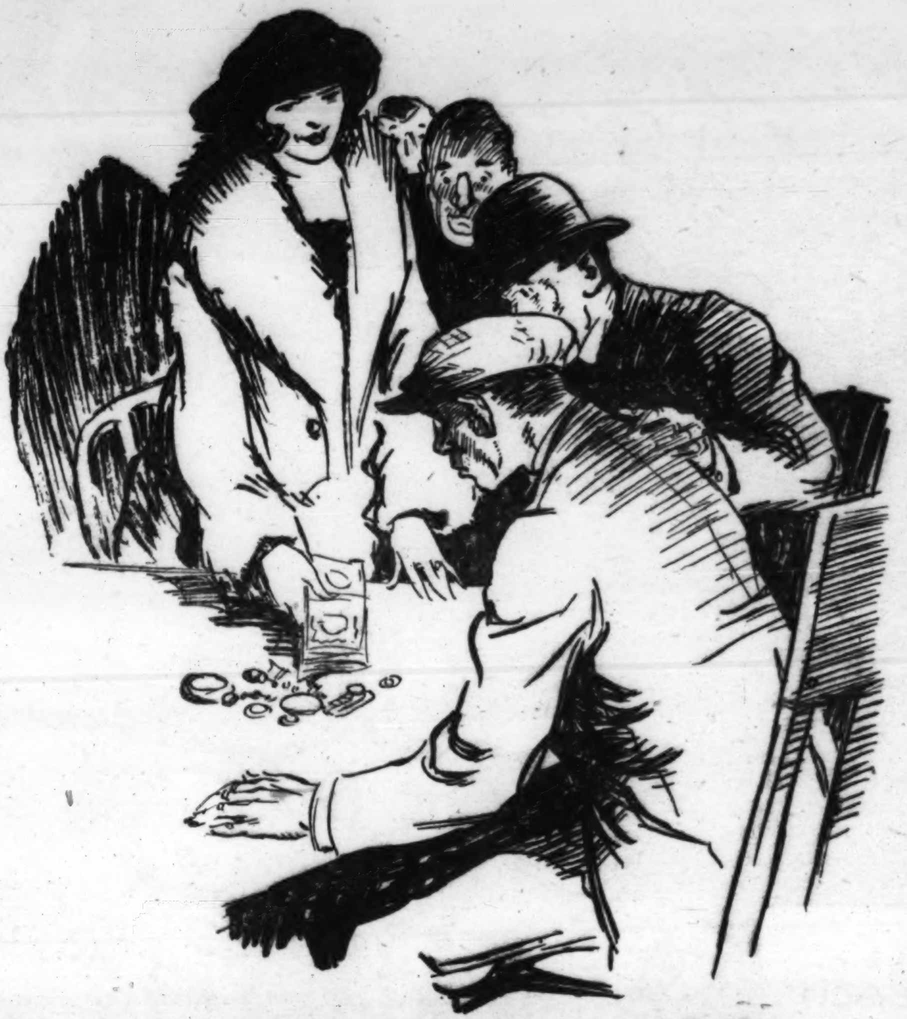
Smathers blew cigaret smoke at the Oilcan in contemptuous retort—well he knew why Randall was "riding" him. May had said "Hello" somewhat more heartily to the Oilcan than she had to the Riot Call that evening, and the finest shades of her voice, eyes, and general approach were weighed and assayed in that "mob."

"Don't scrap, boys," said May. And they turned their backs on one another at her command.

Midge had a car. He was a bachelor with no bad habits. He followed his profession industriously and had laid up a comfortable nest egg against sickness, a "fall" (arrest), accident, matrimony, or other disaster. The loot was crammed into a suitcase and he put on his gloves and started for the door, walking backward and looking significantly at May. She gave him no "tumble."

"Can I drive you home—drop you off, May?" he ventured.

"Sure," said she.



"There's five dozen century government coupons in that deck. I took a bird in a hotel on the main stem."

And, while the others glowered, she accompanied Midge out and down and seated herself beside him in the roadster, with the precious suitcase between them. The way led through a park, and it was now well past midnight.

"May," said Midge, as they whirred along, "I've taken you home like this before."

"You bet you have," said she. "You're a good kid and I like you."

"Is that all?" he asked, pleadingly. "You only like me?"

"O, I like you a whole lot."

"You couldn't stretch that whole lot o' liking into a little love, could you, May?"

"I'll be on the level with you, Midge—no, I couldn't. I'm for you and you're a pal. But I got some weird ideas about this love racket. I want to hook up with some square shooter some day and marry and kick all this behind me to stay."

"May," said he, "if that's all that's eatin' you, I'll chuck the grift right now and go straight as a rummy—for you."

"No, Midge. You only think so. This is pretty soft dough. Your bit out of tonight ought to run around three, four hundred dollars. You couldn't make that in any honest game—nobody could except a plumber or a grocer."

"But I'll take less—for you. I got a few berries salted. I can go into business—I can open up a garage."

"See? There you go. I told you you couldn't go honest. You've got the instincts of a gun in you, Midge."

"Aw, now—all kiddin' out o' the window. I'll pass up the work and we'll move to some small burg, you an' me, an' I'll go in some reg'lar line an' you an' me'll settle down an'——"

"Not a chance, Midge. A woman might. But I never knew a man yet that did or could. Especially in your specialty. It's too easy—there's no tools to throw away. You're an artist. You mean to tell me you could walk through a crowd if you knew there was a sap in there with a wad in his sucker kick and not go fish-hooking after it?"

"Why—I'd try."

"See? You're weakening already. No, Midge—my children are going to have at least one honest parent. The world is full of crooks and——"

Out of the bushes sprang two black forms. In one leap they were on the running board, and an automatic, muzzle end, was against the head of Midge.

"If you whisper, we'll croak you," said a voice.

And the other man reached forward and seized the suitcase, then snatched Milwaukee May's golden purse from her lap and tore Midge's watch from his pocket and his diamond stud from his cravat, and in an instant the two had leaped from the board and escaped into the shrubbery. Neither Midge nor May was armed. It was hopeless. A police alarm would have been fatal if not futile, for if the men were captured and the property recovered there would be inquiries that could not be diplomatically answered less than an hour after a dozen complaints must have poured into police headquarters about the wholesale "clean-up" at the meeting.

There was nothing to be done.

"I suppose the gang is still at Thumby's," said Midge. "We better go back and give 'em the bad news."

Midge and May drew a groaning reception when they burst in with the tidings. Their story was not questioned. But a hundred recriminations poured in on Midge, the more so since it was known that he had driven far out of his path and through the lonely park only to take May home. But it was spilled milk, curdling and ruining the apple sauce. And May called a taxi and went home alone.

The two highwaymen, "Rod" Hull and "Moose Jaw" Jarnigan, ran to the road beyond the intervening meadow in the park, where they had their own car, and drove rapidly home. There they opened the suitcase, and to their joy and amazement saw the miscellany of jewels and other convertible knick-knacks. It was a haul indeed. They could not explain it. But they could appreciate it. And they went to bed rejoicing, having secreted the suitcase and its fortune in a china closet.

An hour after they had started snoring in high a window of their apartment was cautiously opened and three men stealthily entered through it. Confidentially, they were "Lucky" Le Mar, "French Bull" Harkness, and "Flinty" Farr. On rubber creepers they negotiated every corner of the flat and gathered up two watches, all the money in Hull's and Jarnigan's pickets, a couple of black magazine revolvers, and other property too cumbersome to be carried without a container of some sort. Le Mar quietly opened the china closet.

"Here's a keister," he breathed. (A keister is a suitcase.)

He seized the case and the three pussy-footed out and into their auto. Le Mar opened the stolen receptacle, and even in the darkness the men saw that it contained valuables. They went to Farr's home and gloated over their freak pickup. Harkness was elected to apple sauce the lot. That afternoon he took it to Levinsky, the gold man, and was told to come back next day and receive what it would bring—somewhere around $2,500, Levinsky surmised—of which he would retain 50 per cent, the standard fee.

Levinsky had a fine story to tell Farr when he came for the money. With violent gesticulations he pointed at his big safe, warped and torn.

"Some dirty crook broke in here," he yammered, "and blew the guts out of my beautiful safe and got away with all your trash and some good stuff I had in there. Look at that box, I ask you?"

There was no questioning it—the safe had been nitroglycerined. But whether it had been an "inside job" with Levinsky's connivance none could tell. It was compromised—the fence gave the burglar trio a few hundred dollars and they protested but were satisfied.

Levinsky had not put one over on the worthies who had trusted him. A lone safecracker, "Bally" Mulloy, had invaded his throne room out of business hours and had ruthlessly wrecked the shiny safe and extracted therefrom not only the valuables which the pickpockets had gathered, plus Midge's stud and watch, plus the contents of May's handbag and that bejeweled creation of mesh itself, plus the watches and other fluid properties of Hull and Jarnigan, plus a store of uncut baubles and misappropriated precious metal which Levinsky had undertaken to dispose of for some other guns, but several hundred dollars in currency besides.

It was quite the biggest and finest take in the checkered and vicissitudinous years of Mulloy's practice, and when he had apple sauced the merchandise and added its price to the money in hand he was rich—the evening's pastime had yielded $6,100. Mulloy had for weeks been itching to get in on a "piece" of an oil well in Oklahoma, of which he had heard intoxicating reports. Crooks as a rule do little business by check, preferring the raw money. So, with $6,000 in $100 bills, he went to the office of Tarrant, Willfolk & Hymer, curb brokers, and turned over the money for shares in the oil company.

Tarrant, the senior partner, had a suspicion of Mulloy's trade. He saw the yeggman's eyes follow him cageyly as he locked the money into his safe. It was after banking hours. As a last thought, before he left for his home that evening, he took out the money and placed it in his inner vest pocket. That night the safe was blown, but nothing of negotiable nature was found. Meanwhile Tarrant walked briskly to the hotel where he lived, to place the money for safekeeping in the hotel vaults until morning, when he planned to deposit it, smiling at the thought of the worthless stock he had sold the safeblower.

Tarrant pushed his way through the teeming lobby, hesitating only to mumble an apology when he bumped squarely into an attractive looking girl. She amiably assured him there was no offense.

He came to the cashier and asked for a vault envelope, reaching at the same moment for his money. He blanched. The two top buttons of his waistcoat were open and the pocket had been stripped of its thousands—to the last banknote. There was a hue and cry and a great to do. The house officer summoned the public police and Tarrant told his story forty times over. Humph. It was simple enough—that girl, the one he had bumped, could he identify her? He had a faint recollection of her features. He could not find her photograph in the rogues' gallery. The police promised to "keep after it." As far as any one can say, the police are after it yet.

But that evening, as Thumby Hassom's pickpocket gang gathered at his home to pour the individual gleanings into the common pool, Milwaukee May entered, looked at the few measly watches and trinkets on the board, and said:

"Here's some apple sauce, boys."

With that she took from the pocket lost in the folds of her smart accordion plaited skirt sixty stiff $100 bills.

"There's five dozen century government coupons in that deck," she said. "I took a bird in a hotel on the main stem."

The others leaped forward and banqueted their eyes on the money. Then they fell back and gazed admiringly at Milwaukee May, at whom they had always gazed admiringly.

"Men," said Thumby, "this is the finest, squarest hunk of up an' up divvyin' with pals that ever I come acrost in over twenty years o' metropolitan activities. Here's a jane workin' solitaire, nobody even to 'stall' for her, an' she not only puts in this here masterpiece o' boostin', but she comes up like a man an' she tosses six grand in the jackpot when not a one of us knew she had a jitney on her. She's nickin' herself for

He plucked Danforth's coat as though there was no question of his taking charge of the enterprise, and when they had moved two or three feet he explained in the necessary high tones, "You sit down here and brace your hand against that; then give me the other hand."

Danforth comprehended what he meant and obeyed, in an odd sort of suspense, as though he had nothing to do but obey. He seated his heavy body in a little depression in the rim of the pot where he could brace his left hand against a higher ledge, his legs hanging over the rim. When the water beneath them subsided a little, following the in-rush of a wave, Ted lowered himself over the rim until his feet rested on the wet and jagged rock below. Then with his left hand he clasped Danforth's right, bracing himself as well as he could against the next inrushing wave. It drenched him to his knees, but he managed to keep his footing.

Thus they waited for the pilgrim. It would be Ted's task to lean out, stoop, and seize the body while Danforth held him. A strange situation, truly—considering all the circumstances. That thought drifted into Danforth's mind.

The pilgrim rolled into view, showing them its back; but too far off. The water boiled over it again. Then, stooping and straining his eyes, Ted indistinctly made out a darker patch beneath a veil of water. His hand gripped Danforth's with all its strength. Leaning out, stooping further, he made a grab. An incoming wave washed him from his slippery foothold and he was down in the water, with only the grip of Danforth's hand. But the water laid hold of him, pulling fiercely. At best all the strength of two muscular hands and arm were needed. With the other hand Ted grabbed Danforth's foot, and so held on while another wave ran over him. Then, as the water subsided, Danforth pulling and pulling himself, he regained his footing and climbed up on the rock rim beside his companion, drenched even to his hair. He got his breath, looked at Danforth, and laughed, wiping the water off his wet face with an arm as wet.

"Sort of nasty!" he shouted, meaning the grip of the pot. After a moment he added, "Guess we'll have to call Louis." Both of them, on the way to the pot, had noticed the gardener working at some shrubbery.

But neither of them made a move to call Louis. Danforth was not making a move in any respect, but was oddly cut off from moving as though his will had been insulated. There was a certain half formulated speculation in his mind, however, to this effect: What was the difference between throwing a man into the pot and just letting go of a man who was already in the pot? The latter expedient was, of course, incomparably the simpler and safer. That half-formulated speculation went on in his mind, without an answer. . . . Only when a man risked his life on an errand of mercy and voluntarily trusted himself to the grip of Danforth's hand and that man was down in the water fighting for his life, why Danforth's hand simply wouldn't let go. On the contrary, he had clung and pulled with all his might. Such were the facts that had happened, and for which he had no particular explanation.

Ted, drenched and beginning to shiver in the wind, was frowning at the pot. "If I could only use both my hands," he shouted to Danforth. Then an idea struck him. "Let's see your belt," he bellowed.

Danforth, the same passive instrument as before, took off his belt. Ted examined it a moment and said, "Sure, that will hold me! My belt's strong, too."

He and Danforth had both assumed that the man in the pot was dead. The complete inertness of the immersed body had seemed to proclaim that, and Ted knew that at this state of the water a body might have drifted there for two hours or more. So he hadn't thought of saving a life. He was moved, however, by a common human pity. Some unfortunate—perhaps a tourist—had ventured too close, made a misstep, and lost his life. That indefinitely connoted other people, such as a wife and children, for whom the misstep would be poignant. Ted could claim the sanction of pity; yet if he had been brought to judgment and asked why he persisted in trying again instead of summoning Louis, and if he had carefully searched in his mind for an answer, he would have had to confess that it was mostly a sporting instinct. He had undertaken a difficult thing and he didn't like to give up; he hated having the pot beat him. Spatting his legs and arms to keep the blood going, he watched for further appearance of the body. As he had anticipated, it drifted across just below them and started its circuit again. At longer or shorter intervals they saw it.

His idea was to buckle Danforth's belt through his own at the back, making a long loop of it, by which Danforth could hold him while he had both hands free. Danforth understood that and waited passively. By that plan once more Ted would be stooping and leaning out over the pot with only Danforth's grasp to sustain him, and this time Ted wouldn't be clasping his hand. If his fingers should relax a bit Ted would be down in the pot. Danforth waited passively.

But as they waited for that deliberate pilgrimage to bring the object beneath them, a new idea struck Ted. He called out, "Maybe we can bring him to! I'll call Louis!"

At once he sprang to his feet. Mechanically Danforth looked around. So at practically the same time both of them saw, sticking over the edge of the crevice by which one gained the pot, a pair of sloping shoulders clad in light yellow plaid, a long neck, a long head with a cap pulled down on it, a loose mouth, and a pair of pale eyes, one of which had a cast in it, giving a wall eyed effect.

After all, upon seeing Ted Pennell make off toward the coffee pot and Danforth Crane go in the same direction, Citizen Samuel Thorp's curiosity had overcome his nervousness in respect to Danforth and he had followed.

In a flash Danforth understood that the fool had been watching them, and that if he had let go of Ted's hand the fool would have been a witness to it. . . . Truly, the devil's own coffee pot; yet the devil didn't have it all to himself. When a man's hand clung to his for life or death some way he couldn't let go; but had to grip and pull with all his might.

While this was flashing in his mind Ted was bawling to Sam Thorp, "Go tell Louis to come here! Tell him to hurry!"

Citizen Thorp was rather glad to get himself away so easily. Turning back to Danforth, Ted explained in a shout:

"Better have Louis. That idiot Thorp is no good."

When Louis, in obedience to this summons—and still followed at a discreet distance by Samuel Thorp—stepped down through the crevice to the edge of the pot, he saw Danforth seated, holding a leather loop, and Ted Pennell on the slippery rock below pulling a man's body out of the water. The body was hard to handle and Louis hastened to help. Two days before he himself might have pushed Ted Pennell into the pot; but since then he had heard something—which he was necessarily keeping strictly to himself—that quite altered his feeling. He now lent a hand heartily. With Ted's precarious footing, handling that heavy, inert object was not easy. The three of them finally got it up over the rim and stretched out on its face. As Ted climbed up, Louis turned the body over and they saw that it was Lester Hilton.

Ted and Danforth looked at each other a moment, and there was an odd kind of loathness in Ted's voice as he said:

"Well—we'll see if we can bring him to."

He knew the "first aid" rules and they set to work—lifting the limp body by the middle to expel the water, stripping off the wet coat, chafing the limbs, working the arms. For perhaps twenty minutes they worked diligently, with hardly a word except a brief direction from Ted. Then Ted ceased and said, definitely, "It's no use," and stood up. For a moment he looked down at the white and handsome face, quite unbruised from the pilgrimage among the rocks. Then for an instant he and Danforth looked at each other. Some way Danforth was plagued by the idea of another body which might have been lying there.

"We may as well leave Louis here with him," said Ted. "Somebody's got to tell Edith."

In that passivity—that odd blankness of mind—which had come upon him of late, Danforth accepted this without comment; only motioning toward his belt, which still dangled at Ted's back; then unbuckling it and putting it around his own waist as he and Ted started away. Ted also seemed to have nothing to say. They tramped toward the house. After they had been tramping two or three minutes, Ted looked around at Danforth to say, in grave confidence:

"He killed Katey. I knew it as soon as you told me she'd been choked and beaten. He beat Edith today and choked her. I caught him at it." Now that Hilton was dead it seemed to him—without reasoning about it—right enough to say that, although he would not have said it before.

"When Peggy and I drove up to the house from the station," Ted went on, "I left her downstairs while I went up with my bag. I was passing Edith's door and I heard something—a cry, you know; but it sounded choked. I opened the door. He had her by the throat, beating her. Of course, I started for him; but he ran out through the dressing room to the next bedroom and got away. She fell as soon as he let go of her. I picked her up. That's how I got my coat bloody. She told me not to say anything, and lock the door. . . . Naturally she didn't want anybody to see her. I wouldn't have said anything, only he's dead."

Danforth had nothing to say to that.

"And then," Ted added, "as soon as the judge told me Katey had been choked and beaten, I knew he did it. There wouldn't be more than one white man in the same neighborhood who would beat and choke a woman."

That reasoning sounded hardly conclusive to Danforth, but he had to acknowledge that a young man who reasoned in that manner—supposing him to be sincere about it—could not be altogether depraved. He felt stupid. Only an hour ago his mind had held a perfectly clear, firm pattern of this affair, but now the pattern seemed to grow confused. He heard himself saying, dully enough, "Hilton was drunk today."

Ted glanced around at him and commented, "He must have been. . . . Probably he came down here and jumped in."

"Likely," Danforth replied.

"That Sam Thorp—up there on the road, you know—told me he saw a man come down here to the pot an hour and a half ago or so, and the man hadn't come away. He's a fool, you know. So I went to look it up; but I had no idea it was Hilton."

Danforth then understood the little pantomime he had seen on the road—Thorp speaking to Ted and pointing toward the sea.

"I told Peggy that Hilton killed her," Ted said after a moment. That, indeed, had been the startling news he had imparted to her at the head of the stairs as she came out of the judge's study.

But in a more or less confused way Danforth had been thinking that statement over during the last few minutes, and he was remembering that Lester Hilton and himself came up on the same train from New York Friday night—the day after Katey disappeared. So it seemed fairly impossible that Hilton had been here on that fatal Thursday. He kept that thinking to himself, however, and nothing more was said between them until they reached the house.

Peggy had meant to go and lie down a while, as Danforth had advised her to; but the commotion in her mind wouldn't permit that. She had aimlessly remained downstairs, and so presently she saw Ted and Danforth approaching the house together from the direction of the sea. As they got nearer she noticed the state of Ted's clothes and ran to the hall. When the men stepped in she was at the door.

"Why, you're soaked! Did you fall in?" she cried.

Ted spoke to Danforth: "You tell her. She may as well tell Edith. I'll go change my clothes." With that he went upstairs.

Danforth told her, very soberly: "Hilton's drowned—in the coffee pot. Louis is down there with the body."

Peggy breathed "O-h-h-h——!" Then in a hushed murmur, "Is he really dead, Dan?"

"Yes," said Danforth. "We tried to bring him to, but it was no good."

They had before them the bare fact of death—sudden and violent. But each of them had in mind certain other things. Danforth had just heard that the dead man had beaten his wife; Ted had told Peggy he killed Katey. Those other things were, so to speak, shock absorbers.

"Edith must be told," said Danforth after a moment.

"Yes," Peggy assented. It seemed to be a woman's task. "Shall I tell her?"

"You can do it best," Danforth replied.

Peggy thought of it a moment and wetted her dry lips. "Do you know how it happened?" For presumably Edith would ask that.

"No. A fellow named Thorp saw him go down there and told Ted—an hour or more afterwards. Ted went down. . . . I went, too. His body was floating around in the pot. Ted got down on the rocks below while I held him and got the body. We worked half an hour to bring him to. Probably he'd been in the water an hour and a half."

Peggy wetted her lips again—pausing for the plunge, so to speak—and said, "Well, I'll tell her."

Going up to Edith's room, she was remembering over again what Ted had told her when she found him waiting for her at the head of the stairs—that Hilton had killed Katey; that he was sure of it. He hadn't told her why he was sure, but only that it was so. Then they had tried together to recall that Thursday—to see if they could bring up some further connection with Hilton. And Peggy couldn't remember that Hilton had been at the house at all that day—was almost sure he didn't come up until the end of the week. That was a bit disconcerting, although Ted still insisted that Hilton killed the maid. Thinking back himself, Ted presently recalled that toward noon that Thursday he had overtaken Edith on the road from Stony Cove wearing Katey's hat and cloak—that miserable affair which had got him into all the trouble with Peggy because he was in honor bound not to tell.

It had always seemed strange to him that Edith Hilton should be going to Stony Cove in that disguise. Now, with this firm prepossession as to Hilton's guilt in respect of Katey—a prepossession built on the bedrock of fact, that Hilton choked and beat another woman—it occurred to him that Hilton must have been at Stony Cove that day, and Edith had gone there to see him. He knew the station agent at Stony Cove, and proposed to take a photograph of Hilton up there to see if the agent could identify it as the likeness of a man who had bought a ticket for Boston or New York—Stony Cove being a forlorn little station where comparatively few strangers came. It was upon that adventure in detecting that he and Peggy were setting forth when Danforth interrupted them in the hall. Ted's reasoning had seemed somewhat nebulous to Peggy; but there was no doubt about his firm conviction that Hilton was the man. All of which was in her mind as she went up to Edith's room.

Her knock at the door brought no answer, and when she opened the door the room was empty. She was quite sure Edith was not down stairs, and stood in the hall for a moment, at a loss. While she so stood the door of Judge Crane's study opened and Lena, the big housemaid, came out rapidly, wiping her eyes. Seeing Peggy, she swiftly looked down to the rug and passed with a quick step. Peggy saw that the maid was not only weeping, but pale and agitated.

However, that gave her a suggestion of the means of finding Edith. She went down to the judge's study and rapped. There was a little pause and the judge's voice called, "Come in." Entering, she saw both the judge and Edith sitting at the farther end of the room, and gave a little cry.

A broad bandage was wrapped around Edith's head, covering more than half her face and one eye, and the remainder of the face was nearly as white as the bandage. Ted had not told why he believed Hilton killed Katey—not having the stomach to tell Peggy that.

"Edith! How did you get hurt?" Peggy exclaimed, hurrying to her.

Edith took her hand, holding it as she replied: "I fell and hurt myself."

With that she turned to the judge, evidently continuing a speech which Peggy's entrance had interrupted:

"He has ability, judge. It's true he isn't very stable—weak in many ways. But there is good in him, too. Lately he has been drinking more than he should. He shouldn't drink at all; he's too excitable, any way. But there's good in him—and ability. . . . I want you to be kind to him."

Peggy perceived that the judge was a good deal moved. He struck a hand across his hair and growled: "Forget it, Edith! Forget it! The slate is wiped. He don't owe me a cent." And in a slightly husky growl he added: "Be sure I'll go a long way to be good to you."

The injured woman replied, low: "Thank you, judge; thank you. . . . That's all, then." She was still holding Peggy's hand, and as she ceased speaking she arose to leave the room.

It had come to Peggy that the man she was pleading for was her husband, who was dead, and a tightness came in the girl's throat. "I have something to tell you," she whispered. Hand in hand the two women left the study and went down the hall to Edith's room.

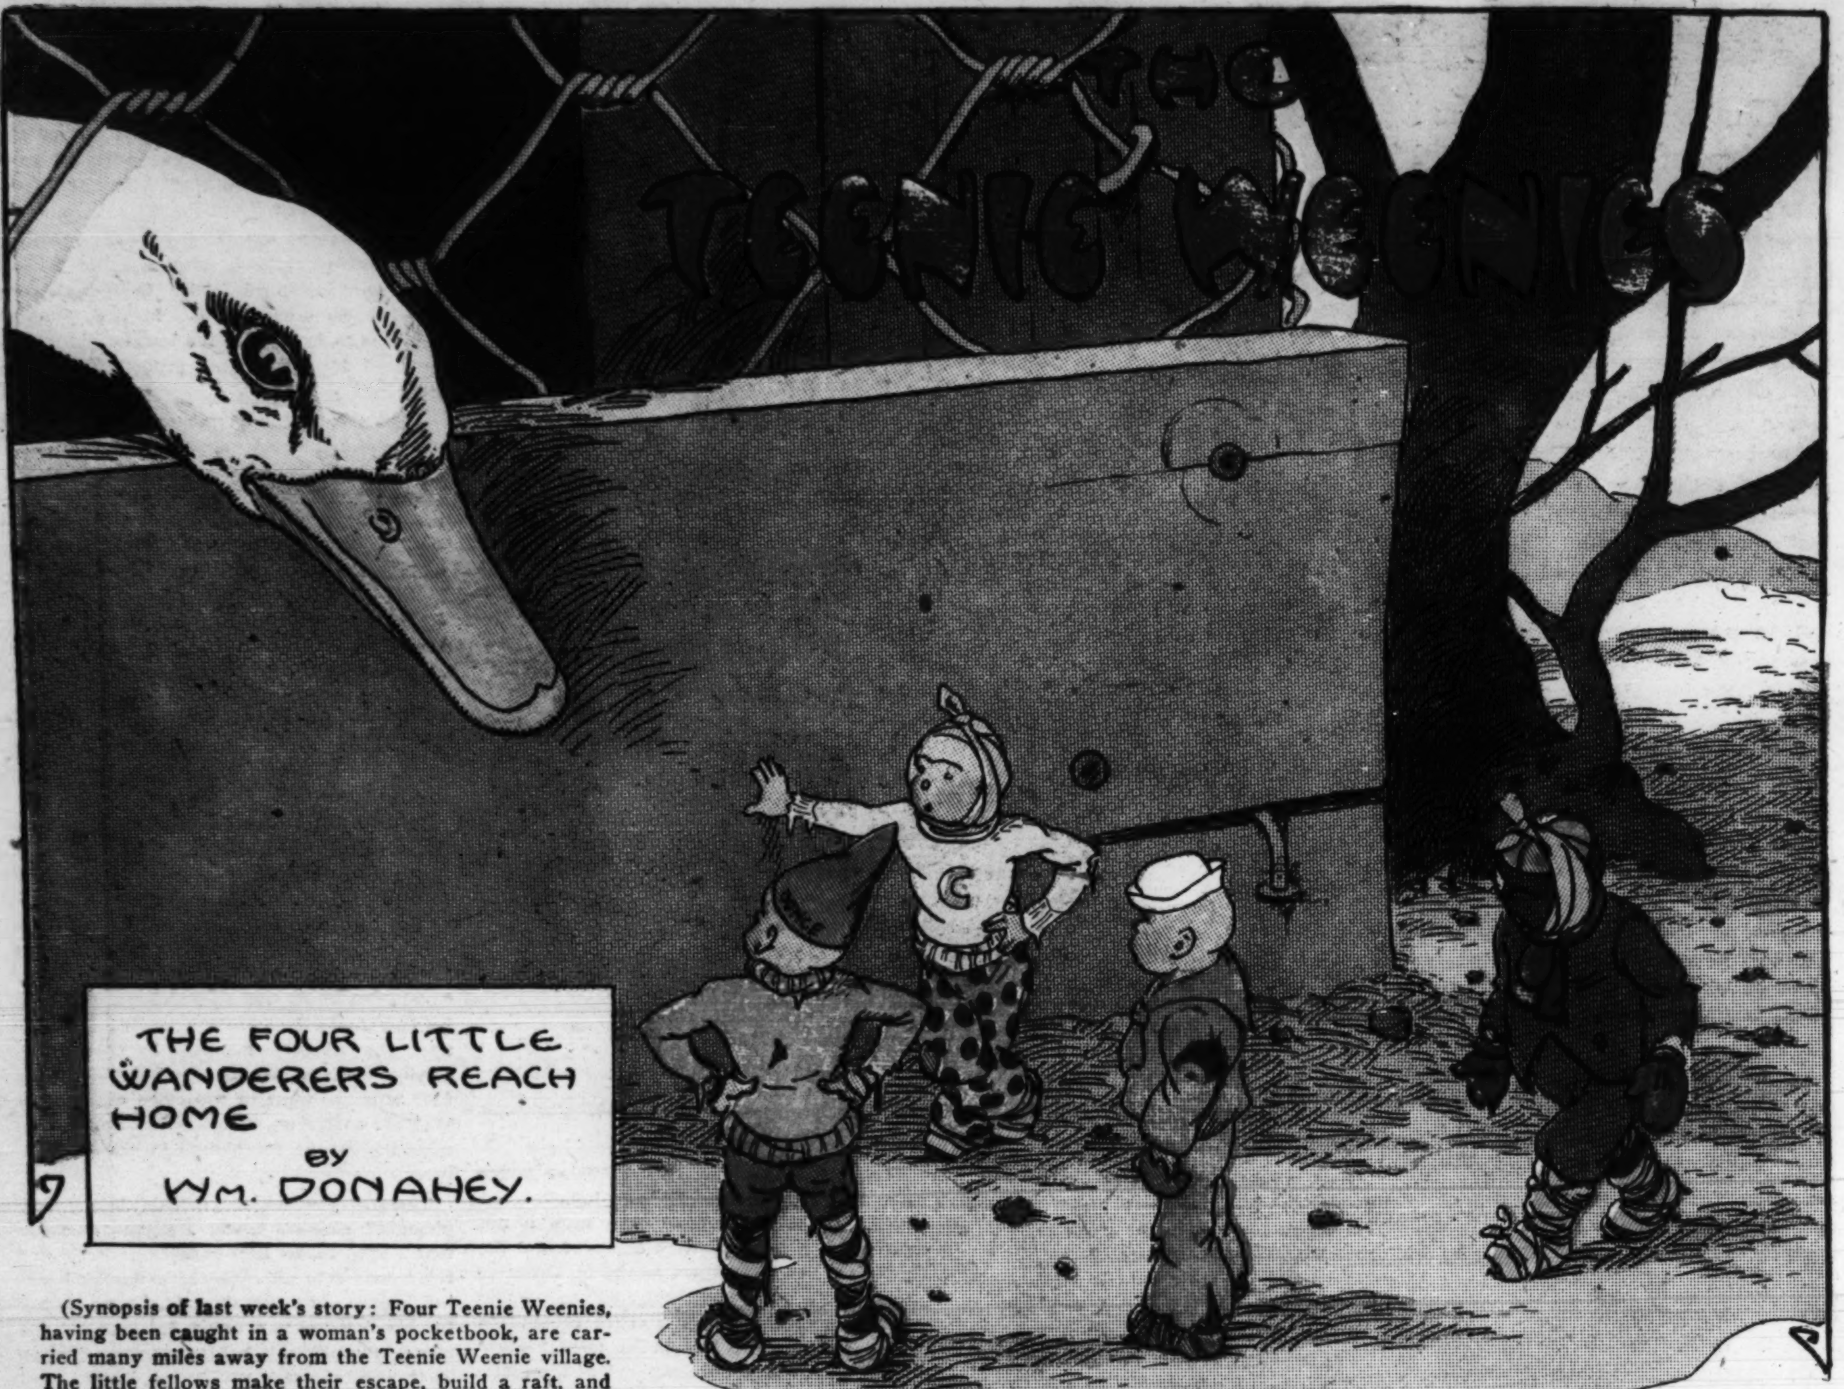
There seemed something brutal about it, however it might be put.

"It's bad news," Peggy began. "Lester had an accident. . . . He went down to the coffee pot——" The words stuck.

"Is he dead, Peg?" Edith asked, after a moment.

Peggy nodded and then told the little she knew—full of pity and self-reproach, with the unreasonable feeling that she was doing something cruel.

When she had heard that little, Edith



THE TEENIE WEENIES

THE FOUR LITTLE WANDERERS REACH HOME

BY WM. DONAHEY.

(Synopsis of last week's story: Four Teenie Weenies, having been caught in a woman's pocketbook, are carried many miles away from the Teenie Weenie village. The little fellows make their escape, build a raft, and start to float down the river towards home. Their raft is destroyed and they manage to save their lives by swimming to shore, where they build a fire in an old tin bucket and try to dry their clothes.)

A COLD north wind was blowing, and the four Teenie Weenies shivered as they stood around their tiny fire trying to dry their wet clothes.

"Y-y-y-you d-d-don't get m-m-me to ride on any more r-r-rivers," chattered the Dunce as he squatted by the fire with his tiny sweater spread out before him.

"H-h-h-how we all g-g-g-goin' to get home?" asked Gogo.

"W-w-w-why w-w-w-walk," answered the Dunce.

"It's an awful long ways home," put in the Clown.

"W-w-w-well, we've got an awful lot of t-t-t-time," stuttered the Dunce. "Gettin' home is all we've got to do for the next two or three weeks, so I think we'll get there after awhile."

It took the four little chaps almost the whole night to dry their clothes, and when that task was done each one of the Teenie Weenies took his turn watching the fire while the rest snatched a few winks of much needed sleep.

After their rest they set out on the long journey home, and for many days tramped towards the Teenie Weenie village.

They managed to pick up bits of food here and there, and at night they crawled into some old can or burrowed into a hay stack for some sleep.

After a few days of walking the little travelers' shoes were quite worn out, and they were forced to bind their feet and legs with bits of cloth and string. Once it rained hard for two days, and the little chaps made camp under a board, where they kept up a fire and were as comfortable as one could be under a board.

Often they had trouble to get food, for they were in the country and the houses were sometimes far apart, but by getting bits of grain from chicken yards and with the help of friendly cats and dogs the little men managed to keep from starving.

One day they were quite out of food, and after a long tramp they finally reached a chicken yard, where they saw a pleasant faced duck peering through the wire fence.

"Good evening, madam," said the Clown, making a handsome bow, while the rest of the Teenie Weenies made handsome bows. "Could you give four poor footsore Teenie Weenies a grain of corn?"

"Why, bless my beak!" said the duck, courtesying beautifully and blushing a deep orange all over her huge beak, for she was quite pleased by the handsome bows of the four Teenie Weenies. "We've been fed this evening, and I don't think there is a bit of grain left. I'm so sorry, but if you will come around in the morning I will save some for you."

"Well, we might as well camp here tonight," said the Dunce, shivering slightly, for the weather was turning cold. "Thank you, madam. We'll find some warm place to spend the night and return in the morning."

"It's going to be rather cold tonight," said the duck, glancing at the sky. "And if you will spend the night in my nest I'll be glad to cover you with my warm feathers."

As it was now getting dark the Teenie Weenies decided to accept the duck's kind invitation, and presently they entered the yard and climbed into the nest.

They nestled down under the duck's warm, soft feathers, and in a few minutes they were sound asleep.

Their sleep was not long, however, for strange bugs began to bite the four little fellows, and they were forced to crawl out and spend the rest of the night in an old oil can.

In the early morning the farmer who owned the duck came out with a pan of corn and wheat, which he threw into the yard, and the little chaps were able to gather enough grain to last for several days.

After thanking the duck for her kindness the Teenie Weenies went on their way, and at the end of a week's hard walk they finally arrived at Shoehurst, where they were given a royal welcome by their friends.

"We had almost given you up for lost," said the General when the little people had hugged each other for the twentieth time. "We traced you up to a house nearby, but we could not find a trace of you there, and we hunted every blessed spot."

The four Teenie Weenies told the rest of the little people all about their adventure, and you may be quite sure they listened with all their tiny ears.

OVERLOOK HOUSE by Will Payne

THE STORY THUS FAR.—Some one has murdered Katey Zobrosky, a maid at Overlook house, the home of Judge Tillman Crane, and suspicion points to Ted Pennell, son of the senior partner in a brokerage firm which handles the judge's financial interests. Just before Katey's disappearance a woman wearing the maid's hat and cloak was seen with the boy in his car. When the body was found in the basement of Overlook house by Sam Thorp, a neighborhood loafer, Ted's coat was spread over the girl's form. Young Pennell was known to have flirted with the pretty maid, and shortly after her death he left Overlook house with no word of explanation. This last circumstance is explained by the fact that Judge Crane, though convinced of Ted's guilt, is determined that the crime shall be suppressed to spare his invalid wife the shock of sensational publicity. So he sends Ted away on a trumped-up errand and has Katey's body buried secretly under a false name. Through the services of a detective the burial and the judge's part in it become known to Lester Hilton, the ne'er-do-well junior partner in the brokerage firm, who has been embezzling the judge's securities, and Hilton promptly uses his knowledge to blackmail the judge into silence about his peculations. Meanwhile Danforth Crane, the judge's son, has undertaken an investigation on his own account. He is in love with Peggy Loughman, Ted Pennell's fiancee, and is determined to convict Ted of the murder of Katey and put him out of the running as a rival for Peggy's hand. Peggy believes in Ted, however, and having found out where he is, she tells him of the suspicion against him and brings him back to face the music. Immediately after declaring his innocence to the judge, Ted is seen by Danforth Crane leaving the Hiltons' rooms in Overlook house, whereupon Danforth goes in and finds Edith Hilton, Lester's wife, brutally beaten and choked. Convinced now that Ted is a dangerous degenerate, Danforth induces Peggy to promise that she will not go anywhere alone with the boy. He is dismayed, therefore, when he finds them together preparing to go out.

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

The Man in the Coffee Pot.

AS Danforth, at the foot of the stairs, confronted Ted and Peggy, the girl murmured a confused apology to him: "I forgot, Dan."

She then turned to Ted, in the same confusion, saying, "I forgot, Ted. I can't go with you now. I have an engagement with Dan."

To her perplexed mind that seemed to leave it all at loose ends and she added: "We can go later."

Ted didn't understand, and he felt something hostile to himself in the burly man half a dozen feet away; but since Peggy had said she couldn't go because she had an engagement with Dan there seemed nothing for him to do except say, "O! Very well, then; we can go later."

No one said anything to that, and after an embarrassed instant he repeated, "Very well. I'll send the car back"; whereupon he walked over to the west door, went out and told the man to take the car back to the garage. He didn't understand what had just happened; he didn't like it; but there seemed nothing else for him to do, and so after standing out there a moment he walked aimlessly away in the direction the car had taken.

In the hall, Peggy was much more at sea than Ted—quite incurably at a loss and embarrassed. It all came back to her then—the scene up in the judge's study when Danforth had warned her and she had felt as though the sky had fallen on her. Up there in Danforth's presence, as he held her hand, she had loved him and trusted him and what he said had impressed her mind as though it were stamped upon it with his own image.

She had left the study meaning to go and lie down, but there at the head of the stairs had been Ted waiting for her. And he had immediately told her, in intimate secrecy, a most startling piece of news, being himself much excited over it. As she listened to him, looking into the young, eager face that she had kissed and hearing the tones of the voice that had first said "Sweetheart" to her, somehow—rather inexplicably and rather shamefully for herself, she thought—that image which Danforth had stamped upon her mind insensibly all faded out and another image took its place. Without realizing what she was about she just naturally loved and trusted Ted again. And, swept away by his startling news, she clean forgot about Danforth and very readily took up with Ted's project to turn this tremendous news to account.

All of which now seemed to make her a mere thistle-down creature, blown by every wind, without weight or stability—for she had promised Danforth. So now, left alone with him in the hall, she felt a great confusion and humility; but as she couldn't explain she only murmured again:

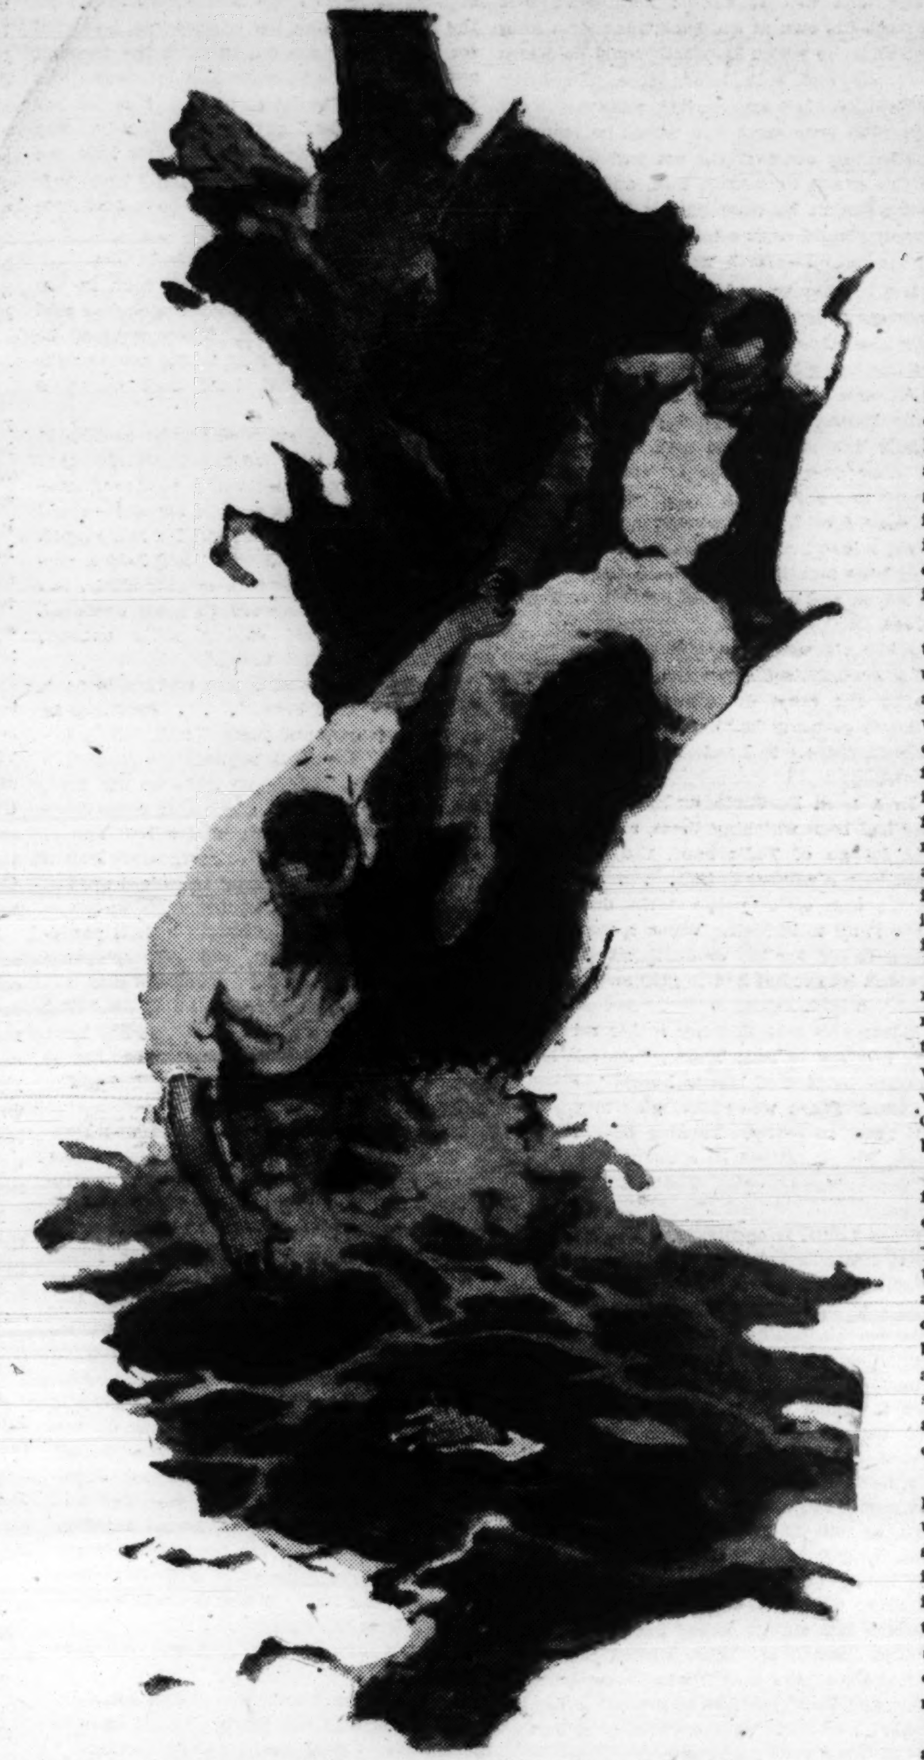
"I forgot, Dan. I'm sorry. Forgive me."

It seemed to Danforth that she was dazed, almost like a person partly hypnotized. He rumbled, kindly, "Better go lie down a bit, Peg."

"I will," she said helplessly and threw off her cloak.

Without speaking again, Danforth put on a hat, selected a stout stick and went out the west door in Ted's tracks.

Nothing, it seemed, would answer; nothing would save her. The girl couldn't understand. He wondered if there had been a sort of hypnotism, and that seemed not improbable. He had begun with the idea of being quite fair to Ted Pennell, but now, for the man whose tracks he was following, he felt a perfect hate. A chap who went about beating women, gripping their white throats in brute fingers. He saw again Katey's dead face and Edith's living face, with the marks; and then sweetest Peggy! But that should never happen!



Stooping and straining his eyes, Ted indistinctly made out a darker patch beneath a veil of water.

It could hardly be said he was thinking at all. He was just following the man for whom he felt the perfect hate—a man who was imminently mortal to him like a rattlesnake coiled and on the point of striking. In that perfect hate, as over a coiled snake, one need do little thinking.

Walking beyond the south end of the house, he pulled his hat lower on his head and inclined his body slightly, for the booming south wind struck him ponderably. Mechanically turning his eyes seaward he saw the spray flung high above the rock rim of the shore and his ear caught a deeper tone than that made by the rushing wind and dashing waves—the steady roar of the coffee pot. It was high tide now and with this boisterous south wind the pot would be boiling furiously.

He had taken but a few more steps when he saw two figures on the roadway some distance ahead of him. One of them was Ted Pennell. The other was long-necked and slope-shouldered, in a light colored suit, a cap pulled down over its tall head, bamboo stick in its hand. Danforth recognized the man as the fool named Thorp, a relative of the furnace man, who had put them on the track in the affair of Katey. The man was speaking to Ted and pointing toward the sea.

For several days now Samuel Thorp had been little by little venturing back into his old familiarity with Overlook House. Nothing had happened to him in consequence of any imprudent conversation that he might have indulged in; and then, latterly, he had taken courage from the friendship of his new acquaintance, Mr. Eastman, whom he knew well enough—trust him for that!—to be a detective. In venturing back to Overlook House he sort of felt the detective's shield and buckler; so now, he was rather at home there once more. Meeting Ted Pennell on the road this blustery day he favored him with some information. And then, seeing Danforth Crane approach, the old uneasiness overcame him. He terminated his conversation with Ted Pennell and moved off.

And Ted Pennell immediately left the road, walking eastward toward the sea. After a moment Danforth also left the road, turning toward the sea. A little later there seemed to be no doubt about the direction in which Ted was going—no doubt that he was going to the pot. Danforth then modified his course a little so as to make, also, for the pot—which would be boiling furiously now. Apparently there was no need for Danforth to think; apparently somebody was managing the affair for him.

Country folks, with a fondness for Satanic nomenclature, had long ago called it the Devil's Coffee Pot, and as though the putative designer had wished to have the place to himself a long heap of loose rock had been thrown up, like a screen, to the west of it. As Danforth approached, the pot's roar rose louder and he saw Ted Pennell slip around the rock screen. Except to an observer close at hand, or out at sea, all that went on behind that screen was hidden.

Danforth himself rounded the screen. On the other side of it the roar strained his ear drums, but the pot itself was still mostly hidden, for the crag billowed up somewhat and in order to gain the pot's edge one had to go down through a little crevice in the granite. Danforth went down through the crevice and saw Ted six feet away, standing on the very brink of the pot, looking down into the tumult of water.

Demonical, and worth the Devil's best in that line, it looked today at high tide and under this high south wind—a furious seeth and swirl of rushing water, as wave after wave roared in and couldn't get out; here churned into dancing milk, there showing faint, vanishing streaks of green; all whirling and tearing at the rocks as though in a fury to escape; the whole surface boiling up nearly to the brim, subsiding and boiling up again, yet every part of the surface in an incessant heaving, pouring and tumbling of its own—like a confined heart of ocean panting in uncontrollable passion.

Whatever foolhardy speculations Ted Pennell may have indulged in on other days, no man could live in that today. Ted stood at the very brink, watching. A featherweight would upset his equilibrium, and this spot was as hidden from human eye as though Overlook and all the coast habitations had been a thousand miles away.

Danforth stepped nearer—no danger of a footfall being heard in this tumult. As he did so Ted—already balanced only by a hair—stooped a little as though to look more intently. Mechanically Danforth looked also, and on the opposite side of the pot made out a dark object in the water, not a rock, but moving. There was instantly something about that object half seen and half veiled—something about its form and texture—that arrested Danforth's eyes, with a sharp clutch, so to speak.

The moving object did not sink or disappear; it only blurred and grew indistinct under a thicker veil of water. Then, as a sporting porpoise rolls an arched back up into view for a deliberate second and vanishes, this dark, moving object came up on the surface and in the three seconds before it sank completely from sight both the beholders knew certainly that it was the body of a man.

Ted took a step backward, turned his head, and saw Danforth standing two feet away, and seemed not much surprised.

"That's a man!" he shouted, to make himself heard above the roar.

Danforth nodded; undoubtedly it was the body of a man.

Many times, in mere foolhardy adventurousness, Ted had studied the currents of the pot, tossing in sticks and logs and watching their behavior. He knew that, while to a casual eye the seeth seemed mere chaos, there was, at high tide, and for comparatively bulky objects, a steady drift round and round the edge. He was obviously excited now and he shouted again to Danforth, "It will come this way; we can get it!"

Togther, then, they stood watching, and in a minute or so the dark object again rolled a shoulder, half a back, into view. In eccentric fashion it was making the circuit of the pot, face down. For some minutes they caught no glimpse of the object they sought, but when they saw it again it had made another stage of its journey. Very deliberate it was in that ghastly pilgrimage as though all the furious motion in which it was immersed affected it not at all. Its deliberateness seemed to say that it was in no hurry whatever, having all time and all eternity in which to complete its journey.

Again they saw it, but as before the face persistently downward and hidden—as though not interested in any possible watchers on the bank.

"We can get it!" Ted repeated, in a shout. "You come here."

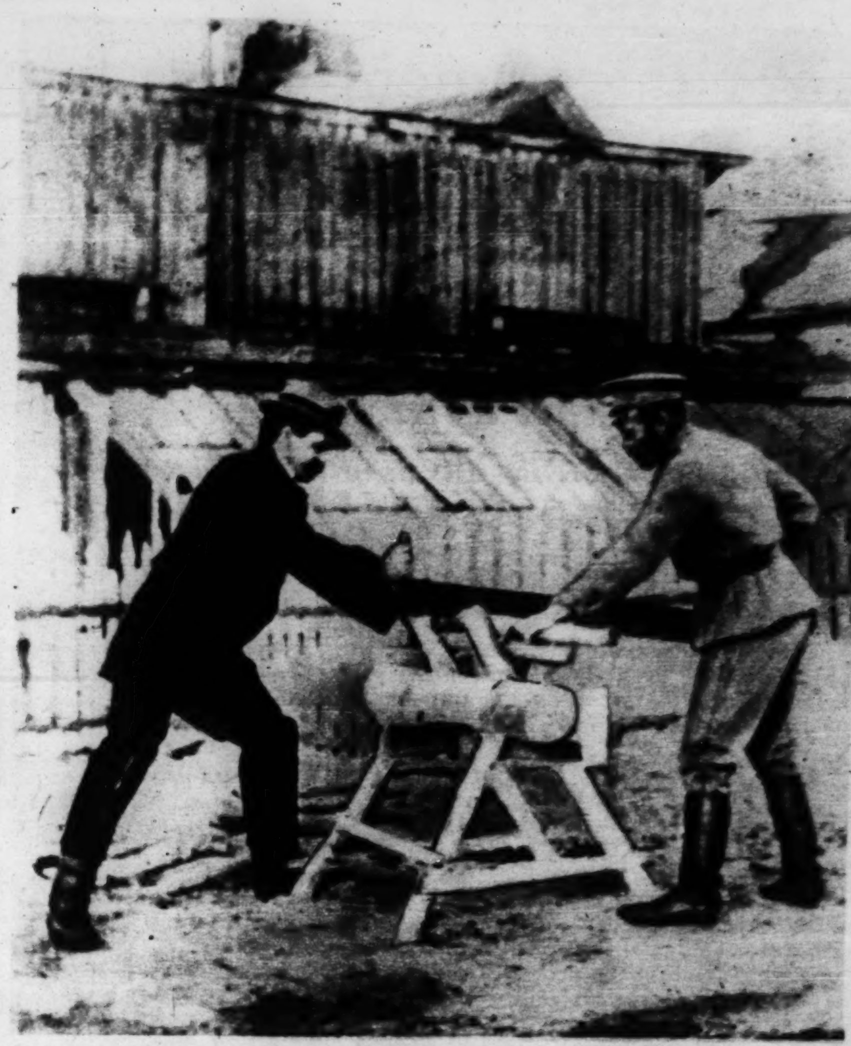
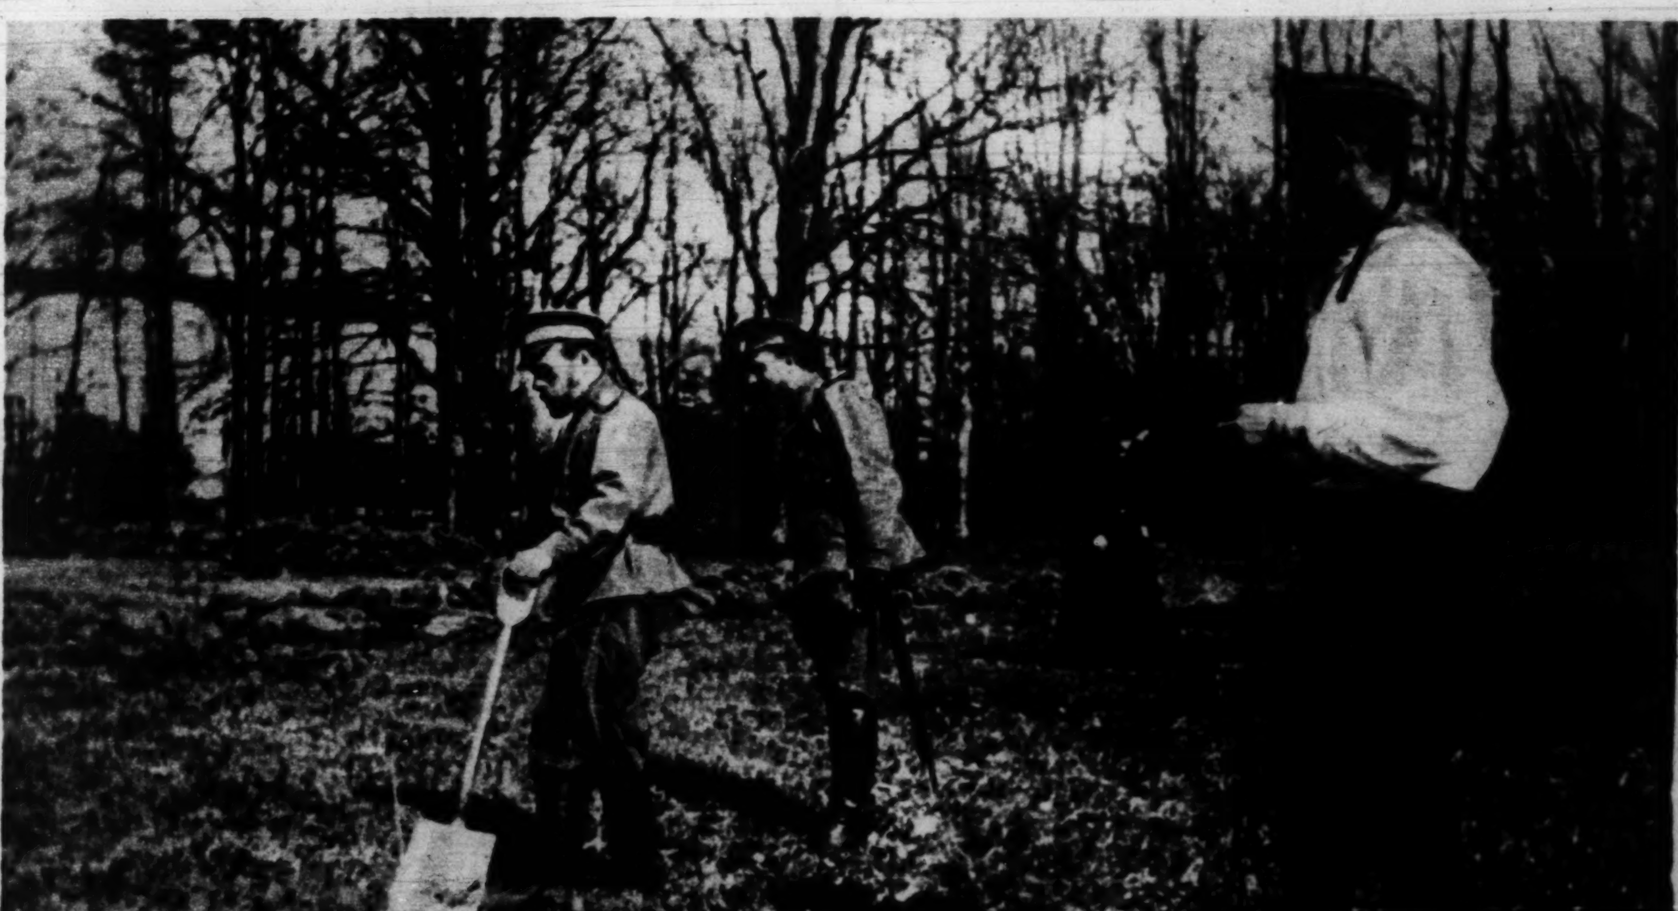
THE CZAREVITCH (holding the spade) and his sister, the Grand Duchess Tatiana, in the park at Tsarskoe Selo, near Petrograd. This picture was taken about two months after the revolution and the czar's abdication.



"KEEPING FIT" IN SIBERIA—The czar and Pierre Gilliard, tutor of the czarevitch, sawing wood at Tobolsk for the two rustic benches which Nicholas II. finished just before he was taken to Ekaterinburg.



THE CZAR AT WORK IN THE KITCHEN GARDEN which occupied much of the royal family's attention during the summer they spent in internment at Tsarskoe Selo. The curious person looking over the emperor's shoulder is the officer of the guard. At the right is Nagorny, a sailor. From the day of the czar's abdication to the time when they were killed, one by one, at Ekaterinburg, none of the family had a moment of genuine privacy.

Advice from Mary T. Goldman

IT introduces you to the safe, sure, scientific way to restore gray hair, discovered by me over 50 years ago. It both proves results and protects you from imitators who make the same claims but can't do the work.

The restoration of gray hair is a serious matter. Learn how to restore your hair safely and surely without danger of disfiguring streaks and discoloration.

Perfected to Restore My Own Gray Hair

The original Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer was not made to sell. I worked on the problem and perfected the formula to restore my own gray hair.

I would not dye and I was not willing to turn prematurely white. So I set myself to find a remedy.

What Mary T. Goldman's Is

Simply a clean, pure, colorless liquid which you can't tell from water, applied by combing through the hair. You don't have to depend on hair dressers or take your friends into the secret. The restoration is gradual and won't attract attention.

Only four to eight days of treatment are required—days through which you watch a transformation. Little by little the gray disappears and the natural color returns. You need never have a gray hair—not at any age.

My restorer doesn't interfere with shampooing, there is nothing to wash off or rub off. It keeps the hair soft and fluffy, easy to curl and dress.

Mail the Coupon Today For Free Trial Bottle

Fill out the coupon carefully—be sure to give the exact color of your natural hair. If possible, enclose a lock in your letter.

By return mail you will receive a trial size bottle and special application comb, with full directions for the trial treatment.

Use this trial bottle on a single lock of hair, watch the gray disappear and the natural color return.

When you know exactly what my hair color restorer will do, get a full size bottle from your druggist, or send direct to me. Don't accept anything else. There are no "just as goods"—you want Mary T. Goldman's.

Skin Eruptions Fade Away

With War's Wonder Healing Agent

Ends itching, eczema, dandruff, boils, carbuncles—soothes inflamed skin as nothing else can. Free trial proves it. Test its many uses.

Most skin diseases are due to tiny germs that enter the skin through the pores. So the one and only scientific way to end the trouble is to destroy the germs.

Never before was there an antiseptic so healing, so effective in destroying germs, and with so many users, as Kloria. The way it wipes out eczema, barber's itch, and other skin diseases, almost challenges belief. The way it soothes irritation, soreness, itching scalp and itching anywhere is truly amazing. For dandruff, simply wet the scalp with Kloria and notice this troublesome affection disappear with a few of these easy treatments, yet it is harmless as water to the hair. One trial for almost any skin disease shows results you never thought possible.

This is the same wonderful antiseptic agent, discovered in the war, which healed wounds often in one-fourth the usual time, and conquered infection where all old-standard antiseptics had failed.

Kloria doesn't irritate, is soothing, pleasant and absolutely safe because not poisonous. Yet, by scientific test, it is over 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid.

Test Kloria on a boil, carbuncle or open sore. Notice how it destroys the pus infection, ends the soreness and heals with magic quickness. For cuts and burns, it insures quicker, cleaner healing than iodine, peroxide or any old-time antiseptic or salve. Use it for mouth wash or gargle—see how quickly it relieves sore throat and canker sores—how clean the mouth feels. Apply it to sore, bleeding gums (pyorrhea) and see if the soreness and bleeding do not disappear within a week. Harmless, yet far more effective than poisonous antiseptics for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic, which is clean, colorless, stainless and virtually odorless.

All druggists, 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

KLORIA
"The All-Purpose Antiseptic"

Tables loaded with food, yet—

a vital element now known to be lacking in our meals

Science discovers why thousands who are apparently well fed never enjoy vigorous health

THE vital tissues upon which their health and strength depend, starving for lack of one single element in food!

That is the situation of thousands of men and women today—people who eat plentifully and regularly, yet are in reality slowly drifting, as one specialist puts it, "into the twilight zone between health and disease."

Science has discovered that the mysterious life-giving vitamine is essential to health.

Without it our food, no matter how good and plentiful, cannot give us the energy we need to do our daily work.

Yet our modern diet is often robbed of this vital element by manufacture and preparation! "We now know definitely," writes one of our greatest authorities, "that the regular diet of a large portion of the people of the United States is falling short of maintaining satisfactory nutrition."

This is what has caused yeast to assume such a new and startling importance in our food.

The mysterious, almost magical "vitamine"— its richest source

Scientists tell us that yeast is the richest known source of the vigor-making vitamine which is lacking in so many of our common foods. Physicians and food specialists have obtained almost magic results by adding it to diets.

Today, thousands of men and women are eating Fleischmann's Yeast to correct the vitamine deficiency in their ordinary meals. Yes. Just plain, everyday Fleischmann's Yeast—in the cake, just as you buy it at the grocer's.

As a result, many are finding themselves free of minor ailments—often for the first time in their lives. They are building up increased resistance to disease, and are feeling an abounding sense of vigor and energy they have never known before. Read the details of this important discovery in the panel at the right.

Yeast may be eaten at any time, with or between meals, 1 to 3 cakes a day. Spread it on toast or crackers—dissolve it in milk or fruit-juices—or eat it plain. It has a rich, cream-cheesey flavor that you will like.

One precaution: People who are troubled with gas would do well to dissolve the yeast in boiling water.

Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast; but not more than two or three days' supply at a time.

To learn more about this important discovery about yeast, what it has done for others and what it can do for you, fill out the coupon at the right and send for interesting new booklet, "The New Importance of Yeast in Diet."

THE FLEISCHMANN COMPANY
Dept. 132-C, 701 Washington St., New York, N. Y.

Our food, though plentiful and good, is often robbed of this vital element.

The value of yeast proved by scientific tests

A simple food that builds up health

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST, a simple, familiar food, has the remarkable qualities of increasing appetite and helping digest the increased food which the stimulated appetite demands.

In scientific tests of the therapeutic value of Fleischmann's Yeast in certain common ailments which often come with lowered vitality, the statement of the doctors was: "In many of these cases which came under our observation, the yeast treatment caused an improvement in the general physical condition of the patient quite unassociated with the improvement of the symptoms associated with the particular disease in question."

To build up and maintain health, keeping the body resistant to disease, eat 1 to 3 cakes of yeast a day—a part of your regular diet.

Laxatives gradually replaced

IT is recognized that laxatives bring only temporary relief—they cannot remove the cause of the trouble. Fleischmann's Yeast by its very nature as a wholesome food is better suited to the system than coarse substances, drugs, or oils. It is a conditioner that in tested cases has restored normal functions in periods of time ranging from 3 days to 5 weeks. And it cannot form a habit.

To help the body eliminate waste, eat from 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day.

Aids digestion

YEAST furnishes a large quantity of the vitamine which makes every ounce of nourishment count in building new stores of energy and health.

To improve digestion and get full benefit from the food you eat add Fleischmann's Yeast to your regular diet—1 to 3 cakes a day.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO AND ALICE TERRY spent long hours practicing a tango dance which you will see in Metro's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." This, you know, is a picturization of a novel of the same name by Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

Mr. Valentino has appeared in various productions. The one in which you liked him best, however, I imagine, was "Once to Every Woman." Miss Terry is a Texas girl. She was born in Nashville, Texas, in 1896 and educated in Washington, D. C. She has been on the stage and has appeared in various pictures for Vitagraph.

Mae Tinee.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS recently approached his mother with determination in his eye.

"Look here!" said he to pretty Mrs. Caroline Harris Barthelmess, "what's the idea of making me do all the posing for the family? You come right down with me and let me show the world what a handsome mother I have."

So here they are—reading from left to right, Mrs. Caroline Harris Barthelmess and her popular screen idol son, Richard Barthelmess, also known as the brand new husband of Mary Hay.

Mae Tinee.

AN UNCROWNED QUEEN OF SOCIETY—Radiant; charming; admired; envied; followed by a ripple of excited questioning. "Who is she?" ask men. "What is her age?" murmur women. What is the secret of her charm? There is an indefinable subtlety of allurement. What is it? Her hair? Ah, the secret is out! That crowning glory proclaims her Queen. None can guess her age, but all bow to her undisputed reign. Her hair, once faded and streaked with gray, was tinted at home with harmless "Brownatone," her talisman of beauty. Instantly that hair became her chief attraction—resplendent in its rejuvenated color.

Any woman can easily tint streaky, gray, faded or bleached hair any shade of brown or black instantly with "Brownatone," the clean, odorless, greaseless, harmless preparation. Two colors: "Golden to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black." At drug and department stores, 50c and $1.50. For trial bottle send 11c, for postage, packing and war tax, to The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 544 Coppin Building, Covington, Ky.

Those who prefer having their hair Brownatoned by a specialist or who desire advice will visit the Brownatone Shop, 1033 Stevens Building, Chicago.

Hats of brilliant hue decreed for spring

THERE'S so much "personality" in your favorite straw hat whose lines you know suit you so well, that it seems a shame to throw it away. You doubtless have several straw hats in your wardrobe that you have discarded only because their surface has become soiled and faded.

It's easy to make them just like new—radiant and vivid in bright colors, or alluringly smart in the softer, quieter shades—by the use of Colorite.

Get Colorite from your drug, dry goods or department store, in U. S. 25c., Canada 30c. If offered a substitute, send us 30c. and we shall send you Colorite postpaid; in Canada 35c. Brush for applying included. 16 colors from which to choose. Be sure to name the color you want.

Beautify Your Hair with "DANDERINE"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

IF YOU care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually, why not now?

THE WRECK OF THE R-34—Here is the famous airship, familiar to Americans through its crossing of the Atlantic in the summer of 1919, beating itself to pieces at its moorings at Howden, England. The huge craft, which cost a quarter of a million pounds, was disabled after bumping into a hill, but was brought to port by its daring crew, only to be thrashed into a total wreck after it had been moored.

POSED IN THE SALON OF JOSEPH

Time: The Present.

Scene:

Salon de Joseph

(The inimitable Joseph whose creations thrill the heart of woman.)

THE velvet curtains part—a vision glides between. A gasp—"Could anyone but Joseph fashion that!"

And then another ripples by, statuesque and dark, petite and fair they come. Type follows type, each gowned as only Joseph's art could gown, well-poised, each figure fairer than the last. Could such lithe grace and silhouette be yours? Could Joseph give you lines as clean and smooth as these? And Joseph answers "Yes, but Madame must be corseted as are the forms on which I build my gowns." The Redfern Corset is Joseph's choice for all his mannequins. The Redfern Corset's slender, firm but pliant lines are those on which Joseph drapes and fits his works of art.

Remodeling the figure into lines of fashion

Note in the illustration at the left how the Redfern has reduced the heavy figure lines. No matter what your faults of figure there is a special Redfern model to correct them and make you a perfect figure of your type. Have your corsetiere select the right Redfern for you.

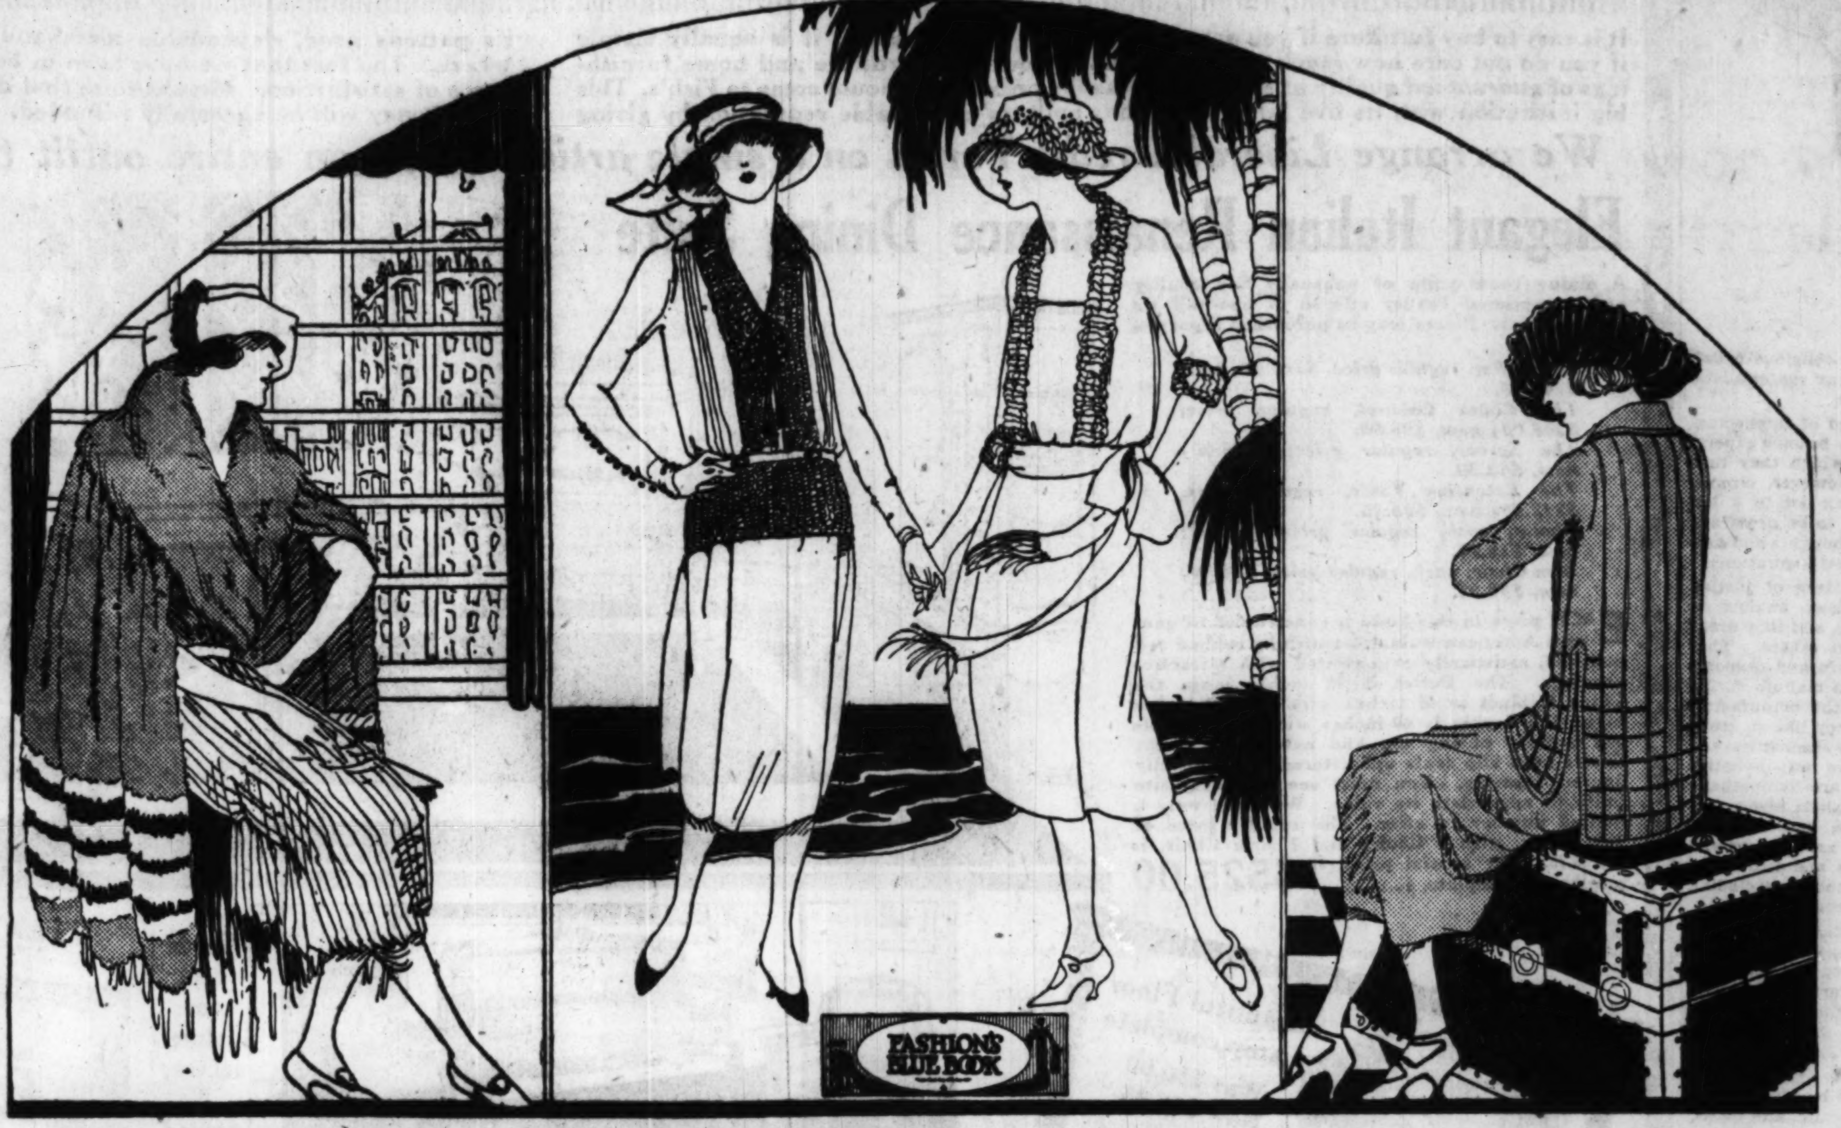
THE KNITTED DRESS COMES TO THE FORE

by CORINNE LOWE

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune



ONE of the little knit-knacks of the season is shown in this cape of shaggy wool in tan with bands of alternate white and brown in knitted wool. Another is indicated in the second frock, a cinnamon colored georgette with trimming of knitted silk in henna. The third is composed entirely of light green knitted silk banded in crocheted silk of dark green. At the last, black cord in stripe and check effect makes a blue serge suit look like a bright new thought.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—There are a great many modes which are modish only with our Wax Sister. Upon her, as she stands in the shop window, falls the entire burden of maintaining some one style or other. The rest of us just look and snicker: "Look at that, will you? Catch me being seen in a dress like that!"

For some time past the knitted dress has been one of these Wax Sister modes. It has been seen a great deal in the shops, but to a limited extent in the home. Of course, now and then some fashionable person essayed it at Palm Beach or some other resort, but for the most part the American woman resisted every blandishment and persuasion of her Wax Sister. She resisted, too, all reports that such costumes were immensely popular with both the French and the English women. And she was undoubtedly right to resist.

The truth of it is that up until a short time ago the knitted dress was a clumsy and graceless garment that made us look much like Bye-a-Baby-Bunting after father's hunting expedition. It was something to wrap us in, and that was all. Now, however, the creators of this type of dress have succeeded in making it really fit. It doesn't look any more as impromptu as a blanket.

Now that this knitted dress has undergone such a reformation we are sharing this mode with our Wax Sister. It is being taken up more and more widely, and it well deserves the recognition by effects of color and style that are so different from those pioneer attempts.

The knitted dress is usually made with a jumper blouse, to which a girdle gives the peplum effect. It runs to stripes almost as consistently as a zebra, but there are, of course, other ways of varying the surface. A few plaids are used, and in this design a brand new effect is gained by woven ridges.

Whether, however, it be stripe or plaid, the figured fabric is usually offset by plain knitted goods. Indeed, plaid or stripe frequently has a timid way of appearing only about the peplum, skirt, and sleeves. For example, a sober-minded dress of chocolate brown which I saw the other day made use of only two stripes of dark brown to peplum and skirt.

Even more popular than the knitted dress is the knitted cape. This has jumped up in schools around the waters of Palm Beach, and delightful are the colorings which it has taken on.

The knitted fabric is popular, not only as a substance for the entire garment, but as a trimming accessory. Thus on the smart cape at the left of this page the shaggy tan wool background is relieved by the alternating stripes of white and brown executed in the knitted material.

Wool is not the only thing treated to this weave. Silk has also succumbed, and one of the new fabrics of the season shows a fine knit silk. This may be used either as the dress fabric or as an embellishment.

The latter destiny is outlined by the second figure from the left, a frock of cinnamon georgette trimmed with yoke, collar, and peplum of the novelty weave in henna tint. The third model is built entirely of the new fabric, here occurring in jade green, while the bands are of heavy dark green crocheted silk.

Speaking of trimmings, dare we say something about the tape measure of style? Enough tape is being used these days to trim up any bureaucracy. Especially is this true of some of the new organdies and other cottons. But it has also been tried out on the heavier materials. Not only tape is utilized, but various trimmings which it resembles. Thus a showing of early spring modes conducted by one of our leading dressmaking houses was quite notable for models set off by ribbon, braid, tape, and strips of fabric in ribbon widths; also cord.

We call to mind, for example, a sulphur chemise frock distinguished by ribbon lengths of the fabric set on in cartridge plait effects, and a street frock from Jenny which, after playing around with black luster ribbon on the side panel, extended it to the back of the neck, from which it descended in one straight unbroken stripe to the hem of the skirt.

The new blue serge suit for spring days at the right of the page is greedy, in so much as it seizes upon both braid and cord for its accomplices. The former binds collar, cuffs, and edge of the jacket, while the latter is trained into a stunning square and stripe effect. In both cases the trimming is black.

Since blue serge and white organdy were introduced they have become inseparable playmates. All the showings of early spring models justify this announcement. One French designer, for instance, sends us a skirt of the serge with a blouse of white organdy. In order to more completely reconcile the two alien types of material she sets upon the organdy a design of wool embroidery in the navy of the skirt and then drops long wool streamers of the same tint from waist line to hem.

But the most sensational of all the organdy and serge gowns is to be found in the models created by Renee which are just now being brought to this side. Renee is famous, you know, for what I always call kindergarten work. That is to say, she loves to cut out designs of fabrics and applique them to the garment.

Well, her brand new thought about applique work is little triangles of some fabric contrasting in color with the dress upon which they are set. These triangles are tiny, and they are arranged in designs which permit the points to come together. One of the usual methods of working out this geometrical passion is to put figures of white organdy on blue serge.

Once more we are to have our summer organdy recital. Far from having receded in favor, this material is more popular than ever. Navy blue is again to be a popular shade of organdy, but we find many more dashing tones. There is copper color, for example, which is to be located in some of the French inventions. One striking model in this tint fresh from a Paris atelier had the long bloused line of its corsage almost entirely policed by eyelet work, the edges of which were bound in gold tissue.

The waistline! O, la, la, la, the skirt hem's the limit. Only when it reaches this far shore will the Ulysses-like temperament of our wanderer be satisfied. The newest models for spring have a trailing waistline to which the skirt seems to add only a little uffle. These frocks, emphasized in the French collections for spring, are brought out with unusual violence by the Madeleines.

Their things really make us think of the frocks which used to be worn by children—these long meandering "bodies" with only a penny frill of a skirt around the knees.

Be that as it may, here in New York we seem to be quite a good deal addicted to the basque type of frock. This style is carried out in crisp taffetas and in Canton crepe with excellent effect. And as a last word let us emphasize the popularity of Canton crepe for everything from the sports skirt to the hat.

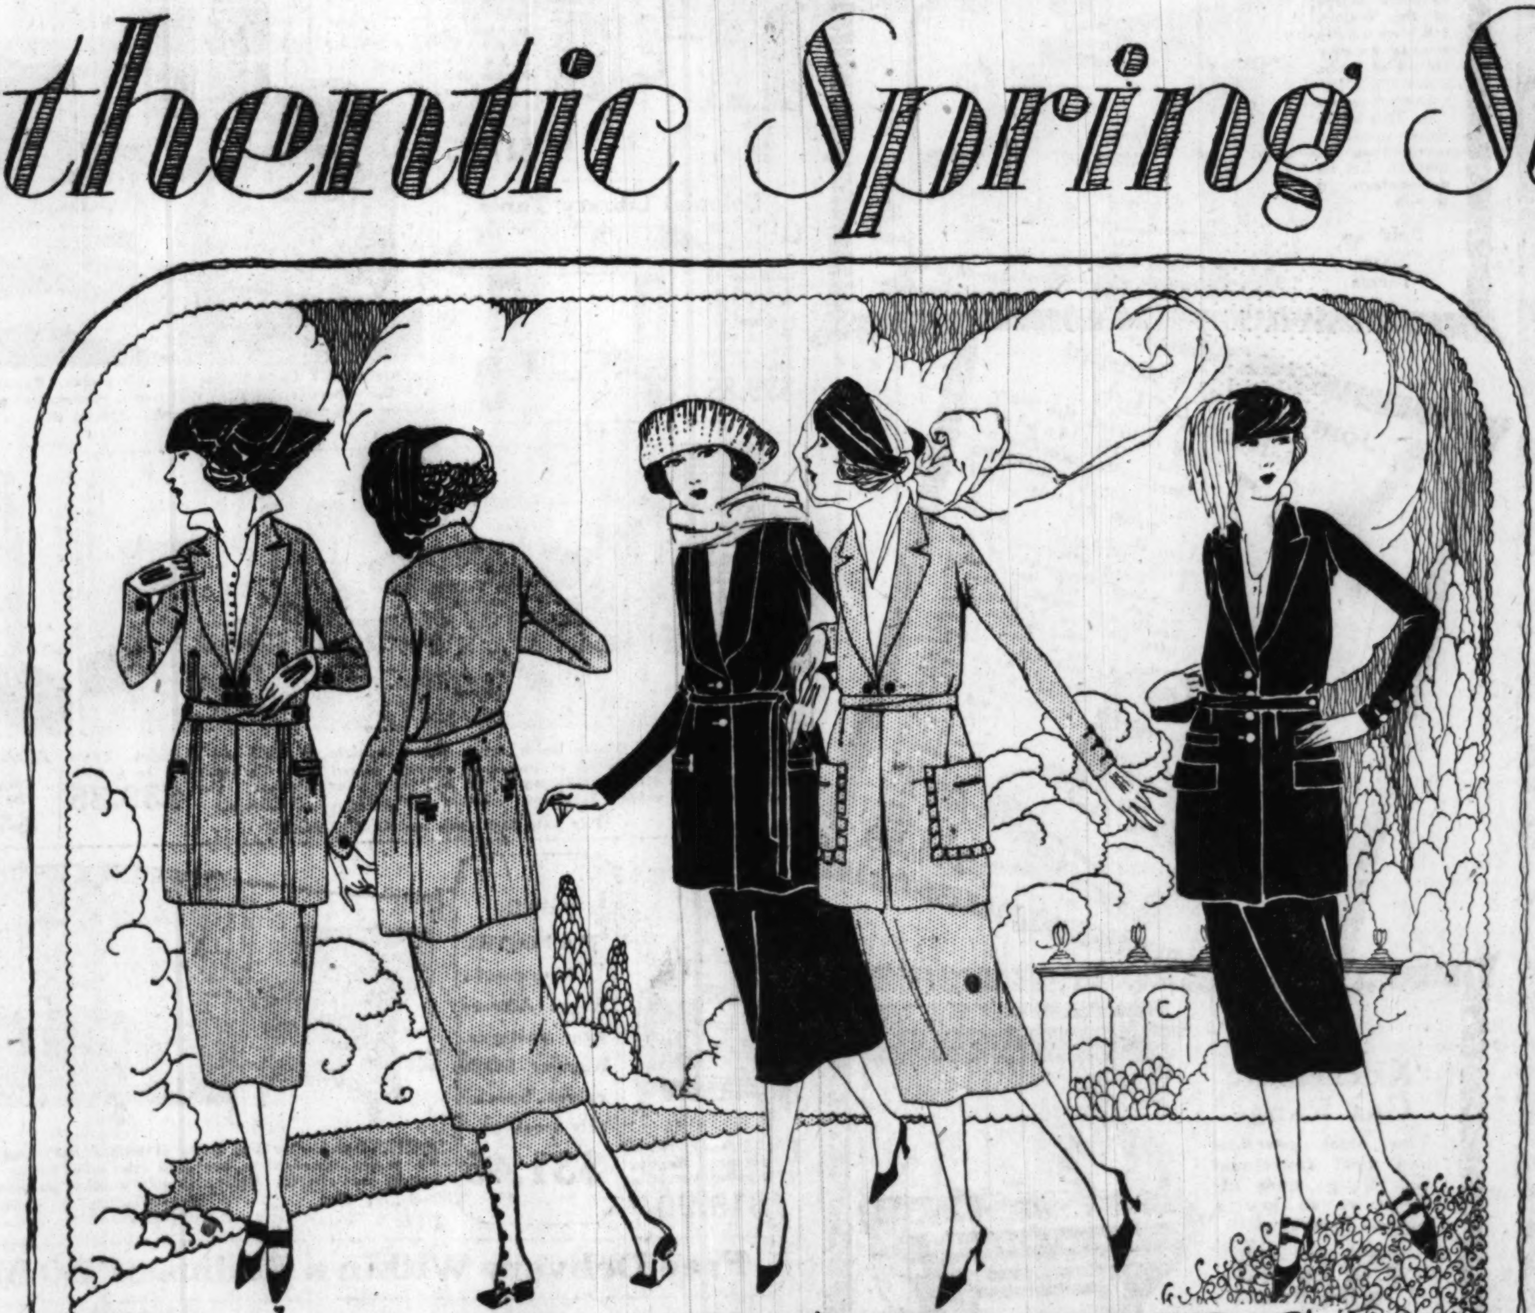
Authentic Spring Styles

MILLINERY

NEVER was our Millinery Section more attractive with lovely Hats — each day brings new models with those of our own adaptation. Whether large or small, the Spring hats are black or flame with the new colorings, tangerine, yellow, flamingo, rust and cerise.

The shapes show variation. There are small mushrooms, suggesting Charlotte Corday, and large hats with graceful, sweeping lines, trimmed with feathers, flowers, fruit or stunning ribbon bows.



the NEW TAILLEURS

TAILORED with a precision of fit and finesse that is distinctive of custom tailoring, these varying types of tailleurs establish the mode for spring.

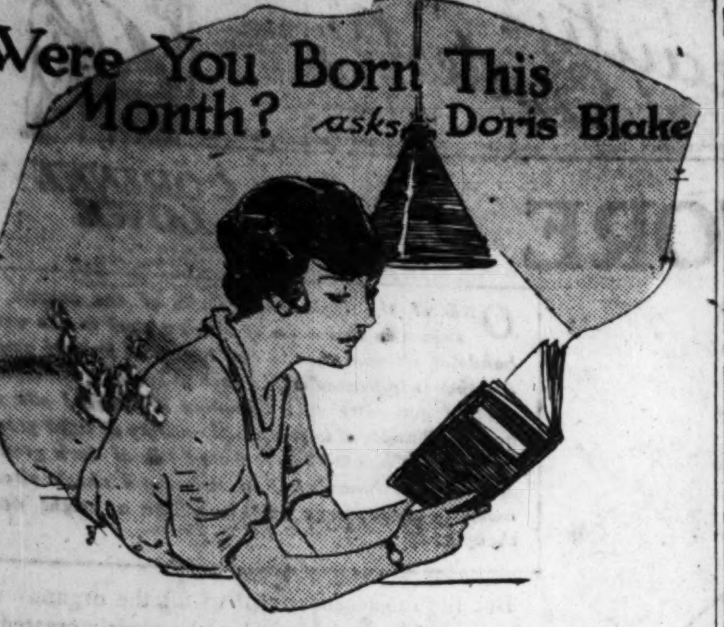
They are developed in Twill Cord, Piquetine, Piquetwill, Tricotine, Poiret Twill and Covert, and each one typifies that traditional high order of tailoring that Stevens always maintains.

BLOUSES

YES, it's a Parisian Overblouse, a real hand made French import. This is only one of the many imported blouses that are adding interest to our Blouse display. The exquisite Oriental colorings — jade, china blue, along with dark blue, black and French tans — have been the inspiration for clever fingers in designing them with beautiful silk or bead embroidery.

Just as noteworthy are the new Sports Blouse and the frilly Lingerie ones.

Were You Born This Month? asks Doris Blake



So many, many requests have come in the last week for horoscopes for the months of February and March. I suppose the famous birthdays must revive an interest in the influence of stars.

As you know, the signs which are supposed to govern birth dates do not begin with the first day of the month and end with the last.

Aquarius is the sign governing the period from January 21 to February 19. From February 20 to March 21 the sign Pisces rules.

Pisces people are the students of the race. Nothing is treated superficially by them. They want to get at the root of things, which explains their habit of questioning everything and always wanting to know the reason for things.

No occasion is too insignificant for them to get information from. They are always alert in a quiet, orderly way to learn whatever they can of interest. They are naturally endowed with a capacity for thought, industry, common sense, and a perseverance above the average.

They are logical and positive in their opinions, and, while they are kind hearted, affable, and apparently submissive and yielding, they are vastly determined in the accomplishment of their plans, which are the result always of a long and careful deliberation.

In the fulfillment of a duty or a promise they are equally determined.

Their logical minds demand a reason for their personal actions. On account of this trait they are most skeptical about accepting a new religious belief; in fact, they have many materialistic tendencies to overcome.

If they are possessed of intellectual ability, they frequently become experts on those subjects to which they turn their attention. If, however, circumstances have cast their lot in a low channel, they are apt to be gross and materialistic in their thoughts and habits, and lack intellectual aspirations.

They have strong ideas of justice. They are conscientious, anxious to earn what they possess, and they dread to be dependent upon others. They are liable to self-censure and despondency. They have good manufacturing ability and belong to the manufacturing sphere of life. They like to study out little problems in mechanics and engineering, and have an inventive turn of mind. They are sympathetic and philanthropic, anxious about providing for the future, and at times even penurious. They are nervous and exacting in all things and rather inclined to be severe and fault-finding in business and domestic life.

They are usually distinguished by their pale complexions, fine and sensitive skin, and full round forehead. They are sensitive to surroundings and to changes in the weather.

Sympathetic friends are those born between June 22 and July 22 and between Oct. 24 and Nov. 22.

The birthstone is the bloodstone.

Colors: Gray, pink, white, and black.

Fortunate weeks: Those beginning with Nov. 12 and Aug. 5.

Varied Activities of Women

Since 1915 the enrollment of women at Cornell university has increased nearly 100 per cent.

Princess Anikegi of the Cherokee tribe, has taken up aviation with the view of becoming the first of her race to win a flying license.

Miss Ivy McCarthy of Kirkeville, Mo., who went to England as an unknown, is now one of the most successful sculptresses in London.

Few big game hunters in the Yukon are as well known as Mrs. W. W. Dickenson, a middle aged woman, who has hunted moose, caribou, deer, mountain goats and bears for many years in immense stretches of territory which are still marked "unexplored" on recent maps of the far north.

High heels are designed to go in Massachusetts if the bill sought from the Legislature by the Massachusetts Osteopathic society becomes a law. The bill provides for the prohibition of the manufacture, sale, and wearing of heels more than one and one-half inches in height.

Miss Sophie H. Hamant is the only woman among six persons handling a foreign exchange department in this country. She manages such a department in the office of the Cincinnati representative of the Guaranty Trust company of New York. One hundred and thirty-five banks, merchants, and manufacturers depend on Miss Hamant for their daily information about foreign exchange rates.

The Countess of Warwick has thirty monkeys, which are given the freedom of her home and the spacious grounds which surround her country estate.

It is a faultless mechanical "laundress" that washes and wrings the whole family laundry, month after month and year after year, with quiet and economy. It is a big help in solving the laundry problem of today. There will be no more body-tiring washdays—the Wayne does all the hard part of the work. The largest and most dreaded washings seem like play because soap and hot water, with the patented hob-by-horse action of the Wayne, thoroughly cleanse every thread of fabric in the big, smooth copper tub. This is the finest washing machine on the market. Let us demonstrate it to you.

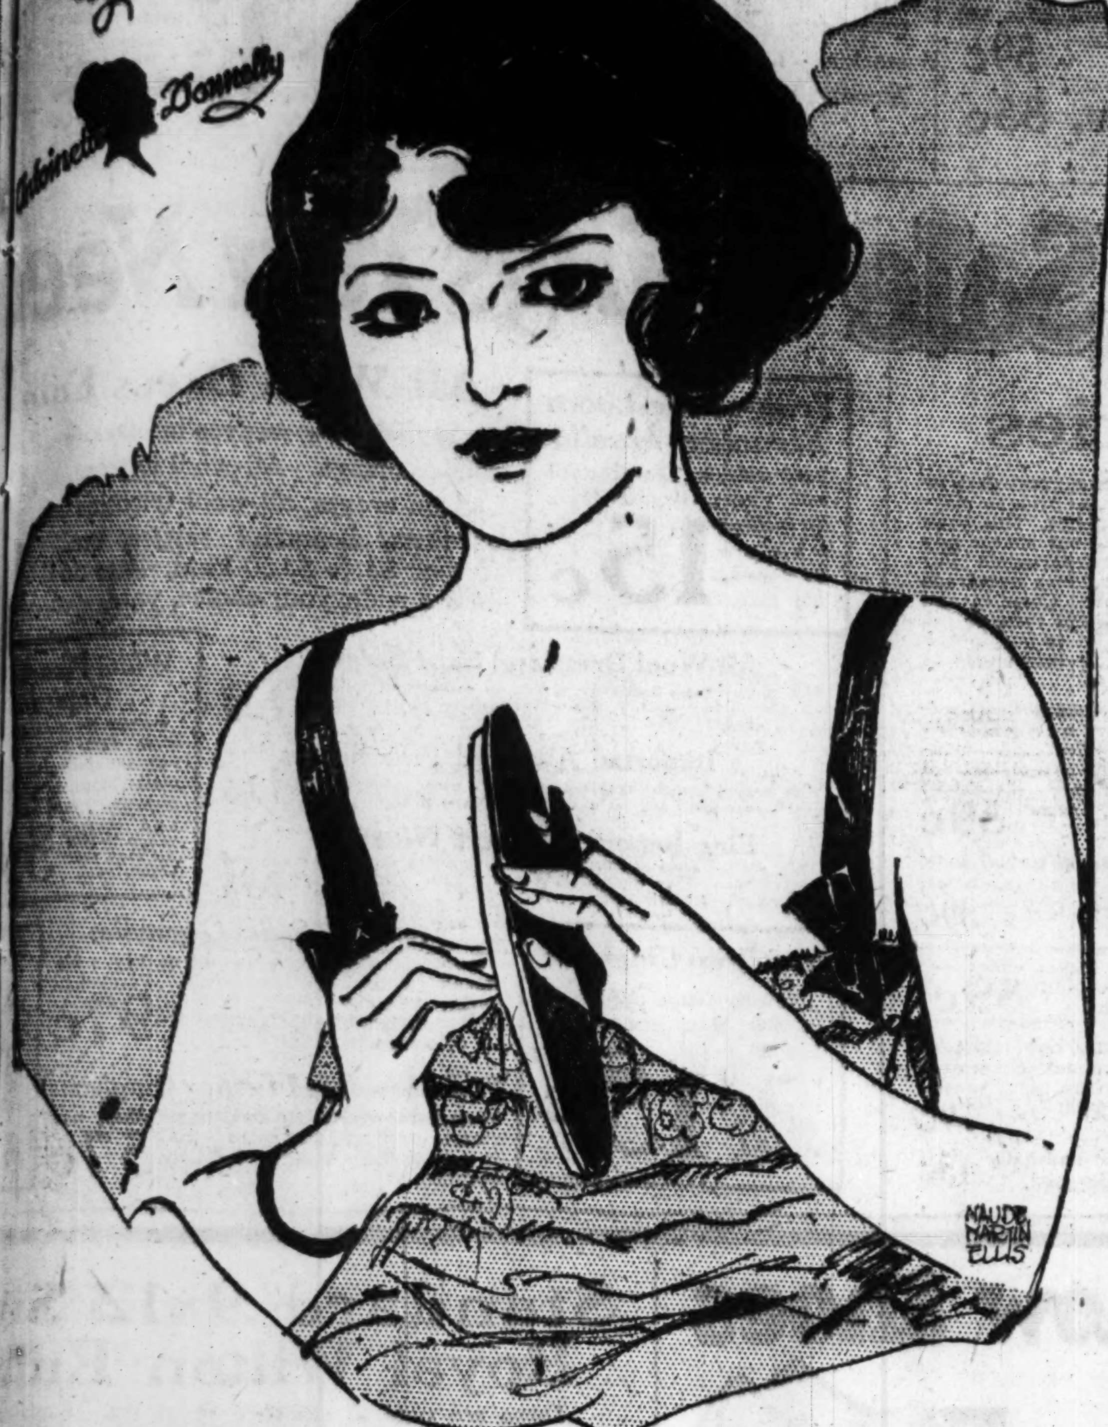
Beautiful Hands

by

Antoinette Donnelly



Is your beauty hurt? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

A GROUP of adorable, young things were gathered in front of marble washbowls in the rejuvenating parlor, less elegantly called the washroom, of a smart club, dabbing powder on noses retrousse, noses straight, and noses—just noses.

"Wasn't Marie perfectly adorable last night in that ciel gown," piped up the second from the end between lip stick applications.

"O, just darling!" squeezed the next door neighbor right through the invisible hairpins in her mouth. "Isn't she the dearest, sweetest thing on earth—and the prettiest!"

"Where do you get that mode of speech?" came from the other end of the line, as the speaker carelessly slithered the rouge puff across a pale cheekbone. "I don't think she's pretty. I've been to a dozen parties with her this winter—and I've yet to see Marie's nails clean at one of them. And that's one thing I cannot stand."

When the Lights Were Out.

"I was teasing Jack about holding her hand the other night," she continued, "and he said: 'Hold Marie's hands? I might at the movies, when the lights were out, but never where I could see them!'"

"O, Jack's a sniper. That's what he is. He has his nails manicured and his hair marcelled. He's no man."

"I think he is perfectly 'dorable, and I am going to tell him what you said."

"You do," threatened Marie's defender, "and I'll tell him something you said about him."

"Here, here," interjected the girl in the center. "I don't want to get into this row—but I guess Marie is to blame. The charge against her hands is true. She is always apologizing for them herself, so why should you two dears quarrel over it."

"Besides, everybody has at least one careless habit," added the peace representative. "Haven't you, now, Lucy, and you, Gene?"

"Sure I have," they chorused.

"Lend me your lip stick, Lucy, and I'll give you the extra hairpin you need," said Gene.

And all was merry again along the water front.

Hands at the Card Table.

But that's what a pair of soiled hands can do when introduced into a perfectly nice gathering.

A bridge fiend of feminine persuasion was telling me one day about a member of her club. Her description would indicate she was of Marie's ilk but of an older generation.

"We have met once a week since last November, and I give you my word of honor there has not been one single session that Mrs. J. hasn't offered a pair of dirty hands with her deal and an apology. The varied excuses manufactured would be of great help to erring mates if they were compiled for publication. The laughable part is that woman has never handled a broom or a dustrag this last season.

"But we're all queer in spots," she added laughingly. "I do keep my nails nice, but I never can show my gloves, it seems. They are either torn or soiled or have a button missing or something. So there you are."

Business Man's Test.

A business man with a hundred or more girls in his employ told me one time he judged an applicant by the condition of her nails more than by any other physical feature.

"When I see a pair of unkempt hands," he said, "I see untidy copy, an untidy desk, and a general sloppiness about work."

There is no doubt about it that soiled nails and hands will create an impression of inefficiency. More than that, they provide it. They destroy the surety and poise that a freshly manicured pair of hands engender.

But, as the patent medicine ads say, "One trial and you will be convinced!"

Clean Nails a Habit.

After all, this clean nail problem is simply a habit. It is not a question of the time it takes, for the habit reduces that to a small item. Take the girls in stores, whose nails to me are an everlasting source of admiration. They have to be on the job early in the morning—and their confining day does not permit of frequent manicures at a beauty parlor. Yet there they are, selling women who have no end of time to spend on care of themselves with nails that are immaculate, while the poor customer keeps her hands hidden to avoid comparison.

Some of the big stores realize the selling value of perfectly kept hands, and include their care in a preparatory course to which employés are subjected. You can readily see the disadvantage to a business house of a girl trying to sell a dainty chiffon, or a collar and cuff set, or even goods of heavier fabric, with dirty nails. She would prejudice the customer.

Perhaps because it is our own sins we see in other persons that are hardest to forgive the very woman who has to keep her nails out of sight while she makes the purchase is most unkind in her judgment of a sales girl under such circumstances.

But the tables are turned quickly enough on the customer when she calls her company for an invitation to a luncheon and insults the hostess by bringing along a couple of black hands with her.

However, it was not preaching against the soiled nails as much as trying to get recruits for the always clean nail battalion of beautiful ladies I meant to do.

Implements Every Girl Should Have.

When you think of the few little implements required—a file, a cuticle scissors, an orangewood stick, and a buffer—it would seem they ought to be on every girl's dresser and ought to be pressed into a few minutes' service every day.

If you run over them every day or night you can manage along beautifully without a weekly manicure. In fact, I could produce at this moment a young woman who could prove to your entire satisfaction that even that visit may be dispensed with, for she has not had more than three manicures by a professional in her life—and her nails are a beauty asset which gains her admiration wherever she goes.

Beside the need for exquisite cleanliness of nails, there is a feature of care of the hands that women neglect painfully. The skin on the face is treated to rejuvenation skin foods when the natural oils have departed. And have you not frequently seen the curious combination of extremely old skin on the hands and a most youthful one of the face?

Care for Skin of Hands Also.

The skin of the hands needs care and attention to prolong its youth. Massage them nightly before you retire. The loveliest pair of hands I ever saw belonged to a woman who did her own housework and who earned money at the Art institute by posing her hands for sculptors and artists. A real flesh and blood person she is. Naturally she is proud of her hands, and she gives them some time every day. She keeps them soft and white with a mixture of equal parts of glycerin and camphor, which she massages into them thoroughly at night.

A little cold cream is quite good for massage purposes, although it takes a trifle longer to penetrate. But skin with a tendency to dryness must be given this care unless one wants to have an old pair of skins on their hands.

C. M. F.: THERE MUST BE SOME trouble around the roots of the hair or it would show signs of some growth after the bobbing of a year ago. Do you brush it nightly and vigorously? That's the first principle of hair care to observe. After you get through brushing it if you will massage the scalp with your finger tips so as to loosen the scalp from the skull and provide for a better blood circulation to the roots of the hair, you will do a great deal toward a new growth. You might send a s. a. e. for my hair tonic formula which you massage into the scalp at night, and reasonably expect to see results ere long.

J. G.: FOR CHILBLAINS, PLUNGE the feet frequently into cold water, or bathe with kerosene oil. Dry thoroughly and rub gently. Dust with talcum powder. Do not wear woollen socks, and keep away from heat. Paint with two coats of iodine, allowing first coat to dry before applying second.

EGGS SCRAMBLED AND SHIRRED.

IN high class cookery the daintiest of all utensils are those for egg cooking, and this has been so since Rome sat on her seven hills and from her throne of beauty ruled the world. Her beauteous utensils for cooking eggs have been excavated, in efforts to expose the houses of the Cæsars again to the light of day, and are to be found in our museums by those who will look for such things.

But the frying pan will do, if the cook is competent, for cooking eggs in some of the finest ways. Scrambled eggs, for instance, have been considered by even the highest authorities among epicures as one of the finest of egg preparations, though the method is also favored by the most slovenly and also by the least experienced of cooks. This method of preparing the egg gives us a taste that is superior to that of eggs cooked in most other ways. Some people do not even take pains to whip the eggs before putting them in the pan to scramble them.

Scrambled eggs curdle, although every one in seeing the watery part does not realize that this is what has happened. The water will ooze out and the other part be undigestible and hard if the eggs have been cooked too fast and too long.

One rule for cooking scrambled eggs reads thus: "Stir the eggs continuously over a slow fire until they are a soft, creamy mass, just thick enough not to flow off the crisp, hot buttered toast on which they are served."

A Scrambled Egg Essay.

Have you not seen scrambled eggs that were altogether too dry to serve on toast? I have, many a time. Quite an essay was written on this subject for one of the periodicals, some time back, in which many words were italicized, something our style does not permit, and among the first words so emphasized was "temperature." Some parts of that essay are rather entertaining.

"There are two culinary horrors—hard, dry, horny scrambled eggs, and wet, mushy, scrambled eggs! . . . Is there a secret in doing it? Yes—the same secret there is in cooking eggs in any form—the secret of temperature.

"Let a tablespoon of butter melt in a skillet—if the pan be of iron, so much the better. The pan must be extremely hot, because the eggs and milk, just out of the ice box, are cold. When the butter sizzles and before it burns it is time to pour in the egg mixture.

"The eggs, usually one for each person to be served, have been beaten thoroughly, almost as though they were to have been used for an omelet. A tablespoonful of milk is added for each egg, and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. If the family object to parsley, spring a surprise some morning and try spearmint chopped fine. The combination of flavor is delicious.

"But even now, having been tactfully seasoned, the eggs may be ruined in the cooking! Let the heat beneath the frying pan be moderate—but of a degree that will cause the water to be changed to steam. This will puff up the albumen—meanwhile the heat will coagulate it, and unless the temperature is lowered immediately the results will be curds and whey! This is invariably caused by too much heat.

Use a Gentle Touch.

"Now, the usual procedure is to take a kitchen spoon in a tightly clenched fist and stir to produce the scrambled effect! Don't do it! Use your most skillful and gentle touch. Lift the cooked part in large pieces and let the uncooked liquid part run to the bottom of the pan. Continue this lifting and shifting until the mass is thoroughly heated through and is neither wet nor dry. Remove the eggs carefully to a hot platter, garnish with small sprigs of green, and present immediately to the head of the house."

Cream instead of milk may be used in scrambled eggs, and various seasoning like mushrooms minced and sautéd in butter, or herbs, or cheese, and the dish may also be garnished in many a fanciful way or the eggs served in extreme elegance in a hot silver timbale.

But shirred eggs, also called grilled and baked eggs, and eggs "en cocotte," or in cases, lend themselves to dainty additions, in various associations, perhaps better than any egg cooked in any other way. There are a great number of dainty small shapes in which to do the shirring or baking, but in primitive communities eggs baked in some old stoneware saucer have been held in high esteem, and they have been baked on a rock in the sun by surveyors and others out of door men.

Preparing the Dish.

Sometimes the dish in which the egg is to be shirred is simply buttered, but often some liquid or a paste for seasoning the eggs is added, and great cooks have devised as many as fifty or even more of these preparations, varying one from another in but the slightest way. Such pastes are sometimes spread on small planks, such as are used for fish or steak, mashed potato piped around the edges, and over the rest eggs are broken and baked. They are superior if basted while baking. In fact, the dish in which the egg is baked plain with only a seasoning of salt, may contain enough butter to baste the egg while it is cooking. This gives the egg a shining surface, therefore eggs so baked have been called "shirred eggs au miroir."

Shirred Eggs on a Batter.

Prepare a batter of equal parts of fine bread crumbs and some minced meat, like cold ham or chicken—two tablespoons will go a long way—with enough cream to make the mixture like a paste. Butter the egg dish, put a layer of this in, drop on the egg, and bake or cover the egg with some of the batter, then sprinkle on a little melted butter and bake. A rule for the time of baking is: Cook until a veil forms over the yolk. Eggs in batters like this are baked like custards in dishes of hot water or really steamed until the egg is set. In this way they will cook at a temperature which makes them digestible. Even the temperature of boiling water is high for the egg white. Plain eggs are steamed in cocottes or other of the shirred egg dishes buttered, from three to five minutes, with a cover over them. It is a method of cooking recommended for the amateur cook.

Shirred Eggs with Pimento.

For two eggs allow half of one canned pimento. Chop it fine. Heat it up in a bit of butter and then spread it in the egg dish. Break in a fresh egg, add salt and other season desired, and two tablespoons of cream. Bake in oven for five or six minutes, or it may be cooked under the broiler if placed far enough away from the fire.

Shirred Eggs with Celery.

For Easter time eggs are shirred or otherwise cooked with dainty asparagus tips or other fresh greens. Lettuce properly prepared in a soft well seasoned paste may form an excellent bed for a shirred egg. A preparation of celery is also good, but it is not altogether easy to give accurate directions for preparing this. Stems of celery vary in size and thickness. The amount of liquid needed for cooking a little celery varies with the skill of the cook. Cut the stems of celery lengthwise in several strips, and then cut these crosswise, so that the whole will be almost as fine as when chopped. Cook in half water and half milk. Thicken this water with flour or bread crumbs. If a tiny bit of cayenne pepper and a bit of sugar, as well as salt, is added, the flavor of the celery will be more pronounced. Put paste made into buttered egg dishes, drop egg on it, and bake.

Shirred Eggs in Various Sauces.

Eggs may be shirred in plain white sauce or in a tomato sauce. A Creole sauce which is no more than a small onion, a green pepper, and a tomato cooked together with salt, may be used. It is by using different sauces that hotels get their endless fancy names for shirred eggs.

Whipped and Baked White of Egg.

The whipped white of egg is often poached in milk for fancy dishes, not all of them desserts, but it can be baked like a shirred egg. It should be baked much more carefully than most people bake meringue, or the same thing with sugar. It could be prepared and baked on some paste like any shirred egg, or on toast as follows:

Toast thin slices of bread on both sides, preferably nice rounds, dip them in hot milk, butter, and place in a baking dish. Take as many eggs as there are pieces of toast if the pieces are of fairly good size, separate whites from yolks, carefully keeping the latter from breaking by leaving in a half shell. Add salt to egg whites and beat to a stiff froth.

Pile in little mountains on the toast, make an indentation or little crater in each mountain, drop a yolk in each crater, add seasoning, and a piece of butter, and bake in a rather hot oven for six or eight minutes. A little grated horseradish mixed with cream or other piquant seasoning might be used over the yolk.

Serving Shirred Eggs.

In an egg cook book prefacing thirty-three recipes for cooking "Eggs in Cocottes or Cases," there is this introduction: "The preparation of eggs in cocottes or in cases, is entirely the same, the difference being merely in the cocottes or cases themselves. Cocottes have, generally, the shape of a small saucepan, deep enough to contain one egg and the garnishing. They are made of porcelain and have a handle attached; though there are some of different shapes and designs.

"Cases are made either of paper or porcelain; if the former are used they should be slightly oiled on the outside and dried for a few minutes in a slow oven. This is done to make them resist the humidity. To handle cases easier when serving them to guests, they should be put in silver stands similar to those in which the glasses containing soda water are served.

"Eggs cooked in china cases, or cocottes, should be put in a pan surrounded with water; they require to be in the oven from 6 to 10 minutes, according to the heat and the preparation. In many recipes the cocottes, or cases, are lined with a coating of forcemeat; and these certainly require longer time to cook than those where only a garnishing is laid on the bottom."

These cases are as like what we often call ramekins, especially the china ramekins, as two peas and, as we know, these often come with saucers in which to set them for service. As to a cocotte there are other sorts besides those for eggs, and little copper saucepans of individual size and lined with silver are used for the baked egg.

If all the practices in shirring eggs from homely cooking to fine, and for all countries which use this simple and on the whole easy dish, could be compiled, with illustrations, it might make a most interesting book. Some cooks have prepared shirred eggs, queen's fashion, Czarina style, and no end of other styles, named for men and cities. A recipe "a la Florentine" reads: "Line the cocotte with plain spinach tossed in butter, break the eggs into the center, and put in the oven. When half done, cover with cream sauce, strew over grated cheese, and finish cooking."

THINKING OF DAYS GONE BY.

DEAREST Girlie: Today is Washington's birthday. In vain have I been trying to study. My thoughts, put out of gear by this holiday atmosphere, refuse to be tamed—and so I find myself borne aloft, racked and tossed upon a sea of reverie—reminiscences of days gone by—of pangs forgotten—of hopes and dreams shattered upon the hard rock of experience—and yet withal of an ever rising tide of ambition, cheered and spurred on by the fire of your love.

In this dim distance of time how happy and full of bliss were those days of our togetherness. Do you remember those long walks of ours—when we stalked along the roads and tramped the woods in utter oblivion of all else—our thoughts wafted forward and onward upon Fancy's pinions—while our hearts were beating in unison to the simple music of gentle zephyrs, rustling leaves and babbling brooks? Those were never to be forgotten days.

And, O, dearest—how it makes my heart yearn and long for you now when I think of them. Dear—dear—if one could only command the powers of the Fates—and order time and space to take off half a holiday—how happy I should have been to be with you once again—to breathe and feel the fragrant atmosphere of your presence—the magic charm of your touch—your sweet embrace—your all—

But enough. I trust, dear, that this will find you in the best of spirits and health, and anxiously awaiting a reply from you. I am yours forever,

LEONARD.

BLUE RIBBON PEACHES

(DRIED)

FRESH peaches in mid-winter? Yes! For Blue Ribbon Peaches are fresh peaches with only the water removed. The finest fruit produced in California is now obtainable at your grocery.

Leading health authorities say "Eat more fruit," and this is possible now in the winter as well as in the summer because the peach growers of California pick the fruit only when fully ripened and remove the water by natural evaporation in the open sunshine. This makes these peaches available for your use throughout the year.

Peaches contain valuable mineral elements and fruit acids vital to building good health and they are most delicious either as sauce or as the foundation for many enjoyable recipes.

Ask your grocer for Blue Ribbon Peaches from California. See how the entire family will enjoy them.

COMPACT STUCCO BUNGALOW.

In one of the old readers from which our grandfathers used to get their first taste of literature, there is a little poem which gives the following sage advice:

"And though our portion is but small,
'Tis prudence to enjoy it all,
And they are fools who roam;
The world has nothing to bestow,
From our own selves our joys must flow,
And that dear hut, our home."

The bungalow shown here is not a hut, by any manner of means, but it is so built that the owner can enjoy it all. It wastes no space. It makes few and small concessions to convention. Only 24x34 feet on ground plan, exclusive of porches, it provides comfortable quarters for a small family on the main floor, and for a much larger family by finishing the attic.

The front porch, extending clear across the house, is covered only by a pergola. This arrangement can be changed if desired, but where the climate permits, it adds much to the amount of light admitted to the front rooms. From this porch, double doors lead into the living room.

Nominally, there is a living and a dining room. In reality, there is one big room, 12 feet wide by 21 feet long, of which the rearward nine feet are used as a dining alcove. The division between this and the front part of the room is merely suggested. The combined room is lighted by the entrance doors and by two fine window groups on the long wall. There is no fireplace; but while this is to be regretted, the lack of a grate is a cheap price to pay for the economies and conveniences of this compact little home.

Three openings lead out of the dining part of the room. One of these goes to the kitchen, 11 feet by 8 feet 4 inches, with cabinets instead of a pantry, and the icebox and shelves over it located in an alcove just off the service entrance at the rear. This little passage also gives access to the basement stairs, a decided saving of steps when the wife has to care for the furnace, as not infrequently happens. The kitchen is lighted by a large window in the long wall of the building, and another at the rear, overlooking what may be called the service court.

Returning to the main room, one of the remaining doors leads to the stairway to the upper story, of which more later. The other opens on a small hall, connecting two bedrooms and a bath. Each bedroom is 11 feet by 10, with a good closet space. Between them is a compact, handy bathroom, and next to the bathroom is a linen closet.

At the rear of the house is a porch, 7 feet, 6 inches by 14 feet, 6. About two-thirds of this is fitted up for a sleeping porch. Since there is direct communication with the kitchen, as well as with the rear bedroom, this can be used as a dining porch, if preferred, or a small family would find it possible to get both services out of the one space.

The second floor is left as an attic, furnishing abundant storage space and contributing to the coolness of the house in summer. If the family outgrows the two bedrooms on the ground floor, however, there is no reason why two more should not be finished in the upper story. They could be made most spacious and comfortable, and with them the dwelling would house a good sized family.

The house is built with hollow tile walls, covered with stucco. The artist has indicated something of the advantage of this stucco as a background for vines and flowers, but no black and white illustration can tell the whole story.

Imagine the pergola planted with a crimson climbing rose, a wild grape, and a trumpet creeper. This would give two seasons of gorgeous bloom, shown off to the best possible advantage against the cool gray background, while the wild grape furnished a delicious perfume in the spring and jelly in the fall.

Think of the clematis, creeper, ivy, and matrimony vines that can be grown against the walls, without the slightest danger of making the house damp, for hollow tile does not permit the passage of moisture, and never rots.

The asbestos shingles of the roof can be chosen in any tone required to match the planting scheme. Some warm tone that will look cheerful in winter is best. Since the inside is finished with gypsum plaster on metal lath, this look of warmth and cheerfulness in snow time is well deserved.

A Laugh Went Round.

It was on the return trip from the western coast, and even if you have not tried it, you may easily imagine the throng of journey-tired tourists all seeming to flock home at once each fall, and may picture to yourself the crowded conditions which always accompany such a time.

A long line of waiting women politely scowled at one another outside the dressing room door, a half hour before the one big stop of the morning, while a queenly woman with fair corrugated puffs leisurely arranged her toilet within. I, with all the rest, was tired and cross, and hadn't slept, and I sat beside a woman with three small girls in tow, and exchanged condolences with her. In my exasperation, I said at last: "How long has the beautiful blonde been in there, anyway?"

Now I am not a blonde, and I am not beautiful, and it was the "cattiest" thing I ever remember saying. But my reaction was quick, and I laughingly acknowledged my "cattiness" to the women who had heard, and apologized. The atmosphere was somehow marvelously cleared, anyway, and with better nature all around we were able to wait until our turns came about. V. L.

Just in Time.

While driving through Yellowstone park we came to some muddy, clay like ground. Father happened to see a small shack in from the road and decided to go over to see who lived there. When he was about half way across the field he noticed a slight movement in the ground. Going over he found a hole about six inches wide. Thinking it was an animal hole he got down on his knees to peer in. We saw a man come running from the hut, waving his arms excitedly. Father did not hear him because, as he said afterwards, he heard a low growling in the hole. Then the "animal" came out. "It" jumped up five feet in the air. Father's animal was a mud geyser, and it covered him from head to feet with yellow mud. The man, when he reached father, pointed smilingly to a sign which read: "Geyser No. 127. Spurts every thirty-five minutes." We have never ceased to tease father about his animal.

Not a Cabby in Sight.

I was on my way out to the Black hills of South Dakota some years ago, and along about 5 o'clock one morning we stopped at some town. As I lay there half awake I could hear the commotion out on the platform of loading and unloading baggage, etc., also a cabman monotonously calling "Cab," a slight pause, "Cab," pause, "Cab" and so on, with apparently no sign of ever stopping. In my irritation I was fast becoming wide awake and kept thinking, "Why in the world does he keep calling 'Cab, cab,' when he must know every one that is going to get off this train is already off long ago?" In desperation I finally raised the blind a little, to have a look at this exasperating cabby, and what I saw caused me to chuckle inwardly. I surely wanted to laugh aloud but feared the wrath of the other passengers who were still sleeping. There was a nice little sheep crated for shipment, and it was its plaintive "Baa baa, baa" that had been the cause of my longing to assault the poor cabby.

In the Language of Spain.

Several years ago while traveling in Spain I stopped at a small country inn for lunch. After vainly endeavoring to make the waiter understand that I wanted a glass of milk I produced pencil and paper and drew him a picture of a cow. He went away at once greatly pleased and returned in about five minutes with a ticket for the bull fight.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

"FOOLS RUSH IN WHERE—"

A ROOMING house seems a drab place for a really true romance. But it was the place and I was the party who played the fiddle and taught the lovers the honeymoon fox trot.

Two girls shared a kitchenette apartment on the first floor. I came along about a year later and lived in a rather attractive room on the second floor.

These girls could entertain visitors in their cunning little nest, and did much of the time. They each had their own little coterie of friends and a few in common. Margot Adair never had a chance to see her lover, Robert Harris, alone. He grew tired of the everlasting company, and came less and less, and they both grew to think that the other did not care, and eventually drifted apart.

Poor Margot with her stubborn way wouldn't let him know, and he stopped coming or even telephoning.

He went to the Orient and stayed a long time. He was a young doctor and was doing wonderfully well there in his line of work. When he returned to this country last May, he called Margot up and came to see her. The question of never being alone arose. He thought she did it for a purpose and listened to no reason. He went on his own little way, and left Margot more heart lonesome than ever. Then he wanted her to come to his office, where he might have a little time alone with her, but she refused.

She grew sarcastic with him, so they drifted farther apart than ever; each with a hurt in the heart and a smile on the face.

Then one day she was called to the phone, and he told her that he was going to Japan. He had an exceptionally good offer and there was nothing to keep him here.

"Of course, Bob, there isn't a thing to keep you here. I think it is splendid that you can go," was her reply.

No more sleep or appetite for her. Her constant thought was: "He is going to Japan. What shall I do?" And she went about her work in a kind of a daze. There was just as much company in the little apartment, just as much fun and laughter, but that constant ache she could never seem to run away from.

Sunday is the day the business girl has to sew and do all the odds and ends the busy housewife does at odd times during the week. I was in my room busily making a new dress—some one knocked. To my response of "come in," Margot entered. We laughed and talked for a while. I was far too busy to glance up often, but on hearing a long drawn sigh I looked up with a smile and said, "Why the stagy sob-sigh?"

"Oh, Babs, dear," she said, "I'm just so miserable."

Then she told me her story. Up to that moment I never knew there was a man in her life. Many times talking to an utter stranger helps much more than telling our heart aches to our nearest and dearest.

"Bob is leaving again. I have no way to see him—to tell him I do love him. Whatever am I going to do?"

"Well," I said, "introduce me, and I'll do my best to help you out."

She told me she had no way of seeing him unless she called him, as he told her he was tired of the way she had treated him. She also told me she would not introduce him, as she was afraid of what I might say, if he ever did come.

About a month later I was going out driving with friends. The night was lovely and warm and there was a big moon up in the sky to tease people to come out and play. You know how it is; it makes you feel giddy and up-and-doing. Just the night for lovers. I was glad of the chance to get out and be on my way somewhere. I went to Margot's room to see her a moment.

She said: "Bob phoned me he is coming over to say good-by to me before he leaves tomorrow night."

I decided I'd stay and see what Bob looked like, and if I had the opportunity to see him alone I'd do so. About fifteen minutes later I was walking through the hall where they were sitting on the davenport.

I heard her being sarcastic with him, and I knew if she kept that up he would be gone forever. So I just brazenly stepped up to him and said: "Dr. Harris, I want to see you for just a moment. Will you please come with me?"

And he followed me like Mary's little lamb. I was scared. My heart was just thumping inside of my "hope chest."

I said: "Margot loves you dearly. Do you love her?"

"Indeed I do love her with all my heart, but how do you know that she cares for me?"

I replied: "When a girl cries for a man all the time and can't sleep or eat she loves him."

"Does she do that for me?" he asked, incredulously.

"Yes. Why don't you take her to Japan with you?"

"Would she go?"

"Would she go? You just ask her and see how quickly she can get ready."

With that we walked back towards their apartment, which was empty by this time. I was a little frightened for fear she might lock her door and not let him in. I called him back to me and drawing him down so I could whisper in his ear, I said: "Take her in your arms." Then I ran to the front door and out to my friends, who were waiting for me.

I did not return until 11. Went to her rooms and found a radiant Margot. They were married the next day and from the cards received are the happiest lovers in the whole wide world.

NEWS FROM THE RIVIERA.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Here are some costumes straight from the Riviera. The artist is down there now, painting scenery for a play which the queen of Roumania expects to produce in America presently. I thought of going down, if it weren't that the train leaves before 8 in the morning. The biography of my adventures is bounded by time tables and frontiers.

I should have gone to Saint Moritz, except that there are not one, but two of these latter, where you descend with all of your baggage and wrangle over your possessions and your passport. One really needs the presence of a husband under such circumstances. The last time I came back from Switzerland a few weeks ago, I forgot to have my passport viséed by the French.

If only this were a department of personal reminiscence and not of fashions, I should write a chapter on what happened. I all but got sent back to the starting point to begin my journey over again, except that I assured the Frenchman (sitting at that jumping off place of the world) that I was not a bolshevist and would carry no troublesome propaganda into France.

I hope under the circumstances you will excuse me for not going down to the Riviera to report conditions there to you. Everybody you never heard of is there, while the smart people stayed in Paris. The artist says that it was raining when he arrived and that there is nothing new under the sun anyway.

I am finding a good deal that is new in Paris, and as one generalization on styles should like to say that all of the dresses seem to have more cut to them than for a long time past. You feel as if they could not so easily be made in the house and that you are getting your money's worth. Women are said to be sick of the straight dress that you throw on over your head and tie in place with a string of a belt.

The lady from the Riviera who carries her sewing baskets on the sides of her evening dress indicates the prevailing silhouette of the day, although certain houses, notably Chanel and Renee, still hold to the long, straight line. As for the gown presented, the artist writes that it made a sensation when it wafted through the baccarat room.

It had for a foundation a black crêpe underdress with an overdrapery of diaphanous, fine chantilly, with wired hoops at the hips, from which the lace floated in an overdress. The only touch of color in the costume was the jade bracelets which the lady wore. Her other ornament was a pair of diamond earrings.

It is the style to wear your hair slicked straight back, and she followed the fad of the moment, twisting it into a tiny chignon at the nape of her neck. Some of these people fondly imagine it gives them a Greek look.

The jacket from the Riviera shows the tendency toward extreme shortness—for all those coats which are not long. One definite fashion item is that the fur coats which I described some time ago are being made in cloth and satin for spring. They are as nearly like a kimono in shape as anything short of a kimono itself could be, with long straight lines which you lap over to taste in front, and, as formerly, hold in place. I am getting so that it comes quite natural to hold my clothes on, and, like my cousin in Montgomery county, Indiana, shan't know what to do with my hands when the fashion passes.

The accompanying coat, like many another of the day, is an almost perfect square. This entire costume is in creamy white woolen material, with a garnishment on the coat in what the artist says is an "interlacing motif," and it is done in angora. The hat is brown and trimmed in the present chic style of stiff feathers, in brown, going forward. The hat artfully repeats the color of the Pekinese which the girl carries. The extremely short skirt discloses hose and sandals in beige.

Speaking of silhouettes, here is one straight from the Carlton hotel at Cannes. A lace hat, with a long floating diamond shaped piece at one side; black jet earrings; ermine cape, with three rows of tails; black crêpe georgette dinner dress with two shades of coral in chiffon sash—c'est tout.

An exceedingly smart blonde is seen from day to day in the Casino in a black crêpe gown, draped with extreme simplicity. It is caught on one side with an ornament of jet, which makes the skirt much shorter than on the other. On the left side it sweeps the floor. The accompanying hat is of black crêpe ornamented in beautiful large rosette in two shades of pink with streamers. The rosette is folded flat on the brim, part on top of it and part underneath. Beautiful diamond bracelets and a diamond pendant complete the costume.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Laurel is fond of playing on the piano, and her mother, anxious to have her musical, encourages her.

The other day she went to the piano and played a little while, then came over to where her mother was and said: "Mamma, did you like what I played?"

"Oh, yes dear, it was fine."

"Did you really, mamma?"

"Yes, dear, I did."

"Well, I didn't, mamma, for I think I had bad luck with a perfectly good tune." W. K.

It was Ethel's birthday and that morning I decided to have a few of my friends over for the afternoon. So I sent her to ask Mrs. B., but not to mention it was her birthday, as Mrs. B. would probably think it necessary to bring some sort of small gift. When she returned she told me Mrs. B. had work to do, but would manage somehow to get over. I thought this rather peculiar and asked Ethel if she had said it was her birthday, to which she replied: "No, mother; all I said was, I'm just 5 today." F. A. M.

John had his first sight of a kilted, Scottish regiment marching by as our launch was tied up at the water's edge.

"Are they mammas, aunties, or sisters?" was his query. W. H. Y.

Donald came home from school all excitement. "Say, ma," he yelled, "what do you suppose? John was promoted down to second grade, 'cause he's such a bad arithmeticer.' E. A. H.

Beth knows the ace and deuce in a pack of cards, so one day Aunt Hattie showed her which one was the joker. The next time we asked her what it was, she said: "O, Aunt Hattie, that is the laughing one." A. L. F.

Roy had proudly driven off with the horse to meet a guest at the station. The guest jokingly asked what he charged for his services. "Nothing for my services, but I'll take a dollar for the wear and tear on the horse," was the rather unexpected reply. G. A.

Eugenia had been invited to spend the afternoon with friends. Before leaving home she said, "I won't be home for supper, mom."

She spent the afternoon, and as supper time drew near she rose to go, but was urged to stay by Mrs. Smith.

"O, no," she answered. "I think I'd better be going. I told mamma I'd be home."

"Now, surely you can stay," protested her hostess. "Come, we'll call your mamma and tell her."

"Well," said the child, "all right, only I—I guess I won't call her."

"Why! why not?"

"Well," faltered the child, "well, cause I—I knew you'd ask me to stay." M. F.

Jimmy received two dollar bills for Christmas and was quite excited about it. He wanted to put them in his small savings bank, but didn't understand how to do it. So he ran to his father and exclaimed: "Daddy, daddy, will you please give me two jewelry dollars for these?" B. U.

Elsie and Lois were playing hide and seek. It was the baby's time to hide. She hid behind the bookcase and piped out: "Elsie tan't find me but I knows where I is." C. U.

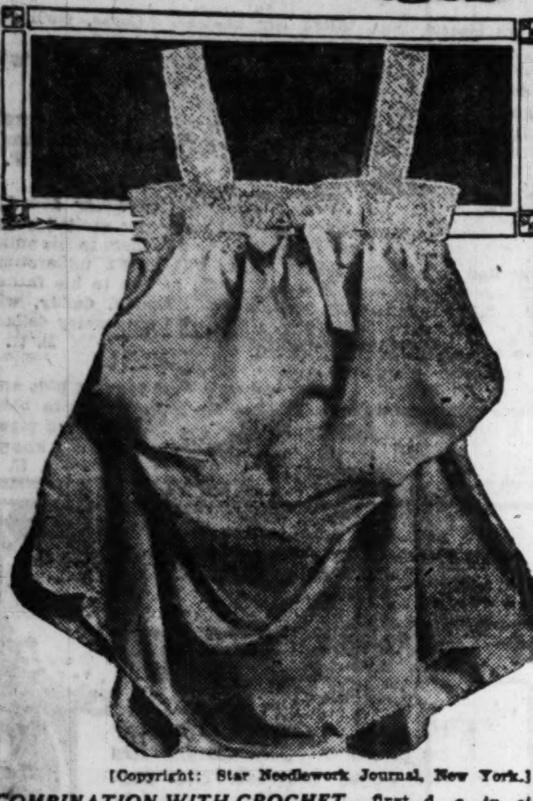
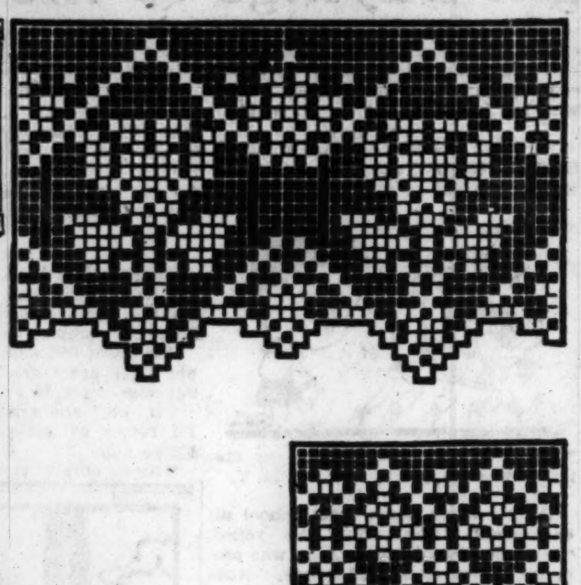
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde





[Copyright: Star Needlework Journal, New York.]

COMBINATION WITH CROCHET.

MAKING lingerie is always attractive work, and particularly so when one can crochet such lovely lace for the yoke and straps. Made of crêpe de chine, wash satin, or some sheer cambric, no other trimming will be needed than is pictured here.

The seams should be stitched and then the felling down done by hand. The lower edges of the combination are rolled and hemmed by hand and worked over with a simple picot edging.

Four balls of No. 100 crochet cotton in white will be needed for the lace.

Ch. 80 for 25 open meshes, working first d. c. in eighth ch. from hook. Work 5 more open meshes, 1 s., 2 o., 1 s., 11 o., 1 s., 2 o., 1 s. Continue according to diagram A. For shoulder straps ch. 50, working first d. c. in eighth ch. from hook. Continue according to diagram, beginning with fifth row.

Answers to Sewing Queries.

MRS. L. R.: I am sorry not to be able to send you the alphabet you ask for, but we have no copy of so old a date.

MISS L. B. J.: I think you must have seen those masquerade costumes in something else. I have written you and hope you will be successful in getting ideas.

MISS L. C. A. G.: You should not find a camisole difficult to make, and if you have difficulty in adjusting the straps, haven't you some one who can pin them in place for you? I hope the few hints given in a letter I have mailed to you will be a help.

Questions on problems confronting the home sewer will be answered in this column or by mail if a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago.

Not for Sale.

I went into a 5 and 10 cent store and spied some large glass vases standing right near the front window on a small table. Thinks I, "Well, things are getting cheaper." Not seeing a saleswoman near by, I picked up two in my arms and, approaching the floorwalker, said: "I'll have these, please," and handed him 20 cents.

With a surprised look on his face, he said in rather a loud voice, "Madame, these vases could not be bought wholesale for less than $2 each. They are not for sale, but part of our window display, to hold up our glass shelves."

I was so embarrassed I almost dropped them on the floor.

Feeling Sat Upon.

One day my sister and I went to a movie. The theater looked dark to us, coming in from the bright sunlight. A serial was being shown, and, as usual, the place was crowded with little boys and girls. My sister found a vacant seat and seeing another one in about the middle of a row a little ahead of her own, pointed it out to me. I hurried past the other people in the aisle, climbed over the other occupied seats and quickly sat down, but found that I was sitting on a little girl, who, too surprised to protest, was staring at me with big frightened eyes. I got up amid the jeers of the other children and hurriedly left that part of the theater, feeling more "sat upon" than the little girl.

In the Habit of Joking.

On a street one day I saw a young woman walking ahead of me whom I knew well and with whom I had been in the habit of joking. Overtaking her, I came up behind and as a joke snatched a large leather pocketbook from beneath her arm. To my confusion, instead of turning immediately and recognizing me, she uttered a scream, and when she did turn I saw to my dismay that she was a stranger instead of my friend. By this time a crowd had collected, consisting for the most part, it seemed, of large and burly men who were only too anxious to help. Explanations were of course in order.

Carrots for Lunch.

As I lived far from school, I had to carry my lunch. One morning my stepmother asked me to go to the grocery store for some carrots, as we had some pet rabbits. When I returned I set the sack on the table and hurried to finish getting myself ready for school. When I had finished she had my lunch ready and told me it was on the table. That day at noon I opened my sack and to my amazement I had the sack of carrots. Of course the girls all laughed and had a good time over it, but I am sure it was the most embarrassing moment of my life.

Business Girls
By Loretta King

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Tribune, Chicago.

VALUE OF SOUND DIRECTION.

NOT long ago I had occasion to observe a group of girls—eight I believe there were—working under what must have been a great strain, and I was both amazed and delighted at the poise and serenity of manners they displayed under the difficult conditions.

The great bulk of the day's work came within a few hours, and everything on hand had to be finished at a certain time, which meant that every one in the office had to work at top speed during that time and not one precious second out of those hours could be lost or thrown away.

The amount of work turned out on schedule time was surprising, but more surprising still was the manner in which it was accomplished. There was no apparent rush, no confusion, no evident excitement. All was quiet and calm. There was an air of steady diligence, of course, about the place, but no sign of the breathless, feverish excitement that usually prevails during the rush hour in a busy office.

It was a relief to work in that office, one of the girls confided to me, after she had finished her own work for the day, and had helped gather up the odds and ends of the work of one of her associates. She had previously worked in an office where all was confusion and distraction. There had been plenty of work to keep every one going at a moderate pace, she said, but because of the lack of competent management the entire office force had been kept in a constat state of flurry; keyed up to create an impression of activity that was not only false but that interferred with the efficiency of each individual.

No one, it seems, had ever made a calm move or gesture. Everybody rushed about on senseless errands, and nobody in authority took the time to direct or explain important details to the minor employés. It took days, for instance, to get the attention of the proper people to adjust some bit of work that called for disposition out of the regular routine.

You can imagine, then, the relief of this level headed girl when she found herself, after a change of positions, working in a calm and quiet atmosphere. It was an office, to be sure, where a great deal of work was expected of her and where most of the work of the day was done within a limited time. But this suited her because, thanks to competent direction, she was able to do her work quietly, without confusion and with the least possible distraction. Under these circumstances she was able to turn out a greater amount of work than she had ever been able to before, and so increased her earning powers.

All the girls were loud in their praise of Miss R. and they gave her whole heartedly credit for the success of their department. Before she was made head of the department she had been just "one of the girls" herself. But from the moment she took command she displayed such an aptitude for executive work that she was given a free hand in the matter of hiring the girls and managing the department. It took a little time to bring her office force up to its present high standard, but the time and care expended justified the results. The department is the pride of the firm and its members are exceptionally well paid.

In watching this interesting group of girls working against time and jealously guarding every second against interruption, I was also greatly impressed by the deftness and dispatch with which all the work was handled.

I learned that the three qualifications Miss R. insists upon when she is adding a new member to her staff—and they are, in general, the qualifications that spell success in any line of work—are, first, accuracy in her particular line of work; second, decision of character to think and act quickly; third, poise of manner and a friendly and tranquil disposition.

When all business women measure up to Miss R.'s standard they will have reached as sure a footing in their different callings as have men employés.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair of which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Sunday Tribune. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

What Really Counts.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 19 years old, going with a fellow three years my senior. He is not good looking, but has a wonderful personality. And although I am almost convinced at times that I love him, there are times when I am in doubt. I am considered an attractive blonde and my ideal always was a fellow with jet black hair and black eyes. My friend does not possess either and I am not quite satisfied. I have quite a few admirers that answer the above description, have lots of money, but do not possess that wonderful personality my friend has. Now what would you advise me to do, forget my handsome friends or go to them while there is still time? TINY."

What a ridiculously romantic child you are, Tiny! The black haired and black eyed individual you are carrying around as your ideal might turn out to have a villainous disposition and be most unsuitable as a mate for you. The color of the hair and the eyes doesn't matter much when it comes to meeting the landlord and the grocer face to face with a smile.

Framed in Her Heart.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl past 16, much in love with a boy aged 20. I presume he pays no attention whatever to me because of my age. Now, Miss Blake, as I love him more than my life, please advise me what to do. "ANXIOUS."

You just keep on nursing the affection, but don't give the boy the faintest idea that he is framed in your heart, as no one else can ever be. In fact, keep that a secret just between you and me, because one of these days you'll wake up some morning and give yourself a good hearty laugh over how badly smitten you were. Every girl who has reached the age of 21 has had at least one such virulent attack of unrequited devotion.

"I am writing you and asking a favor of your kind readers. We are a young couple with a little girl and through sickness and hard luck we have gone into debt, which we are working hard to pay. We are both working now, although my husband didn't work steady for some months.

"Now we are in need of some clothing; we are wearing out everything we can. My husband would need some clothes for work; he is wearing out his last suit of clothes. I am sure some one has some to pass over gladly, as we would appreciate it so much. He wears size 36 or 38. Also if any one has a working dress for me, a size 38, something warm in serge, I shall appreciate it. I hope the sun will shine for us again, so I can be of some help to some one. MRS. J. W."

"Thank you much for finding the tricycle needed by the crippled girl for which you appealed two weeks ago. She received not only the machine she needs to help her to learn to walk, but gained the good friend who presented it to her through your column.

"Will you be good enough to ask if there is some one who will give a morris chair or some sort of reclining chair to a man who has an injury to the spine which makes sitting on an ordinary chair a torture? He was injured at his work more than a year ago and has had pain ever since. He is still a young man with four small children and has always been active. A rubber ring on which he could sit might also give relief.

"We shall be most grateful if you can help us to find these things for him. F. N."

"I have several juvenile books which I will give to some shutin; also two pairs of crutches, one for short and one for tall persons. I have a 9x12 rug, well worn, but would serve to keep kitchen floor warm for children. Any one wishing any of these articles must call before April 1, as I am leaving city about that time. L. E."

I have a lot of music I think some one might be glad to have. It consists of band and orchestra music— violin, mandolin, piano, and song and dance music, vocal duets and others. I also have some silk pieces for quilting. H. W. B.

"I'm writing this for an elderly woman living in the country, to ask if any of your readers has pieces of silk to give. She is making quilts and would appreciate it so. I should be glad to pay postage or call for anything offered. H. D."

How to Use the Patterns

EVERY woman no doubt is sewing more or less these days, and if a dress is among the items to be considered, No. 9819 is sure to be a becoming design for many.

It will be attractive made of any wash material—gingham, chambray, cotton voile, etc.; taffeta, or satin will also make up attractively for an afternoon dress.

It is cut in two pieces, front and back, and opens in the front. The skirt measues 1⅝ yards at the bottom for size 36, and the sleeves can be made long or short as one fancies.

It is an easy pattern to handle and should not take long to make. The pockets are faced across the top with the same material as is used for belt, cuffs, etc., and then the tops are turned over to form laps and held in place by buttons.

The collar, cuffs, and top of chemisette are finished with a binding, although, of course, any other preferred finish could be used. For a wash dress there is nothing prettier for the contrasting color than white, and Indian head cotton makes most attractive collars with edges picoted. Then there are pique and organdie, but for ginghams or percales the pique or Indian head is fine.

If the dress is made of taffeta, for instance, in a dark blue, it would be smart looking to make the contrasting parts of the same material in a terra cotta or black, embroidered in terra cotta or a combination of colors; for instance, red outlined in black or rose, outlined in a different shade of blue from that of the dress.

No. 9923 is for a girl between the ages of 6 and 14 years. It is simple in design—as the best looking clothes always are—but pretty and certain to be becoming.

The dress is cut in two pieces, front and back, with the sides of the skirt part extending out beyond the main lines, and these are gathered and brought back under the bound edges of the waist parts.

The dress can be slashed at the neck, which will make enough of an opening to slip on over the head, or the slash may be omitted and the dress closed on the shoulders.

A light weight navy blue serge, with some embroidery in terra cotta outlined in black, or not, as one prefers, and a narrow sash of black taffeta would be pretty, or some one of the beautiful plaids could be used, and no embroidery or any other trimming than the binding be necessary.

If the dress is closed on the shoulders, the seams should first be sewed together from the shoulder point to the single notch near the shoulder edge; then the remainder of the seams are finished for the opening. The front part of each shoulder seam is faced, and a straight strip of lining should be laid under the turned back seam before hemming it down.

The back of each shoulder is finished for an extension hem, and should be faced to the shoulder seam line on the under side, and the facing should come over the raw seam edge and bound to finish. On the under side where the facing finishes at the seam line, stitch it across exactly on the seam line, and this stitching will serve as a guide to work the loops for fastening on, and will hold the edge of the facing in place.

It is necessary to use percaline or silesia to give a good foundation for sewing hooks and loops to or for sewing snaps on.

The hooks or snaps should never be sewed on so they come to the edge of an opening, but always ⅛ inch inside, else the opening shows badly.

No. 9938 is a long waisted design, closing at the left of the front. The skirt is cut in one with the front and back, and measures 2 yards at the bottom for 36 inches bust measure. It is a model that will be becoming alike to slender or full figures, and can be used for almost any material. Where the side fronts and backs are joined to the dress the seams could be finished with pipings, or the seams can be stitched together and finished by binding together on the wrong side, and a ⅝ inch bias band of silk or satin in some contrasting color used as a finish. The bias strips should be cut 1¼ or 1⅓ inches wide and turned in to measure ⅝ inch.

An accurate way to fold the edges is to lay the strip on an ironing board, fold the edges together and press. This will give a crease through the middle. Then, with a tracing wheel and marker, trace, while the strip is folded in a line just half of the ⅝. Then the strip can be opened and each edge turned in and basted down.

Great care has to be taken not to stretch a strip of this kind, and in basting it on the dress it should be perfectly mitered where the turn is made at the bottom. Another point to remember is to have the mitered corners turned so the lower part of the turn comes at the outside corner. This makes the fold turn towards the back in each instance.

If the dress is of taffeta—and taffeta is to be worn much this coming season—a collar of organdie in some color would be most attractive—say rose organdie on a drak blue taffeta, tan on brown, etc. The collar could be finished like the dress seams or picoted in some contrasting color, and perhaps embroidered in small motifs—not to many of them; or it could be cut double, seamed together, and made quite plain.

The sleeves are made to fit closely by a dartlike seam on the outside from wrist to elbow. This is a good pattern, and makes a petty sleeve. You should be careful to fit it carefully though, to make certain the seam stops where it should, below the elbow, and that it is neither too tight nor loose. For all people with the same bust measure do not have all other measures the same.

Healthy Young Womanhood

THE tendency to constipation begins with girls as they approach maturity, and that is the very time the mother should watch that the important function of daily elimination is regular and normal.

Many thousands of mothers who have daughters will tell you they give only Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A teaspoonful is sufficient to relieve constipation and its commoner symptoms such as headache, bad breath, billousness, loss of appetite and restless sleep.

Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics, and a sixty-cent bottle is enough for many months. Eight million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale of the kind in the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market thirty years and there must be genuine merit behind it to develop so large and steady a sale. Buy a bottle today and you will quickly see why it is so popular.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

MR. WOODS, forbidden the use of the name "McCormick" for his new Chicago theater, chooses a title similarly handsome, "The Apollo," and unless steps, as the saying is, are taken to prevent it, that flossy caption will be inscribed permanently above its portals and emblazoned indefinitely upon the incandescence of its façade.

Curious to know why Apollo should be selected for this honor, I asked Mr. Woods the other night to tell me what thing Apollo had ever done for the American drama, or for the boosting of Chicago, that he should win the distinction of this impressive nomenclature.

Apollo, I ventured to say to Mr. Woods, was at best the dude of a somewhat seedy hierarchy, proud of his shape, addicted to solos upon the odious harp, a snobbish and immoral poseur, who would have pooh-poohed us from Cudahy's spectacular shambles to Mr. Stock and the Arts club.

Why, said I, distinguish this aloof, remote, and half baked alien, when the town is full of civic heroes, whose names are hot with accomplishment. Did Apollo, I asked him, ever make any necessary purchases while in Chicago, and would he be excited to know that we are the youngest large city and the largest young city hereabouts?

Mr. Woods said that perhaps he did not think so, but that the word Apollo is symbolic with beauty and in harmony with the Chicago Plan, and that he loved Chicago and desired to give it, as the musical critics say, of his best. But why not, said I, entitle the new playhouse "the Kostner" for that urban councilman, or "the Kenna," "the Lundin," or "the Pelouze"? Why not, in tribute to benefits inestimable and not forgot, the "John Powers" or the "Bath-house"? marking the unselfish martyrdom of those two who have sacrificed so much and so long for Chicago and gained so little.

Mr. Woods, I may tell you, is yet open to suggestions. He does not quite understand why the naughty titles of his plays are not in consonance with seemly titles to his theater, but he is willing to learn. One of his new comedies is called "Getting Gertie's Garter," and, if you do not stop him, that will have to be our errand one Sunday night—Hazel Dawn, Gertie's Garter—Apollo!

Tonight—At the Colonial, "The Night Boat." At the La Salle, "Kissing Time." Walter Hanlon in an Irish play at the Shubert Central.

Tomorrow night—Miss Fay Bainter in "East Is West" at the Garrick. Miss Patricia Collinge in "Just Suppose" at the Blackstone.

Tuesday night—Miss Willette Kershaw in "Woman to Woman," by Michael Morton, at the Playhouse.

William Archer, the distinguished London critic, is repelled by "the incredible nullity" of such American plays as "The Tavern." "It inspired me," he writes in the New York Evening Post, "with a profound admiration for the genius of George M. Cohan, who perceived that it would be possible to induce sane people to think it amusing. It was presented, I understand, as a joke, a burlesque, but where the joke came in, or what it burlesqued, I have been wholly unable to discover. Mr. Cohan seemed somehow to have hypnotized his public, and susceptibility to this sort of hypnotism is, I think, one of the foibles of the American playgoer."

Mr. Archer believes that the smutty showmen are playing into the hands of the puritans and blue law makers. "The American public," he says, "not only tolerates but flocks to witness and applaud entertainments which are indefensible outrages, I will not say upon morality, but upon decent citizenship of any sort. I do not think that this is a sign of corruption; I would rather interpret it as arising from a sort of unawakened innocence in some, and in others from a fear of being thought prudish."

Nijinski, the great Russian dancer, is now in Budapest, with creeping paralysis, and his mind gone, a complete physical and mental wreck, with no hope of recovery. Before the war broke out he married the beautiful daughter of Budapest's leading tragedienne, Mme. Markus, and last November went to live with them, seeking a complete rest. Before his marriage he taught his wife dancing, and although she was an apt pupil, she never appeared in public.

A. H. Woods has joined the boost-Chicago band, and announces that he will produce his next four plays in this city, beginning with Michael Morton's "Woman to Woman" at the Playhouse next Tuesday night. Since Mr. Woods is responsible for two of the handsomest theaters in the town, his words of commendation, though lavish, may be repeated with fewer pains than is usual in such cases.

"I want to show Chicago," writes Mr. Woods, "my appreciation of its kindness to "Happy-Go-Lucky" and other of my plays which elsewhere were turned down. I firmly believe Chicago is fast becoming the theatrical capital of America; at any rate, it is,

Olympian Heights or Dollars? "Nice People" Makes the Inevitable Choice

By James Whittaker.

NEW YORK, March 5.—[Special.]—Rachel Crothers is a thoroughbred hitched to a van. Her new comedy, "Nice People," which opened the new Klaw theater this week, has the swiftness and aristocratic ardor of the thoroughbred. More than that, it has in places a poetic lift that suggests winged Pegasus. You wince when you see it harnessed to the box office.

One spectator sickened and fled during the third act, when Miss Crothers took the money whip in hand and flogged her inspiration. It is reported from Parnassus that Pegasus limped into his stable Wednesday night with hanging head and a welt in the shape of a $ mark on his back.

"Nice People" is a play with an idea You may not believe in plays with ideas. You may not believe Miss Crothers' idea. But she does. You may live respectably in Umpth street and put your daughter to bed nicely at 9 every night, and you may laugh at Miss Crothers' idea that, over in Park avenue, at the same hour, Hubert Gloucester's daughter, "Ted," is slipping her duplicate key into father's cellarette for to get a quart of gin and the bottle of bitters. You may not believe that the virgins of the rich are drunk at midnight, in a shady roadhouse at 4 a. m., and slightly or more compromised on the sofa of pape's closed country house at dawn. You may believe that the idle daughters of the rich are as decent as any stenographer. But Rachel Crothers does not.

And she writes her belief that the youth of 1921 is gone doggone wrong with the same passionate conviction with which Ibsen picks at the lock of wedlock in "Ghosts." Like "Ghosts," "Nice People" burgles the storehouse of popular optimism and brings out some nastiness to prove that all's not well with the world.

So far, Miss Crothers' courage is screwed up. It does not falter at the passionate closing scene of the second act wherein her heroine is caught alone at dawn in a room with her drunken dancing partner and sweetheart by family and friends who make the cynic deduction. But it was not quite screwed to the sticking point.

Perhaps Miss Crothers thought Francine Larrimore too nice an actress to stay ruined. Perhaps she thought her audience too nice people to stand for a bitter end. Whatever her mental processes are, her act was to save her heroine at the expense of her play.

After the tempest of the second act both are in peril. You can hear the play and the heroine both crying piteously "Help! help!" from the reef of domestic catastrophe on to which Miss Crothers has guided them.

"For God's sake, save the play!" I silently prayed.

And I have no doubt that many about me prayed as hard for the saving of Miss Larrimore. Their prayers were the more efficacious. How Miss Crothers dragged in an angel when no other agency could have performed the happy ending is told her, with a tear, though Miss Crothers told it with laughter. Billy Wade, an angelic young man of the healthy lower classes, performs the miraculous rescue of the drowning heroine, and for a last act you have them paired in a rural paradise, preaching Tolstoi and back to the land in Miss Crothers' second best vaudeville quip style. Never has the good old American theory that turtling is the soverign remedy for turpitude had a more gross application.

ANNOUNCING

the opening—on April the fifteenth—of the

Sheridan Plaza Hotel

under the personal management of Mr. George F. Adams, for twenty years manager of the Hotel Chamberlin at Old Point Comfort, Virginia, and the Greenbriar, White Sulphur Springs.

Mr. Adams brings with him all the fine traditions of courtesy and service that made these hotels the rendezvous of the social elect—the foregathering place of official Washington.

The Sheridan Plaza will occupy a real place in the social life of Chicago—a splendidly equipped modern hotel with a distinctive atmosphere of the old world aristocrat.

It is the aim of the management to interest only the people who appreciate this environment of quiet dignity and refinement—the unobtrusive service, genuine hospitality and unexcelled cuisine of the old South.

To make one's home at the Sheridan Plaza gives the pleasing assurance of having fully arrived.

The Theaters

in so far as a human, friendly, receptive attitude toward the theater is concerned. I love Chicago because it is human. I can always count on a hearing in Chicago, but I am never sure of anything more than a gamble elsewhere, and Chicago does not care a continental for the opinions of her sister cities. This individuality of taste, I am sorry to say, not many American cities retain. Chicago has grown and grown and yet has remained provincial enough to enjoy life and to have an independent judgment."

Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'" is to be the attraction at the Blackstone theater all of next season—a minimum of thirty weeks having been reserved for it. Mr. Erlanger, by the way, purchased the Frohman interests in the Blackstone last week and now owns nearly all of that theater.

Stuart Walker and Gregory Kelly (now of "Dulcy"), after an association extending over a number of years, have come to the parting of the ways. Mr. Walker and Mr. Kelly, it is said, differed sharply as to the value of Mr. Kelly's services to Mr. Walker's summer stock company in Indianapolis last season, and the break between them is apparently a final one. So serious is it, in fact, that Mr. Kelly will operate a rival stock company in Indianapolis during the summer ahead, and an interesting time, not without a touch of fireworks, is accordingly expected. As for Mr. Kelly's later plans, it is reliably reported that Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson are writing a play for him for next season.

Besides John Drinkwater's play about "Mary Queen of Scots," there are to be others, including a moving picture drama. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson are to do one called "Bothwell," and Sir Martin Harvey is planning another for London after his return from Canada.

Mme. Bernhardt is doing a turn in a Parisian music hall, the Alhambra. The play is "Le Vitrail," fifteen minutes of emotional poetry by Fauchois when not at his best. Bernhardt is sandwiched in between a low comedian and some crazy cyclists. The eclectic are pleased; the others like the cyclists.

Mr. Woods announces that he has signed Bert Williams to act for him for a term of three years, and will present him in one of his new plays next season called "The Pink Slip," by Walter De Leon.

Friday night "The Bat" will celebrate its one hundredth performance at the Princess theater. Since the opening here in December "The Bat" has been seen by 97,800 playgoers who have paid $210,000 for that privilege. In New York the play is now in the twenty-seventh week of its run with gross winnings to date of $494,000. Thus the two companies of "The Bat" have collected $704,000 so far this season. The above information is vouchsafed by Mr. Patterson McNutt, the manager. As the bond brokers say in their advertisements—while we do not guarantee the accuracy of the foregoing statement we have every reason to believe that it is, approximately, correct.

TOM POWERS, the leading actor of "Cognac" at the Studebaker, was in the American air service during the war and was a roommate of the late Dudley Fairbairn of Chicago, who was killed at a flying camp in Scotland in 1918. Miss Maud Fairbairn sends THE TRIBUNE the following letter written by Mr. Powers to the mother of the aviator soon after his death:

New York, June 26, 1918.

My Dear Mrs. Fairbairn: You don't know me at all, but I know there are some things that I know nobody else will tell you.

He lived in the room with boys who loved him. He was so good tempered and the spirit of that room was unlike the spirit of any room in barracks that I have seen.

It was all as much a shock to us who were here with him as it was to you so far away. The thing I want to tell you is that he wasn't entirely away from those who loved him.

The funeral left the infirmary in the most beautiful way. First, we who loved him and knew him best carried the coffin, with the flag over it, out into the sunlight under the trees. There were flowers galore, sent by all those who knew him, and his cap and belt were atop of all. You can't know how beautiful it was while the service was being read to see the men who have all come out here to risk everything standing uncovered around your boy and grieving for him.

When the service was finished the procession moved into the street where the men were lined up waiting for us. Through the winding cobbled streets of the little Scotch village we marched slowly, with the impressive slow march of the British army. First came the firing party with arms reversed, then the pipers with kilts swaying and streamers fluttering, in time to the dirge. Then the army tender bearing the casket smothered in white flowers—all the strong, happy spring flowers that grow so abundantly even in war time.

After the tender, flanked by his six friends, the entire body of officers, followed by the United States army men, and with the R. A. F. mechanics bringing up the rear.

He is buried in a beautiful old cemetery over which he has flown many, many times, and over which we fly every day and look down and hope that when our time comes, as it so easily might in this day and time, that we may die as honorably and be mourned as genuinely as he.

At the grave the firing squad fired three rounds after the prayer. The Last Post was played on the pipes while his brother officers stood at salute. Then, with the commanding officer and his instructor, we lowered him to his grave in that beautiful spot. The men all saluted and marched away, while we stayed to put the flowers on his grave and I said a little prayer for you and one for me.

Today, now that my impressions are becoming distinguishable, I remember the slow procession through the town, with the curb lined with the poor, broken, wounded, blinded Tommies who are in hospital here—all standing at attention as the cortége passed, and saluting as he passed them. It was all beautiful, and all as you would have liked it, I am sure. I saved two little flowers for you—here they are.

And now good-by. I hope that I have not made it harder for you; but I knew you'd want to know everything about it.

He did not suffer even for a moment—the light was simply extinguished. Believe me, sincerely yours,

TOM POWERS

"THE GAYEST COMEDY I EVER SAW" Booth Tarkington DULCY
by
GEORGE S. KAUFMAN AND MARC CONNELLY WITH LYNN FONTANNE
HALL, JOURNAL — "The success of 'DULCY' is complete and unqualified. In Lynn Fontanne is found the world's ideal actress for DULCY."
HAMMOND, TRIBUNE — "'DULCY' is a happy satire — Miss Fontanne exquisite — the acting suggests anthems and hat waving."
COLLINS, POST — "'DULCY' is to American women what Sinclair Lewis' 'Main Street' is to American Geography —is the female 'Peter Pan' of a gum chewing nation."
LESLIE, NEWS — "'DULCY' fairly ripples with honest laughter — the cast achieves perfection that has not been duplicated since Augustin Daly gave us the 'Big Bonanza.' Miss Fontanne's delightful art is something to hail with rapture seldom called into service these days."
B.L.T., TRIBUNE — "The appreciation by the audiences of so intelligent a play as 'DULCY,' in which the jests are not diagrammed, confirms our suspicion that the public is not such a fool as it looks."
STEVENS, EXAMINER — "I found myself on the anxious seat as the hour neared 11—I'm glad I waited."
AMERICAN — "'DULCY' will become a household word in Chicago."
"LYNN FONTANNE AS 'DULCY' IS AN EXQUISITE COMEDIENNE IN A THOROUGHLY DELIGHTFUL COMEDY—A FINE AND LASTING SUCCESS"

By Mae Tinée.

OFFHAND, it would seem that perhaps the most valuable (and least appreciated) word in the English language is "Hush." Cursed be the tongue that wags! It certainly can gum things up.

Proof of the value of silence is offered in Clara Kimball Young's new photoplay.

It is the story of a wife who decided to have no secrets from her husband—and, after she had told him the sad all, about a former mad marriage, she spent the rest of her time wishing the Furies had torn her tongue out by the roots before it had so irretrievably injured her.

Why? Well, a man is broad and forgiving by word of mouth only, it seems, when the conduct of his wife is the issue. He may honestly excuse the peccadillos of his neighbor's wife, but the scruff on his neck rises when the knowledge comes to him that there have been other men in the life of the lady who bears his name. And from the time he learns the facts in the case he is a vicious dog—sure to growl on all occasions, and apt to bite on slightest provocation.

"Hush," from the clever pen of Sada Cowan, is sumptuously staged and excellent directed. It is smart, logical, and well worked out.

Miss Young, as the prattling wife, uses her big eyes and gorgeous gowns to good effect in the first reels, and acts toward the last. She doesn't know much about subtleties and reserves, but just the same does most creditable work in this production. Her supporting cast could not be better. Note especially Frank Glendon and Kathlyn Williams.

There seems to be no reason why a picture as human and well put on as this should not be a box office success.

Bessie Love and Sessue Hayakawa are scheduled to play together in "The Swamp," a story written by the Japanese.

Well, well, Otis Harlan's picture comes in with the announcment that he is to be starred by a company known as the Rockett Film corporation. May it go up and not come down like one!

A quote from "It," a motion picture magazine: "George Beban, who is traveling through the country appearing in conjunction with his picture, 'One Man in a Million,' says when he finds it necessary to produce sex pictures and problem plays he will quit pictures and drive a truck. Dear George: If there is some way you could make a lot of directors feel the way you do, the Truck Drivers' union would be as big as the association of former 'U' managers."

Jack Pickford is co-directing his famous sister's new picture. They do say that sister sees to it he keeps right on the job.

Mr. Hart has completed his last picture under his Paramount contract. We shall now see whether or not he makes good his threat to retire from the screen.

In May Doris May will be married to Wallace MacDonald, so rumor from the coast has it. She picked her month right, didn't she? (Only, as it happens, her real name is Lee.) The bride-to-be has left the Ince fold, and will soon be starred, it is said, by another company.

Of interest to the people who like their classics in picture form comes the announcement that Maurice Tourneur is to film "Lorna Doone." He plans to go to England for scenes on the locale.

The American Museum has acquired a print of "The Race of the Age," which shows Man O' War in the race at Windsor, Canada. The print has been placed in the museum for future generations to see.

LEE: I'm glad the patient is "quietly" recovering, though sorry his recovery is slow. You have never shown me any unkindness that I can think of at the present time.

D. B.: Charles Spencer Chaplin was born in Paris in 1889. So far as I know, his real name is Charles Spencer Chaplin.

J. C. B.: Viola Dana's real last name is Flugrath. Viola is the elder. Her age is given as 23. Her sister Shirley is 20 years old. Miss Dana lives at 7070 Franklin avenue, Los Angeles. Glad to oblige you.

BELLE P.: So glad you wrote! "Watch Your Smoke" is the title of Wallace Reid's coming picture. It will probably be released in May or June.

MARIE: If he's crazy, I had never heard of it. Don't believe all these stories you hear about famous folks.

Brush Calls Harmon

MR. P. T. HARMON, Advertiser De Luxe, Dreamland Ballroom.

Dear Sir: You are sure playing it safe with your "challenge" to the musicians of Chicago.

You know you cannot get the real dance music artists to come to Dreamland for the simple reason that they are all employed on steady, high priced engagements.

Your petty offer of two nights' competition don't interest them.

If you honestly "desire to give Dreamland patrons the best music obtainable," you will offer some prominent leader carte blanche to pick an orchestra to come to Dreamland when they are off duty—say some Sunday afternoon—"regardless of price," as you say.

Then you can honestly face your patrons and say, "Here are the best dance artists obtainable," and you cannot say it fairly until then. This is just a tip from me.

CLINT BRUSH.

HARMON CALLS BRUSH

I don't know you, Clint Brush, but you must be a good man or you couldn't stay at Al. Tierney's five years. If you question my sincerity, PICK your men and be at Dreamland Sunday afternoon, March 20th. Price no object.

ittle Blue Bowls Tell Tale of Grim Tragedy as Thousands Die in China

By Mme. X.

HAVE you seen one of the little blue bowls with its strange, fluffy, dry contents like nothing that we know as food? The stuff looks as if some juiceless insect had chewed it and it then spewed it out. d yet this fibrous powder is the only food of 15,000,000 nan beings in the cold northern provinces of China. It composed of such delicacies as the bark of trees, corn s, chaff, dry leaves of trees or bushes, all ground to- her. Mixed with water and patted into a caks, it is ier baked or, if no fire is to be had, it is eaten raw.

he bowl is a paper copy of the Chinese rice bowl. It its tragic contents are being sent out by the Chicago nmittee for the China Famine fund as the surest, quick- way to make us well fed, happy Americans realize at the Chinese are up against.

ot that they, the Chinese, have appealed to us. They 't ask aid. Their way is to endure silently, patiently, the uttermost. But the foreigners in their country w what is happening to nearly 15,000,000 men, women, children in the cold northern provinces, the result of consecutive years of drought. Over 10,000 human gs a day are perishing of hunger there; 14,247,000 are ectly stricken.

hese are big figures, so big that they almost defeat ir object by removing the catastrophe from the range our usual powers of visualizing the een. Whole families kill them- es, or rather the father kills wife children and then commits suicide. markets are full of parents trying ell their children. The land is in clutch of silent despair. This con- on cannot be ameliorated before next harvest in July, except by out- aid. Committees are working e, and from them come appeals for ver since Roosevelt remitted a part the boxer indemnity the Chinese e looked upon us as their friends, r only friends, in an acquisitive ld. When we went into the war na also declared war on Germany after, following our lead. Even y 20,000 of 150,000 Chinese who t to France are still there, working estore order. A homesick lot they too, it is said. So the world owes n something for their part in the ld war.

he members of the Chicago com- ee appointed by ex-President Wil- are John Jay Abbott of 208 South Salle street, chairman; Julius Ro- wald, E. N. Hurley, W. W. Baird, n J. Mitchell, Dr. Frank W. Gun- us, the Rev John Timothy Stone, n Shailer Mathews, Mrs. William alhoun; and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy. Abbott defrays all office expenses, hat it is possible to assure the ic that every cent of the money ited goes to the starving Chinese. cks should be made payable to the a Famine fund.

Chinese Do Not Forget.

ur position in China is unique. land, France, and Japan, each its sphere of influence there; we e have no sphere of influence e. The Chinese appreciate this ly. One of the men most interest- n the Chinese relief work and who spent much time in China on ous missions told me that where- he went, and he traveled much addressed many meetings, every aman knew of the return of the mnity money and expressed grati- to and affection for us. They t us as they do no other nation.

Of these, six are studying icine, while the seventh is devoting self to home economics. These ents recently gave a bazaar at ch they raised quite a sum for r unhappy countrymen. There is over the country a Chinese Stud- ' alliance, 3,000 strong, which has nized elief committees in various icts. Mr. Cheng is president of Chicago branch e cannot be oblivious to what the ago committee describes as the ry and suffering of tens of thou- ls of an "industrious, patient, cour- s, peaceful people" who are dying for the need of a little food.

One So New—One So Old.

efore leaving the Chinese entirely remark of a former Chinese min- , that most amiable and intelligent lar and diplomat, Wu Ting Fang, ht be quoted to show a certain of thought on the part of the n inscrutable celestial. It was at nner given by J. Lawrence Laugh- a distinguished university profes- of economics formerly here, to Wu Fang, when the subject of our ign missions came up.

id one inquiring guest: "Mr. Wu, t you Chinese think us Americans tle impertinent to send people to h you religion when we are so and you are so old?"

ith a smile both childlike and d, he replied: "We may sometimes k so. You see, we were a highly ized people when your ancestors still hanging by their tails from trees."

oung though we may be, we can still teach the Chinese—and for the matter of that, a good many other nations much older than we—many useful things in the way of sanitation, hygiene, and other matters concerned with health and wholesome living, as our missionaries are doing. Though just how we shall handle such a problem as that the China today has to face when our time comes it is hard to say. Perhaps we shall have learned from their experience not to denude our land of its forests. This will keep us from the floods and droughts which imperil that country.

It is also a matter for thought that in China the scholar is placed at the top of the social scheme; the soldier at the bottom of it. In Japan the soldier is at the top. Given such a juxtaposition of nationalities and what is sure to happen? Just what is happening today—gradual domination and assimilation of an idealistic people by a practical people.

Another Cry for Help.

As this is the season set aside by custom and age-old edicts to fasting, prayer, and good works, the greatest activities of many of the socially prominent are concentrated on the last named of the three Lenten observances, fasting and prayer having somewhat lost their vogue of late years.

Among the most plaintive of the many cries of anguish coming from other lands is that of the Serbians. Of all the combatants in the recent war, they suffered the most terrible hardships. Their country was fought over again and again. Of their 4,000,000 people, 1,300,000 perished in the great conflict. This is not counting the sick and disabled left to be cared for today.

The Serbs do not come into the sphere of assistance given by the Hoover committees, as they have food sufficient for their simple needs. What they require is medical aid and nursing; also implements of toil, especially agricultural material, for they are an essentially agricultural people.

Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter is giving a tea at her residence, 1130 Lake Shore drive, this afternoon to enable the Chicago members of the Serbian Child Welfare Association of America to met Mr. Raden, the secretary of that distinguished Serb, Bishop Nikolai Vilimirovic of the orthodox Serbian church. On the Chicago committee are Mrs. Hamilton McCormick and Consul General Branko Lazarevitch, honorary chairmen; Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, chairman; Mrs. Russell Tyson, vice chairman; Miss Helen R. Gilbert, secretary, and George Cortelyou Jr., treasurer. The list of the general committee is headed by Bishop Charles P. Anderson of the Episcopal church.

It is estimated that there are over 500,000 orphans and half orphans in the new kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes in acute need of the simplest necessities of life, such as clothes, shelter, and medical care. The Serbs are a primitive people with great possibilities of genius and talent to be developed in them. They are also a fascinating race with somewhat the same romantic quality that we usually associate with the Hungarians. They have a wealth of folk lore and folk songs.

Soil Whereon Genius Grows.

One of the greatest living sculptors (by many considered the greatest) is a Serb, Mestrovitch. So deep was the feeling of his compatriots for him and his gifts that they would not let him fight in the war, declaring that he was too valuable to the world and to his country to be allowed to risk his life in the terrible uncertainties and hardships of the conflict.

For centuries the Serbs have been so beaten by the winds of strife and adversity that only the hardiest have survived. This has created a race unusually virile and full of the material out of which greatness is made. Given half a chance, we may expect poets, artists, musicians to spring from a soil so rich in possibilities.

We Americans have had too much prosperity, too much ease and success, to develop the kind of genius which is evolved from the great tempests of life. Not from freedom, contentment, and wholesome existence does genius come. The soil from which it grows must be enriched with blood and tears to make it truly fertile.

Shakespeare came just after the time when "Bloody Mary" flourished and when the lovely Lady Jane Grey had been beheaded by her lively rival, the "virgin queen." Goethe's genius blossomed at the period when the French revolution and the ideas that inspired it were tearing the old world to pieces. Dante walked his hard path during one of the somberest periods in medieval Italy. Almost from the beginning of our national existence the sun has shone on the American people. With one great exception, we have not had a chance to develop real genius from any "sturm und drang." That exception was Abraham Lincoln, who came at the moment of our greatest national peril.

All Sorts of Antics.

It is the fad of the day to have a favorite set of exercises. Even that most fascinating of all topics, diet (and every one seems to be dieting these days), is not more popular as a theme for dinner table talk than is exercises.

It is quite the mode after dinner to give exhibitions of various forms of gymnastics. The most picturesque are practiced on the floor, either lying flat on the back, or squatting on the haunches, or sitting cross-legged. Simple though they look to the tyro, a brief trial shows their intricate difficulties. An expert is Mrs. Nicholas Longworth (formerly Alice Roosevelt). With easy grace she can stand on her head and even turn somersaults. The latter is one of the finest stunts and most recommended to those seeking health and suppleness.

This only sounds somewhat ridiculous to those unaccustomed to the idea of these unusual acrobatics because the ignorant from time immemorial have always laughed at what they did not know or understand. It is their unconscious means of defense.

This is certainly an age of fads and experiments, the wandering and confused attempts of people the world over to find a solution for this sorry business we call living. We seem to have cut loose from earlier moorings and to be tossing on a sea of uncertainty. Many leaders are pointing into the surrounding darkness and calling out: "This way lies light." But no two point in the same direction. So, on we flounder.

Some mortals eat only spinach and drink only buttermilk, while others lie on their backs in bed and go through strange antics before getting up in the morning. Still other turns somersaults, as the sun rises, while there be some who chew raw carrots, and all cry: "This way lies health and happiness, and this way only."

Farm and Garden Exhibit.

Meanwhile the kindly, simple old Mother Earth goes on blooming and seeding and producing food and flowers, and the Woman's National Farm and Garden association is trying to help Mother Earth by some gentle direction of her energies. The midwest branch of this association, under the direction of Mrs. Russell Tyson, has got up a spring exhibition, which opens on Tuesday at the Art institute, in combination with the architectural and the applied arts shows there.

To combine these three seems a sensible thing to do, as all are closely related. A house that is to set in a garden should be designed with the garden. Also, its interior furnishings should harmonize with both house and garden.

The farm and garden association offers five prizes, one for the best design for the decorative treatment of entrance to an exhibit, one for a garden, one for a city back yard design, one for a park bench design, and one for the best essay on "The Sense of Humor and Proportion in Landscape Design." An extra prize of $25 is offered for the best design for a garden from 75 to 150 feet long, and a second $50 for the best city back yard, as the contest was so close that the jury considered it a tie.

There will be lectures and conferences on various topics connected with the subjects of interest to the association.

In the Real Estate World.

A recent sale in the real estate world of interest to society is that of the Hempstead Washburne home, at 1446 Astor street, to the George Farnsworths. The latter have lived for the last fifteen years or so in an attractive house on the southern confines of Hubbard Woods. Now that their children are growing up, a home in the city seems imperative. In no other country is life so shaped and controlled by the young and their desires and needs as in this country. As we grow older it is possible that the worship of ancestors may become in time a rite, as it is with the Chinese. By that time, however, we may be needing the help of some as yet unborn nation. Who knows?

The arrival here of Harold McCormick's younger daughter, Miss Mathilde McCormick, last Monday, was a great event in the numerous McCormick family. She has not been here since 1914, having spent the intervening time in Switzerland with her mother. She was only 10 years old when she went away, so the most impressionable years of her life have been spent in foreign surroundings. She departed yesterday for a trip to California. Her elder sister, Miss Muriel McCormick, returns to town tomorrow, after having spent the last few weeks in New York, where she has watched with the greatest interest the triumphs of the Chicago Opera company.

She herself has unusual dramatic talent and also a sweet soprano voice, which she is studying to develop, having ambitions to become a veritable artist, a professional with a career on the stage.

Ah, these wonderful young women of the present time, who are so eager for all the experiences of life and so unsatisfied with the old, narrow confines set about the girls of other times, what are we to do with them? It is a question which they think is theirs to answer, not ours. Much that is now in a fused and confused state, is to be solved in the next generation.

Concert for Camp Site.

Arthur Rubinstein, pianist, will appear in recital on March 16 at the Drake, under the auspices of the girls' camp committee of the Chicago Hebrew institute. The funds will go toward the purchase of a new and permanent camp site at Loon lake, Illinois, where several buildings will be erected for the convenience and pleasure of young girls from 12 to 16 years of age, who otherwise would not have relief during the summer months from their sordid lives.

Though the Hebrew institute is sponsoring and directs the activities of the camp, it is nonsectarian. Working girls, school girls, and "little mothers" will be given two weeks of country air, country food, and simple recreations, together with instructions in hygiene and in problems which confront all girls of that age. The cost of the vacation will be nominal, and free scholarships will be given to girls who are unable to meet it.

Among the patronesses for the concert are Mesdames Morris L. Johnston, Kellogg Fairbank, Joseph G. Coleman, William R. Odell, Jacob Baur, John A. Carpenter, William Nitze, Irving L. Stern, Edward R. Fifield, and William Nussbaum.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Press Women to Have Book Stall at Charity Bazaar

By Kate Webber.

THE Woman's Press association will have charge of the Illinois authors' booth at the Easter charity bazaar to be given in the ballroom of the Blackstone on Saturday, April 2. The proceeds of the bazaar, of which Mrs. Archibald Freer is general chairman, will go to the Chicago Working Girls' home, the Armenian relief, and the Paris Chicago hospital.

Ethel M. Colson Brazelton is chairman of the committee in charge of the book stall and she will be assisted by Julia Cooley Altrocchi, Clara Louise Burnham, Catherine E. Cook, Mary D. Donahey, Frances Donovan, Georgene Faulkner, Elizabeth Gordon, Ella Wood Hayne, Clara Ingram Judson, Harriett Monroe, Maude I. G. Oliver, Mary Moncure Parker, Renée B. Stern, and Hattie Summerfield.

The press association requests Illinois authors, men and women, to donate autographed copies of their books to be sold at the bazaar and to send them to Mrs. Freer at the Blackstone hotel any time before April 2.

An outgrowth of the first exhibition and sale of the books of Illinois authors last December, which was under the auspices of the Illinois Woman's Press association, is the state authors' directory, or "Who's Who" of Illinois authors, which the association is compiling. The association also is coöperating with the Chicago Historical society in collecting works of representative Illinois authors for a permanent "Illinois Authors' Corner."

The Illinois Woman's Press association itself is composed of professional writers, authors, illustrators, and publishers. It was organized in 1885. A program meeting or a social gathering is held the first Thursday evening of each month at the association's present quarters in the Brownleigh club rooms, 253 N. Michigan avenue.

Catherine E. Cook is the program chairman, and the meetings are in charge of the different sections, such as the "Authors and Contributors," "Cartoons and Photoplays," "Reporters," and others. Mrs. D. Harry Hammer is the social chairman. The regular business meetings of the club are held the third Friday evening in the month. These are followed by the round table, of which Genevieve Harris is chairman, and at which technical subjects are discussed.

Officers of the association are: President, Maude Swalm Evans; vice presidents, Maude I. G. Oliver, Elizabeth Curtiss Nolan, and Violet Moore Higgins; recording secretary, Mary E. Rae; corresponding secretary, Ada A. Fisher; treasurer, Helen B. Bennett; historian and librarian, Mary Hegan Henson; parliamentarian, Minnie Starr Goodwin.

It is the first time that the landscape and garden competitions have been held in connection with the architectural exhibition and the midwest branch of the Farm and Garden association is holding it in place of its usual convention.

How I Ate A Pound A Day Off My Weight

An amazing discovery in weight reduction. No starving, no medicine, no special foods, no course of baths, no exercises, no "mind cure."

"AREN'T you heavier than you used to be?" This would nearly always be the first remark I'd hear whenever I met an old friend or acquaintance. And they were right. No doubt about it, I was fast putting on weight to a noticeable extent.

At first I took it as a sure sign of vigorous health. I had always thought that the accumulation of fat was Nature's way of storing up health and energy—a sort of reserve to draw upon in time of need. So I revelled in my good fortune and felt genuinely sorry for my friends who were not so favored by Nature.

But soon my condition began to be serious. I was getting altogether too fat. My increasing stoutness began to be about all I could think of—it entirely occupied my mind. My friends began to mention it. I couldn't walk a block without puffing. My heart became affected.

I Gave Up Pleasures to No Avail

I had always led an active life, being fond of athletics, horseback riding and other exercises. My increasing weight made it difficult for me to "go in" for these things. I simply couldn't get around as fast as the others—even my walk was different; and, besides, any sort of physical exertion became unpleasant to me. I don't need to go into details, for anyone with a tendency to stoutness will well know what I mean.

This lack of exercise could lead to but one thing. I took on weight to an alarming extent, and I shall never forget the day when I realized that I was slowing down mentally as well as physically. I lost interest in my work and all social affairs. Anything requiring exertion was passed up. Understand me, please, I am not trying to praise my former self and figure. I'm simply telling how my mental and physical powers and pleasure decreased as fat was increased.

Starving Only Made Things Worse

You can probably guess my next move—nearly every "fat" woman has taken it. I became a follower of the "simple life." I cut down on my diet—and felt hungry all the time. Then I took a course of baths. According to weights taken "before and after" the baths cut down my weight. But within a day or so the weight was back again. The baths had only a temporary effect. And it seemed to me that they were sapping my vitality.

Then I tried the plan of going without liquids; omitting certain food from my all-too-meager diet; of eating widely advertised "reducing foods," and finally of taking medicine.

By this time life had lost much of its joy for me. As my weight increased so did my distress. I simply had to do something. So I started to find out all I could about obesity. I questioned physicians, surgeons, army doctors, health specialists and a lot of women and men who were similarly afflicted. Soon I became a walking encyclopedia of weight reduction. But still I continued to put on weight.

Fat People Die Young

One day I experienced a shock. I was reading some health statistics by life insurance companies. These showed conclusively that in addition to causing mental and physical inefficiency fatness brings on a serious chain of illnesses, such as heart trouble, diabetes, stomach and intestinal trouble, apoplexy and the like. And then I read that fat people die young. No supposition about this. Plain, cold, hard facts, drawn from life insurance statistics, covering the experiences of tens of thousands of people and several generations.

At Last I Found the Secret

My lucky star must have been working for me about this time, for I ran across just the kind of practical help I was looking for. A friend advised me to read "Weight Control, the Basis of Health," by the famous Food Specialist, Eugene Christian.

This course, in the form of simple little lessons, completely upset my own personal opinions and all that I had learned about obesity and health. It shows that when one starts to put on weight it is not a sign of health, but of ill-health. Obesity is actually a disease. Then it showed that most of the tables of weights indicating what a person of a certain age and height should weigh are all wrong and why.

Then there were some startling new ideas about the maintenance of health and of mental and physical vigor. No theories, but hard, practical facts, drawn from the experiences of thousands of men and women in all conditions of life.

The remarkable part of it all was that there were no fads in Eugene Christian's methods, no special baths, no self-denying diet, no medicine, no exercises—nothing out of the ordinary. Simply go on living a normal life, eat appetizing, delicious foods, properly combined, do pretty much as you please. And still one could reduce his or her weight to normal in a very short time by entirely natural methods.

A Pound Less a Day Without the Slightest Hardship

It all sounded too good to be true, but I decided to give the methods a fair test. Right from the start my former figure and energy began to return. The very first week I reduced my weight by a pound each day. Not the slightest hardship was involved—a most unusual thing in weight reduction. I had always enjoyed my meals, but now my food tasted even more delicious than ever. Working became a pleasure to me again, instead of a grind. I was bubbling over with life and energy. My flesh grew hard and firm. And soon, very much to my surprise, I was able to wear fabrics and colors which my stoutness had forced me to abandon.

A Famous Scientist's Greatest Work

When I now look upon my former condition of stoutness it all seems like a horrible nightmare, for not only did I quickly regain my normal weight, but I've maintained it ever since. To look at me today no one would realize that not so long ago I was a "fat" woman. My quick reduction in weight, my vigorous health and active mind of today I owe all to Eugene Christian. I only wish I had the means to distribute his remarkable Course to every woman afflicted with obesity, for I feel that Eugene Christian is rendering a great and genuine service to humanity through his wonderful work. I have recommended Eugene Christian's Course to many others and have had the satisfaction of seeing it produce results just as remarkable as in my case.

How You Can Try This Method Without Risking a Penny

Much could be written about the cause and the remedy for excessive stoutness and Eugene Christian's methods. But that is unnecessary, for you can now test them out in the privacy of your home without risking a penny. These methods are not new and untried theories, for more than 200,000 people in all walks of life have used and are using them and indorse them in the most enthusiastic terms.

The publishers have left on hand just 1,296 sets of Eugene Christian's Course, which they wish to dispose of before the New Edition comes off the press. The price at which thousands of these sets have been sold is $5. But these few remaining sets are being offered at only $2 for as long as they last, so if you act quickly you can get these wonderful secrets at a saving of $3.

Send No Money!

Simply put your name and address on the coupon below and mail it NOW. Give the postman only $2 in complete payment when the course arrives.

Look the course over carefully. Put it to the test. Weigh yourself before you start, then weigh yourself daily. Judge by results. If you don't notice a great improvement within five days after starting, send it back and your money will be refunded. You can clearly see that an offer like this could not be made unless the publishers were confident that Eugene Christian's methods will produce remarkable results for you, as they have for thousands of others who gladly paid $5 for the course.

But immediate action is necessary. There is no need for you to suffer from superfluous weight any longer—and remember, that special price can be held only as long as the few sets last.

"Weight Control" will be sent in a plain container.

Cut the coupon now and send it at once and be sure to avoid disappointment. You will surely agree that health, happiness and comfort are worth this trial. Write today.

"Nice People" Chooses 'Twixt Art and $ $

"Kiss me and I am pure," says the once dissolute "Ted" to the angel man, and Miss Crothers, letting it go at that, drops her curtain and picks up her royalties.

Thomas Burke has a fable in one of his London sketches the point of which might well prick Miss Crothers' conscience. It is of the brave man at the tenement fire who climbs to the top of the burning house after the firemen have abandoned hope of saving the old woman in the garret room, descends victoriously with his precious bundle, and, opening it, finds that he has saved a mattress wrapped in a sheet. I hope that, by now Miss Crothers has opened the wrappings of her third act and has found that she carried down from Olympus a Broadway success.

The theater guild, protesting against a great deal that disgraces the American stage, attempts periodically to grace it. In the Garrick theater this week they have achieved their purpose with "Mr. Pim Passes By," a comedy by the Englishman A. A. Milne. Mr. Milne's note is the grace note. There is no symphonic structure to "Mr. Pim." There is scarcely any structure at all, but a delicate thrilling in a rarefied style on a theme which will not bear much more.

"Mr. Pim" is a casual visitor to the country house of an opinionated, pigheaded, respectable Englishman whose fellow residents are a witty feminine wife and a lovesick niece. In the first act he tells them that the wife's first husband is still living in Australia. In the last act he returns to correct a mistake. It is not Mr. Jones but Mr. Brown who is still living in Australia. Mrs. Marden is not a bigamist. Meanwhile Mrs. Marden has had a lot of fun with her scared spouse.

"We have been living all these years in—in—a state of—of—of," he stutters to her.

"Has living in a state of—of—of—been unpleasant?" she counters, blandly.

"It hasn't, but it ought to have been," he repliles—and that is the moral of this exceedingly moral comedietta.

The incident and excitement of the play are all in the talk which, nearly always, is an adventure in cleverness. The talk is shaved Shavian. Mr. Milne is the bearded Bernard barbered for the drawing room.

Some great plays do not translate. Henry Baron has made the French of Georges de Porto-Riche's "Amoureuse" into an English drama which he names "The Tyranny of Love" and presents with such simon-pure English people as Estelle Winwood and Cyril Keightley in the Bijou theater. It does not make an English drama.

Everybody was out of step but Georges. He knew that adultery exists, but the actors and the audience did not. When I go into an American theater and find American audiences laughing at sin I come to the conclusion that the breach of promise suits are all invented by the city editors of the newspapers.

De Porto-Riche tells of a wife who wanted a great deal more of her husband's love than he could supply. When the husband walked out on her before the dessert and the rest of what was to be a little love dinner, she revolted. Her husband's best friend was invited to have the dessert and the rest. Ultimately the husband discovered all about the dessert and the rest and promised that he would do his best to stay home for dessert and the rest hereafter.

We laughed. We meant by that laughter to clearly indicate that temperamental discord is unknown in the American home.

Miss Winwood and Mr. Keightley were partly responsible for the laughter. They are of our blood and clearly thought the play monstrous piffle. Catch an Anglo-Saxon taking adultery seriously. It is as much as you can do to make him take it at all.

e in to see me several weeks r girl! I was sorry for her. lost her position and she had so hard to find another. I seen her so discouraged. to her for some time and her why she didn't take up

Gladys looked at me hopefully. "Do you really think I could get a position as a file clerk?"

"I can't say for sure," I answered. "That depends wholly on yourself. But I will say this. There will always be good positions waiting for competent file clerks.

"The beauty of filing is that it is a comparatively new profession. Business men are realizing more and more every day that it pays to employ a trained file clerk. Such a girl occupies a position of importance. She really earns her salary. And earning it, she is more than reasonably sure of her position even in so-called bad times.

"The best place to learn filing is at The Illinois School of Filing. Instead of giving you 99% theory and 1% practice, they give you 50% practice and 50% theory. You actually 'keep' a file while learning. And you will learn all systems of filing."

All of this and more I told Gladys. And then, finally, I told her to write to The Illinois School of Filing for their free book—"Filing as a Profession for Women."

It tells all about this interesting work for women. Somehow I feel sure it will help Gladys. In fact, I advise every girl to write for this book. It will open your eyes to the opportunities in this work for ambitious girls and women.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Open Three-Week Mission at St. Patrick's Today

By the Rev. Gardner Mac Whorter

A THREE weeks' mission will be inaugurated in St. Patrick's church, Adams and Desplaines streets, today by the Rev. W. J. Stanton, O. M. I., and the Rev. J. T. McDermott, O. M. I. It is the custom at St. Patrick's to hold a mission during Lent of every year. This year preparations have been made to close the mission in Holy week, the Tenebrae being sung in the afternoon with other devotions for each evening. Special music will be the order for the duration of the mission. Particular attention is called to the service at noon of each day and that of every night.

A new English Lutheran congregation has been organized in the vicinity of Fullerton and Cicero avenues. The Rev. August Jarus has been called as pastor. The name of this congregation is the Grace English Evangelical Lutheran congregation. Services are held regularly at the Holy Cross Evangelical Lutheran church, Wrightwood and Lamon avenues, for the present. Lenten services are held every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A committee has been appointed to procure a suitable church and location for a permanent home. A cordial welcome is extended to all Lutherans residing in this vicinity to attend services.

Mrs. José Perez, a Philippine student of the University of Chicago, who, with her husband, is studying in America preparatory to doing social service work in their native country, will speak at the West Side Y. W. C. A., 101 South Ashland boulevard, this afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the interests of a better understanding of the Filipinos among Americans. Mrs. Perez has lived most of her life in Manila, and is a graduate of the University of the Philippines. After her graduation she taught for a time in a Methodist mission school and in private schools in the Philippines.

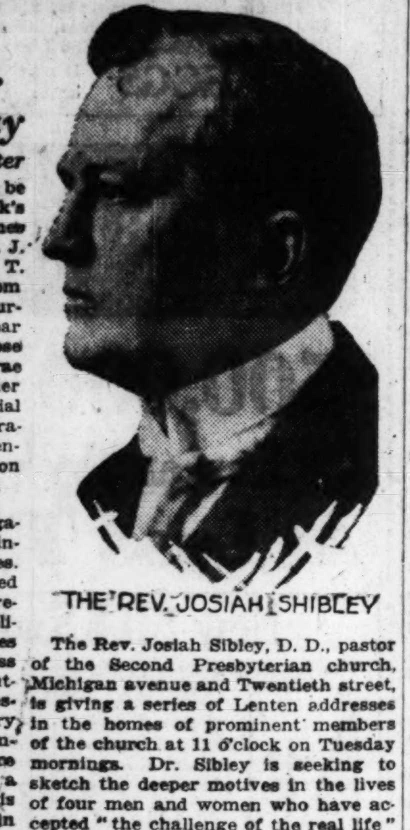
The Rt. Rev. C. P. Anderson, D. D., LL.D., bishop of Chicago, will visit Christ church, Sixty-fifth street and Woodlawn avenue, for confirmation this morning at 11 o'clock. Bishop Anderson will celebrate the holy communion and preach at this service. Plans are under way for the institution of the new rector of Christ church, the Rev. Hubert J. Buckingham, who was left in charge of the parish when the Rev. Charles H. Young, M. A., was called to be rector of Howe school, Indiana, last fall. The Rev. Mr. Buckingham was tendered a unanimous call to become rector of Christ church, has accepted, and will shortly be instituted. Christ church choir will render Dubois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ" at choral evensong this evening at 7:45.

Nearly fifty new members of the Chicago chapter of St. Joseph's college and academy, assembled at Bishop Quarter school, last Sunday afternoon when the committee on entertainment made final plans for an Easter party to be held April 2.

The Rev. Father Downing, S. J., addressed the members of the association, and in forceful words, warned the young women against the real evils of spiritualism as they are to be met with in the world today.

The boys of Bishop Quarter school orchestra furnished the musical numbers on a program for the alumnae, assisted by Master Billy Moran, the Paulist soloist, accompanied by Miss Virginia Moran.

The next meeting of the association will be held at St. Columbanus' convent, Seventy-first street and Calumet avenue, on March 20.



THE REV. JOSIAH SIBLEY

The Rev. Josiah Sibley, D. D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and Twentieth street, is giving a series of Lenten addresses in the homes of prominent members of the church at 11 o'clock on Tuesday mornings. Dr. Sibley is seeking to sketch the deeper motives in the lives of four men and women who have accepted "the challenge of the real life" as an inspiration to truer living. The first address was given last Tuesday on "The Spiritual Frontage of Sidney Lanier." The subject this week Tuesday is "The Labrador Doctor and the Adventure of Faith," to be given at the residence of Mrs. T. B. Blackstone, 1812 Prairie avenue; next Tuesday "Alice Freeman Palmer and the Life of Service," at the home of Mrs. Charles S. Holt, 38 Bellevue place, and on March 22 "Francis of Assisi and His Appeal to the Twentieth Century in the Real Meaning of Sacrifice," at the apartments of Mrs. W. A. Giles, Lakota hotel. The Rev. Dr. Sibley was formally installed as pastor of the Second Presbyterian church last October, coming to Chicago from Calvary Presbyterian church, San Francisco, where he had doubled the membership and the benevolences during his pastorate there.

Next Sunday night at 8 o'clock there will be a special musical "Service of Lights" given in Emmanuel church, La Grange, by the full vested choir of seventy boys and men, under the direction of William Ripley Dorr, at which the principal events in the life of Christ from the advent to the resurrection, will be portrayed in music and light. The soloists will be Andrew C. Grant, tenor, and Blake H. Wilson, baritone. The Passion music will include the chorus "Blessed Jesu," from the Dvorak "Stabat Mater," and selections from Stainer's "Crucifixion."

The fourth in the series of Lenten lectures under the auspices of the social service department of the Church Service league will be given on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street. Miss Campbell, superintendent of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, will give the address, illustrated with lantern pictures.

Comparisons Being Odious, Chicagoans Just Don't Make 'Em

By Ruth Miller

WE had a visitor of great distinction with us last Sunday. Toscanini it was, and his much heralded La Scala orchestra of Milan. We welcomed him with an audience made up of the wildly enthusiastic scattering few.

Italy's greatest, or at least most expensive, symphonic enterprise, headed by her most famous conductor, was brought within street car distance of our doorstep and the majority of us went to the Sabbath movies or took a walk. If an ocean voyage and considerable travel by railway had been the preliminary necessary to our hearing Toscanini's orchestra, we would have fought for seats in a garlic scented Italian theater. Having achieved them and heard Toscanini's band, that symphonic experience would have been a high point of light in our esthetic conversation forever after. "We heard Toscanini and the La Scala orchestra in Milan when—"

But when the mountain comes to Mohammed the prophet greets his guest perfunctorily between yawns. It is only when Mohammed goes to the mountain that he rightly appreciates the scenery.

We state with entire gravity and authority that Chicago possesses the greatest orchestra in this country or outside of it. It is a noble sentiment. One that bespeaks a righteous civic pride.

But by what yardstick is that sweeping statement made? What has been our standard of comparison? Certainly not other orchestras. Mr. Oberhoffer of Minneapolis brings his band to town and his afternoon listeners hardly trouble the hundreds with their numbers. Mr. Toscanini comes all the way from Italy to give us his Italianized Beethoven and Brahms, and how many of our Friday afternoon patrons did we see in the Auditorium last Sunday?

I knew a man and his wife who never attend any concert except those given Saturday night by the Chicago Orchestra. They know only the singers, pianists, and violinists who have appeared as soloists with that organization. That speaks well for the lure and influence exerted by our orchestra. But when they assert that the Chicago Orchestra is the world's greatest, and can do no wrong, is theirs intelligent criticism?

I never decided that Chicago had the greatest band until I heard Nikisch conduct the London Symphony and the Berlin Philharmonic, which latter the Germans themselves admitted could not be equaled.

Sunday Toscanini led his men through the banal melodies and the magnificent orchestration of Richard Strauss' tone poem, "Don Juan." Friday Mr. Stock did likewise with his men. But how many of our local arbiters of music heard both Mr. Stock's and Mr. Toscanini's performance?

Mr. Toscanini's orchestra of handpicked musicians has been referred to by the initiate as an ensemble of soloists, which means a great deal more symphonically than it says. It has also been called an orchestra of symphonic proportions with a great operatic conductor. As critical essays of the orchestral artistic values both statement were glib superficialities and hollow analyses.

If eager lay-symphonists, devotees of the Chicago organization, had packed the Auditorium to its capacity last Sunday to hear, and perhaps to quarrel with, Mr. Toscanini's Strauss and his Brahms, it had been better for all of us, professional and amateur music lover alike. Then Friday afternoon, when they praised the Strauss and Mendelssohn of Mr. Stock, they would have known whereof they spoke.

The extension department of the Musicians' club of women has a record of philanthropic work extending over many years. Every season it comes with an appeal to the public hoping to meet more generous friends, who recognized the value of what it is doing. At first, long ago, the Musicians' club of women sent a gifted student abroad to study. Then it was discovered that the United States, and Chicago in particular, offered excellent teachers and the student could be advanced in her work under the supervision of the club without the expensive journey and the mischance that frequently lay in wait for young women abroad.

The idea of helping young musicians to help themselves was the next step, and the funds of the extension department were used to pay young artists who would unite with others in programs to be given at charitable institutions free of charge. The artist had the opportunity and the experience of appearances and many shut-ins rejoiced when music came to them.

Says the chairman: "The value of the work can hardly be overestimated: the opportunity of appearance for its members and the joy brought to the less fortunate of our city. During the war many of these concerts were given for the soldiers and sailors in camps and hospitals.

"It is estimated that during the two years we visited the Great Lakes that our entertainments were enjoyed by over 60,000 sailors. This did not include the entertainments for soldiers and sailors that we furnished at the Khaki and Blue, the Army and Navy, and other entertainments given throughout the city for our service men. During February we coöperated with the Civic Music association in giving four concerts at Hamilton park and two at Palmer park. Entertainments given at the Juvenile Detention home often present special features of interest.

"During the winter months concerts have been given at the Home for Incurables, and other institutions visited are the military hospitals at Fort Sheridan, Oak Forest, and Forty-seventh street, the Cripple Children's hospital, Home for the Aged, and the Community Parks and Settlement Women's clubs. The club maintains a special fund for this purpose, which is raised by benefit performances and by private subscriptions.

"Several donations for 'memory concerts' have been made this year; that is, concerts donated to certain institutions to honor the memory of some person designated by the donor.

"The benefit performance this year is to be given tomorrow, March 7, at Cohan's Grand opera house by Isolde Menges, the violinist, who made such a successful appearance last week with the Symphony orchestra."

At the Tenants' Protective League.

PROLOGUE.

Pa and Ma Potter, aroused by the increase in their rent, have come to attend a meeting of the Tenants' Protective League in their neighborhood. There will be speeches, of course, speeches being carelessly assorted noises in different keys hollered in loud tones at people who know better than to come and who consequently deserve no sympathy. Practically all speakers say the same things, only they holler in different places.

OVERTURE.

The audience grew uneasy, the ushers fell asleep,
Children cried and men grew pale and women began to weep,
And nobody heard or cared to hear what the speaker had to say,
But the speaker kept on talking—
Talking—Talking—
The speaker kept on talking, for speakers are built that way.

The restless rustle grew apace, the audience stamped and jeered
And coughed and whistled and called and snored and hollered and scoffed and sneered,
But never a pause did the speaker pause, and never a stop nor stay,
But he manfully kept on talking—
Talking—Talking—
Inexorably kept on talking, for speakers are made that way.

SCENE: THE HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM.

CHAIRMAN: We are met here tonight to face a grave crisis. The foundation of our country: the home—your home and my home—is being imperiled by these rent hogs. (Applause.)

MA: There, what did I tell you? Isn't it true?
I hope he gives 'em fits, I do.

PA: I s'pose that'll do me a lot of good.

MA: If you had his spirit it certainly would.

PA: Aw, you make me ill.

MA: Shut up . . . keep still.

CHAIRMAN: The man whom I am about to introduce to you needs no introduction. He is a man who . . . etc. . . . A man who . . . etc. . . . (The Chairman here who-who's for about thirty min- and then allows the "man who needed no introduction" to proceed.)

PA: I'll bet he'll talk for an hour or so—
C'mon, let's go; c'mon, let's go.

MA: We'll certainly do nothing of the kind.
I'm going to hear what's on his mind.

PA: There's nothing there that doesn't show,
Just a little hair. . . . C'mon, let's go . . .

SPEAKER: Ladies and Gentlemen: I have been speaking every night at Tenants' Meetings throughout the City, and I want to say here and now that this is the most intelligent looking audience I have yet had the pleasure of addressing. ("Applause" by most of the audience, who evidently agree with him, and "laughter" by the remaining one-half of 1 per cent.) As I gaze upon your serious faces I am reminded of the story of Pat and Mike. Both of them were riding on a train and they were both dr—intoxicated slightly. "Pat," says Mike unsteadily, "fhat toime is it?" Mike takes out a match case, studies it earnestly. "Thursday," says he. "My God!" says Pat, jumping up, "I've got to get off here." (Laughter and applause.)

PA: Now, that isn't bad about Mike and Pat;
I certainly will have to remember that.

MA: Do you think that's funny? Well, goodness me.
It has no sense that I can see.

"The rights of humanity should prevail."

SPEAKER: Most of us tenants are just like Pat. We know that on a certain day we're going to step off somewhere, but we don't know just where we're going to get off. And because we object the landlords are calling us Socialists and fanatics. The chairman of this meeting is a barber. Are barbers fanatics? (Cries of No! No!) I am a wholesale millinery manufacturer. Am I a fanatic? (No! No! Applause.) My landlord has raised my rent 100 per cent. Is that right? (No! No!) I tell you it isn't a matter of money alone; it's an insult to the American people. (Cheers.)

MA (triumphantly):
What did I tell you? Isn't it so?

PA (uneasily): Guess you're right—c'mon, let's go.

SPEAKER: The American people are a patient people, as witness the World War, but when we are aroused we are not slow to draw our sword in the defense of our firesides and put our shoulder to the wheel. When we went into the fight we went in to win, and Uncle Sam would have licked the Kaiser all alone. (Loud cheers.)

MA: Isn't he fine? That's telling 'em flat—
I wish you'd assert yourself like that.

PA (dreamily):
"My God," says Pat, "I'm getting off here——"
That's a darn good yarn; don't you think so, dear?

MA (indignantly):
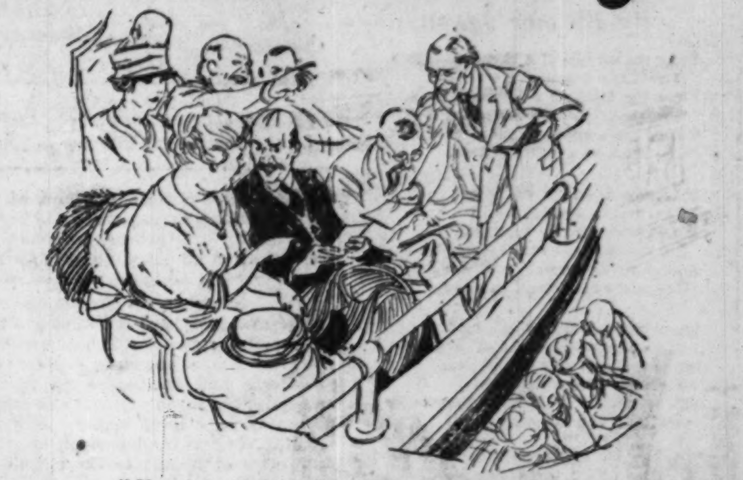
Is that all you think of it? You make me tired.
I thought by this time you'd be surely inspired.

SPEAKER: My friends, I believe with Roosevelt that when the rights of property conflict with the rights of humanity, the rights of humanity should prevail. (Cheers.) And I believe with Abraham Lincoln: this country cannot be a good country for any one of us until it is a good country for every one of us. (Loud cheers.) That's why I say, crush the rent hogs. (Applause.) Now, my friends, I must close. I must not take up too much of your time, which reminds me of a story. The prisoner had been sentenced to thirty years in prison, and as he stood at the bar the Judge said, "Mr. Brown, have you anything to say for yourself?" and Brown answered, "Well, Judge, I have nothing to say except that you are mighty liberal with my time." (Laughter.)

PA: That guy's all right. I think he's good.

MA: I'm glad you like him. I knew you would.

SPEAKER: So I must not be too liberal with other people's time. . . . I am delighted to see this great audience. I want every one here to join the Tenants' Protective League. Pay $2 for a year's membership. I am getting no money. None of these officers are getting paid. All the money goes to fight the tenant's battle. We want every man and woman in this place to join tonight . . . . especially the women, for we know that if we have the women with us, encouraging us, we will go out to battle with flying banners. We will fight the good fight and we will win. (Men pass through audience with membership blanks. Ma gets one and gives it to Pa to read.)



"You join right now. We're going to fight."

MA: Did you hear what he said? He's perfectly right.
We'll join the league and make a fight.

PA: Let's wait a while. . . . Why join tonight?

SPEAKER: We're going to fight these outrageous increases, these unwarranted increases in rents, and I say that any man who hasn't got the backbone to fight for his wife and children and home hasn't got the right to have a wife and children and a home. (Cries of "Hurray!" "That's right." Loud cheers.)

MA (excitedly):
You join right now. We're going to fight.

PA (resignedly):
All right, all right, all right, all right!

(Pa signs. The fight is on: The Potters vs. The Landlord. Well, as the poet says, "It's a long worm that has no turning.")

(And that's that.)

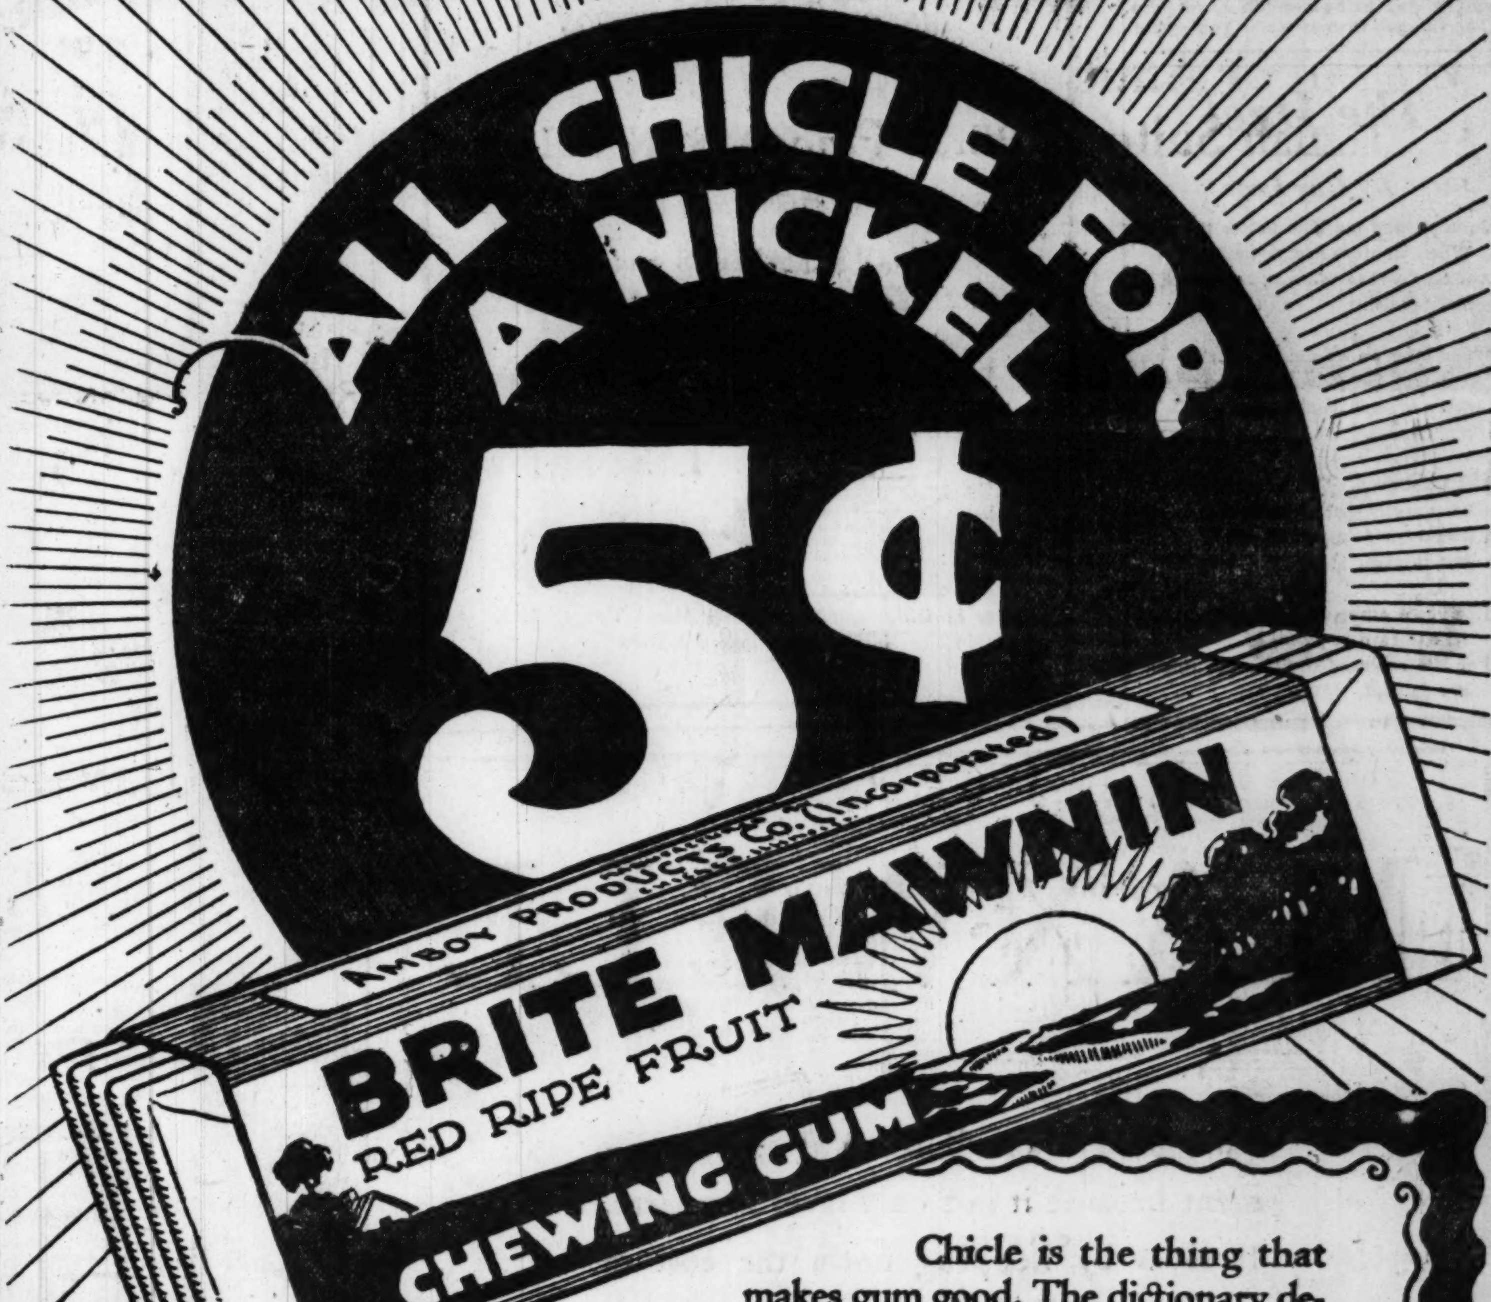
Here's a Gum That's



Chicle is the thing that makes gum good. The dictionary defines chicle as "a gum-like substance obtained from the sapodilla, a tropical American tree."

Pure chicle is expensive. That is why gum is sometimes "filled" with a substitute for chicle. The chicle in BRITE MAWNIN Gum is the finest we can buy and yet BRITE MAWNIN costs you no more. It's "all chicle for a nickel."

The greater amount of better-grade chicle in BRITE MAWNIN makes BRITE MAWNIN stay fresh longer. It is always soft, chews up smoother and never gets crumby. Until you have chewed BRITE MAWNIN you have never known gum at its best.

Try BRITE MAWNIN today. Ask for it if you don't see it. It's worth going out of your way to find this new and better "all chicle for a nickel" gum.

ART AND ARCHITECTURE

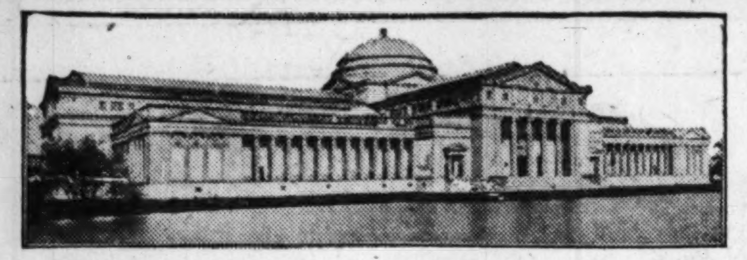
Possibilities of the Field Museum Infinite in Number

By Eleanor Jewett.

From the dreams of a thousand nights
  Which saw the new moon born,
From the tears of a thousand days
  With love betrayed at the morn—
Out of the nights and the days,
  The heart of a poet was torn.

Quivering down by the river
  That fled to a placid pool,
It flung itself in the sunlight,
  For the shadows were dark and cool—
And under the trees by the water
  The poet's heart went to school.

Much did it learn of beauty,
  The where and the why of delight,
While the trees sang to the river
  The river sang in its flight—
The poet found his heart in the wonder
  And built it a house by night.



The old Field museum in Jackson Park, which it is the duty and should be the pleasure of Chicago to preserve.

THIS is, quite simply, a plea for the Field museum in Jackson park. It stands to reason that, speaking with prosaic exactitude, the building was not built by a single poet out of the pain of nights to shelter his heart from the day, but, speaking with the license which is generally allowed the poet, it might well have been, judging from the beauty of its lines.

The old Field museum is admitted, by artists, architects, and laymen alike, to be a rarely beautiful structure. It is unequaled as a pure example of classical architecture, so critics and architects say. In addition to this, it is the last remaining memorial of Chicago's greatest art achievement, the World's Columbian exposition.

Aside from the interest of its past, however, and aside from its own acknowledged beauty, the Field museum, if it is saved to us, holds the promise of an infinitely valuable future. The following letter, which I quote in full, is from Lorado Taft, and should be given the fullest consideration:

"Not once but several times I wrote home from Paris last year that I found the Trocadero collection of architectural casts the most interesting exhibition in the city. I was fascinated by that artistic record of the centuries—not even the Louvre was more appealing. Here are displayed, as on the pages of a book, the greatest works of French architects and sculptors from the primitive days down through the Romanesque, Gothic, and Renaissance periods. Only, instead of photographs and half-tones, we have here the things themselves. You walk through noble portals, you bow at immemorial shrines, you trace the handicraft of intricate reliefs; the masterly simplification of lofty finials and distant friezes is revealed near at hand.

"Our collection in Blackstone hall [of the Art institute] reproduces a few of these treasures, the Trocadero offers you the whole sequence. Here the architects and decorators go for inspiration, the scene painters and movie designers for 'local color.' A great molding shop in the basement supplies duplicates of details to those who require them.

"Such a collection could be put into the old Field museum at a reasonable cost. It is the expense of building and site which usually makes similar enterprises impossible. The space and height in the old Field museum are sufficient, its great courts ideal for the purpose. Imagine the vestibule and north court in massive Egyptian style; the east court transformed into a Greek temple—it is ample for the interior of the Parthenon, exact in size; the west court a Gothic hall, etc. Then we have an abundance of smaller rooms suited to the display of architectural details and ensemble. What a place to visit! America would have nohting more interesting.

"That there is another use for a portion of the building is suggested by the following incident: Only this week [Mr. Taft wrote this letter the end of November] I have had to send Frederick MacMonnies a letter from the Art institute declining his offered gift of the model for his great Princeton group. How we regret it! This cast of heroic size pictures Gen. Washington and his sore tried followers as only the genius of MacMonnies can do it. To possess it is to have the original of a great work. But the Art institute writes that they have no place there for a piece of work of this size, nor prospect of such space.

"A few years ago the Art institute destroyed Martiny's exquisite models made for the world's fair; Bartlett's noble 'Columbus' went the same way. Mercie's 'Quand Même" has disappeared. 'The Spirit of Life,' by Daniel Chester French, is dismembered and is seen no more. The storerooms of the Art institute are crowded with important and valuable casts which stand no chance of ever again seeing the light upon the lake front.

"All of these objects of beauty and historic importance could find accommodation in the old Field museum at Jackson park. Such a collection could have its choice of the original works of our most eminent sculptors who are constantly destroying their models because of lack of spacing room.

"The City Art museum of St. Louis has in a few years acquired an imposing display of such works merely through having a place for them. The proposed museum at Jackson park could be made not only a great historic display of architectural casts, but the most complete assembly of American sculpture in the country. Visitors who 'stop over' a day to see the wonders of Chicago would find it one of the greatest sights of the city."

The old Field museum as it stands today in Jackson park has a probable value of at least $3,000,000. The building contains approximately 200,000 square feet, and a ground area of about four and three-quarters acres. The estimated cost of restoring the museum is $1,640,000. Compare this figure for a minute with the cost of the new Field museum in Grant park.

The new Field museum, recently completed in Grant park, and let at prewar figures, will cost approximately $6,000,000. If this structure were contracted for today, it would cost approximately $10,000,000 to $12,000,000. The building has about the same floor space as the old Field museum, so for the sum of $1,640,000, spent in rehabilitating this structure, Chicago would get a building worth at present prices nearly twelve times its cost, and in addition, a much more beautiful and historic building than could be built today by no matter what architect nor at what price.

Photographs will be shown of the museum in the architectural exhibition, which opens Tuesday at the Art institute. Plans are under consideration for raising the money needed to make the restorations. It would seem that a mill tax or bond issue spread over the south park district, or better the entire city of Chicago, would meet with popular approval. Some such thing must be done—for we must (with a big M) save the old Field museum for the city.

An interesting exhibition of block prints and monotypes by the Provincetown group of block printers is now being shown at the Arts club. In an exhibit which covers as many personalities as are represented here, there are bound to be examples of the ismatic schools of art as well as what, for the lack of a better word, may be termed straight art.

Some of the prints shown at the Arts club are conducive to laughter, which I expect for the serious author of their being, is the bitterest criticism one might bestow upon their work. Nevertheless I defy you to look at the four prints by Karl Knaths, and, especially when contemplating the imminent fall of the poor beast attached to "Prada's" wagon, not feel your lips twitch to a smile.

Also look at Ross Moffett's "The Beggar and the Uncharitable Woman," and keep a straight face—if you can. The beggar is a marvelous rascal with a tin cup, which he holds courageously toward the averted face of the uncharitable woman, who appears about to drop a spray of red holly into the waiting mug—of course, by accident, for is she not labeled uncharitable?

Different in humor, refreshingly different, are the prints by Bertram Hartman: "Elefantasie," "Book Plate for a Certain Young Man," and "Watch Your Step." Also with humor, but spiced with a French dressing, are "The Café" and "The Bath," by Ethel Mars.

To show that these prints may be made simple and beautiful there are hung works by Birger Sandzen, of which might be mentioned "The Old Homestead," "Horses in Hilly Pasture," and "Pawnee Creek"; also by Tod Lindenmuth, "The Runway," "A Village Street," and "Winter"; and by John J. A. Murphy, "Wounded," "Three Men," and "The Carriers."

There is at present in room 16 of the Art institute an interesting collection of reproductions of paintings by old masters, and by modern American painters and illustrators, lent by Charles Beck. The copies are faithful and in many cases exceedingly beautiful. This means of bringing famous pictures within the reach of every one is well worth while. Every school should have its collection of prints, and every museum should have a large supplementary print collection that could be lent to various schools on request.

The Art institute in its picture slide department has some such thing. It is the quickest and best way of bringing home to the average child or adult the best in the world of painting, sculpture, and architecture. Without such help, for many persons, the best things the world can give us must from necessity remain a closed book. If the present exhibit arouses a keener interest in the minds of those who enjoy the pictures, it will serve a great purpose.

The Duel

By Guy Lee.

Jane showed me how to use the foils
  When we were first acquainted,
And as I strove to break her guard
  She feinted.

When later on we fenced at love,
  Although her look was sainted,
She proved a little devil as
  She feinted.

But I got even. You may think
  That my revenge was tainted.
I kissed her—I admit it—when
  She fainted.

But you'll agree the act was not
  As bad as it is painted:
For she returned the kiss the time
  She fainted.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF GOODRICH

"Best in the Long Run" is more than a phrase—it is a principle inseparably connected with the name of Goodrich. It typifies the ideal of service that governs the manufacture of every Goodrich product.

THE REAL MEANING OF "BEST IN THE LONG RUN"

THE MOTTO of Goodrich, from the very first day the company started—fifty years ago—was, "Let us make goods destined for service." The thought of service dominated the work of the organization, for it was rightly realized that only upon the service the products of the company rendered to their users could an enduring concern be built.

Eventually this principle was crystallized into the five words which are now so well and widely known as the Goodrich slogan—"Best in the Long Run." It is almost as old as the history of tires for it grew out of the performance of Goodrich Tires on bicycles. And it grew into the dependability of Goodrich rubber products of all kinds.

It is not just a catch phrase. It is a plain statement of fact. It is really a mirroring of the confidence placed in Goodrich products by their users. In five words it expresses the ideals, the policies, the principles of the institution. It means the "long run" of good faith and good will—the steady building up of confidence in the minds of customers—which is the greatest asset a manufacturer can have.

Quality and service—that is how Goodrich translates this slogan into terms of longest average wear, utmost dependability and known value in all that it produces. It must be "Best in the Long Run."

Five Chicago Men Among First 10 in Aerial Mail Contest

Newspaper Prize Contest to Close on Tuesday

BY MORROW KRUM.

WHEN the pilots of the air mail service finish their flights Tuesday evening, the contest for the $1,000 in rewards offered by five newspapers along the coast-to-coast mail route will be closed. The first six months of the transcontinental air mail service will have come to a successful end.

At the close of five months of flying ten pilots in the service had covered more than 19,000 miles at an average speed of eighty miles an hour or better. The leader in the contest on Feb. 10 was V. I. Pickup of the Cheyenne-Omaha division. He had in that period made eighty-seven trips at the above speed and had covered 28,177 miles.

Standing second at the end of the fifth month was W. C. Hopson of the Chicago division. He made eighty-eight trips at the required speed and covered 26,880 miles. Last Wednesday Hopson arrived at the mail field in Maywood from Omaha and figured his mileage since Feb. 10.

"I have covered about 5,500 miles since then at better than eighty miles an hour," he said. "I believe I will run mighty close to Pickup—if I don't beat him. I have two more trips to make and they will boost my average, too."

Officials at the field in Maywood asserted that Hopson had a good chance to win the first prize, which is $500.

Third on the list is "Bud" Mouton of the Cleveland-New York flight. He covered during the five months 23,905 miles. The standing of the other seven pilots is shown below.

Among the ten leading pilots are found five who fly from Maywood. They are W. C. Hopson, W. D. Williams, J. T. Christensen, W. J. Smith, and Rufus Riddlesbarger.

No definite arrangements for the awarding of the prizes have yet been announced by the contest committee of the Aero club of America, which has charge of the contest. Neither have any announcements come from the air mail service officials in Washington.

When the transcontinental air mail service was opened five newspapers agreed to contribute towards a prize fund of $1,000, which was to be split into three awards, $500 for the winner, $300 for second place, and $200 for third. The newspapers donating were THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Omaha Daily Bee, the San Francisco Examiner, the Salt Lake Tribune, and the New York Evening Post. The prize money was sent to the contest committee of the Aero Club of America, which made the necessary arrangements.

In this section of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE on March 13 you will be able to learn who the winners of the contest are—providing the announcements have been sent out from Washington before that day.

Below are listed the ten pilots of the air mail service, who have flown the greatest number of miles during the period from Sept. 8, 1920, to Feb. 10, 1921. The number of trips completed at a speed of eighty miles per hour or better, and the total mileage of each pilot is shown opposite his name:

STANDS SECOND

Pilot W. C. Hopson of the Chicago division of the air mail service now stands second in the contest for the $1,000 in prizes offered by five newspapers. Officials at the local mail field assert that Hopson may win the contest, which closes Tuesday.

Good Weather.

Luke field reports an enviable weather record, having had only four days of rain during flying time for the entire year of 1920. Three of these, it may be noted, occurred during the last two weeks of the old year.

Now We Shall See What Aerial Bombs Will Do to Vessels

NOW we shall see whether or not a battleship can actually be destroyed by a limited number of bombs from an airplane. There is, of course, no doubt that there are enough ships and bombs in America to destroy a capital ship, but whether or not it can be done by a small number of bombs dropped under as near battle conditions as possible to find in a time of peace is another question.

However, the navy is going to decide the question.

A program for what promises to be the greatest naval and aerial gun and bombing test ever conducted has been approved by Secretary Daniels, and the joint board of the navy for the purpose of determining the relative merits of gun and bomb firing on certain types of war vessels.

In these tests, which are to be conducted at sea between June 1 and July 15 next, the obsolete American battleships Iowa and Kentucky, and eleven ex-German war vessels allocated to the United States will be used as the targets.

It is not the intention to sink the Iowa and Kentucky. Dummy bombs will be used in the tests on these vessels for the purpose of determining the extent to which airplanes are able to make hits from aloft, and also to work out certain tactical experiments. But all of the former German vessels will be sunk.

The orders to Admiral Henry Braid Wilson, the commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, were to conduct these experiments to determine the present value of aircraft operating from shore bases against naval vessels unattended by aircraft and to sink all of these former German vessels in the tests. Under a decision reached by the council of ambassadors, the destruction of the ex-German vessels in the hands of the United States is required between May 1 and Aug. 9 this year.

Announcement of the government's plans followed a joint army and navy board meeting last week.

The battleship Iowa will be radio controlled during the experiments. It will be attacked with dummy bombs by aircraft, from a minimum altitude of 4,000 feet, at a point within a zone between 50 and 100 miles off coast betweeen Capes Hatteras and Henlopen. The Iowa and the attacking craft will travel at the maximum practicable speed. The object of the Iowa will be to avoid being struck by aircraft bombs.

The radio system will maneuver the battleship with the same dexterity that it can be handled by a crew, hence the only lacking element of battle will be the missing return of fire from the Iowa's guns.

But for the "attack" on German vessels the ordnance department has been ordered to prepare 298 bombs. They will weigh 230 pounds, 250 pounds, 520 pounds, 550 pounds, and 1,000 pounds. In the case of the four ex-German submarines, one submarine is to be attacked and, if posssible, sunk by bombs dropped from aircraft, while the remaining submarines will be subjected to shellfire from the destroyers. If any of them are not sunk by these attacks the submarines are to be sunk by depth charges.

One of the three German destroyers similarly will be attacked by aircraft and the other two by destroyers.

Use the X-Ray.

The X-ray is used in airplane construction to detect defective materials, weak metal castings, and workmanship which would otherwise escape the eye of an inspector.

Air Mail Stamps.

Over forty varieties of specially designed postage stamps for air mails have already been published, much to the joy of the philatelists. Italy has the credit for the first air stamp which was issued by the Italian postal authorities as long ago as 1917. The United States, Canada, Newfoundland, Sweden, Spain, Switzerland, Esthonia, Colombia, and the Belgian Congo have all considered it desirable to issue special stamps to their peoples. Tunis has even produced a second contribution Needless to mention, Germany and Hungary were early in the field, rightly considering it an excellent means of educating the public in the practical side of aviation.

Park-to-Park Map May Be Had Upon Request to Ass'n

THIS story concerns a road guide that the National Park-to-Park Highway association, with headquarters in Denver, is preparing to distribute in anticipation of a large tourist season.

There are more than 500 cities and towns on the route of the highway, which connects the twelve national parks and many forests and Indian reservations in its course of 6,000 miles through eleven states. The pamphlet will give the mileage between 150 of the larger places, including such cities as Great Falls, Spokane, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles, Denver and Cheyenne, as well as side trips and towns in which free automobile camps are established.

Most of the mileage at present is over dirt grade roads going to make up this circle highway. The national park service and the American Automobile association are very much interested in the association's efforts to some day have a hard-surfaced boulevard the entire 6,000 miles. A guide may be obtained by addressing the National Park-to-Park Highway association, 505 Seventeenth street, Denver.

New York May Revive Famous Vanderbilt Races

Move May Bring the Old Line Racers Out Again

REVIVAL of the famous Vanderbilt and Grand Prize automobile races over the historic courses of Westchester or Long Island is proposed by the New York Automobile Dealers' association.

Since the dismantling of the Sheepshead Bay speedway New York has been without motor racing of any kind. Recently vigorous interest in a revival of racing made itself manifest, culminating in the appointment of E. S. Partridge by the directors of the New York dealers' association as chairman of an executive committee to take charge of a racing program.

Prospect of success is especially favorable, it is believed, because of the fact that the dealers' association is headed by W. C. Poertner, a racing enthusiast of first water.

In the old days Poertner was closely identified with the national racing teams that captured the road racing championship of the world in 1911 and swept the speedways in 1912. Though he has since not actively engaged in the sport, Poertner has always followed it with keenest interest and done everything he could for its advancement.

In the event that the program to revive the Vanderbilt Cup and Grand Prize races meets with success, it is believed that Poertner will make every effort to bring national racing teams back into competition.

The return of national racing would, it is believed, bring many others of the old line American manufacturers into the fold as well, restoring the sport to the universal plane of interest that it occupied in the historic days when Simplex, National, Marmon, Mercer, Stutz, Mercedes, and Fiat were waging their classic engagements for the world's racing championship.

It Now Holds This Price Advantage

Essex quality quite naturally creates an expectancy of high price. Compared on every hand to costly cars it would be strange if many did not fall into that error.

Thus actual price comparisons give Essex true value in sharp relief.

How many of the cars in the Essex price range do you ever embrace in the same thought with it in regard to fineness, ability and distinction?

And do not the cars that you consider in the Essex quality class invariably cost hundreds of dollars more?

In reaching a standard by which to understand Essex values you must consider such price contrasts, as well as facts bearing on ability and dependence. Such examination will convince you also of the unusual value the Essex represents.

By Frank Ridgway.

WINDSWEPT prairie homes need a dense screen of evergreen trees to protect them from the northwest blizzards in winter and from the scorching sun in summer.

Evergreens used as a windbreak or shelter belt also add to the attractiveness and value of the property. When planted by farmers they are usually arranged in the form of windbreaks around buildings, orchards, and fields, while evergreens planted in cities or towns are selected and arranged for the artistic improvement of the landscape.

People in the city may have the advantage of assistance from professional landscape gardeners or practical plantsmen in the selection of good varieties and the proper arrangement of the evergreens to produce the right effect, while such services are not always available to the farmer.

Utility Value First.

The esthetic value of evergreens is emphasized where they are set in city parks and lawns, but on the farm the utility value of the trees takes first place; however, the decorative feature of evergreens should not be overlooked by farmers.

A. H. Hill of Dundee, Ill., an authority on landscape gardening, says that a fine, well grown evergreen windbreak on a farm is a "thing of beauty and a joy forever." Nothing could be more beautiful than snow laden pines on a frosty winter's morning.

Any body of trees which gives protection to buildings or crops may be called a windbreak. Shelter belts may be formed by planting leaf bearing trees, but these are less effective in checking the wind than a row of evergreens. This is due to the fact that the influence of the windbreaks upon air currents is purely mechanical, and the effectiveness of the trees depends upon how nearly impenetrable they are.

Evergreen Best Protection.

"The ordinary windbreak of willow, cottonwood, or ash does not provide much protection from cold winter winds. A good evergreen windbreak will provide almost an absolute barrier to the wind; some air may force its way between the branches and foliage of the evergreen trees, but the movement of air on the leeward side is stopped completely or nearly so. By reducing the force of hot or cold winds, a windbreak may help to make it more comfortable for man and live stock within the zone of its influence," Mr. Hill explained.

In pointing out some of the economic features he says that less feed is required in winter to provide bodily warmth and nourishment for farm animals protected by an evergreen shelter belt and that they will be more comfortable in summer in its shade. Less fuel is needed to heat the home, and the buildings deteriorate less rapidly where they are protected by rows of trees. A good windbreak may reduce the velocity of the wind as much as 80 or 90 per cent immediately to the leeward.

Adds to Selling Value.

Many farmers have found that their farms greatly increased in value, adding as much as $5,000 to the selling price, by planting evergreen windbreaks around the farm building groups. This is one of the improvements that can be made on a farm that continually increases in value.

"The prairie farm without an evergreen windbreak has a continuous leak in attractiveness, comfort, and profit, and such a farm does not score 100 per cent in efficiency," Mr. Hill says. "The city or suburban dweller who leaves the storm windows or doors off his house during the winter on the plea that he has an abundance of coal and can keep his house warm anyway might have his soundness of judgment questioned. Windbreaks are the storm windows and doors of the farmstead, and are just as effective in keeping the house and other buildings warm as storm sashes are in protecting the house. The heat bill for the farm dwelling will be lessened by a surprising amount if the north and northwest zero gales are diverted upward and around the buildings by the trees."

Tree Space Not Wasted.

The practical value of the windbreak makes it a business proposition and the small amount of space needed for the planting of one, two, or three rows of trees should not be given over too grudgingly. Even one row of the right kind of evergreens will be found effective. Two rows, of course, are better, and three or four rows will make a standard windbreak.

The permanency of the windbreak makes it necessary to use extreme care in selecting the location before planting the trees, giving due consideration to the location of permanent buildings. Usually the rows of trees are confined to the north and west sides of the farm building group, particularly in the central prairie states, where the severe winds blow from the north and west.

In selecting varieties of evergreens choose those which will withstand extreme cold in winter and the heat and drought in summer. A fast growing conifer or cone bearing tree is usually given a wide margin of preference. The question of the attractiveness of a tree after it becomes large must be considered. It is usually possible to get trees that will be beautiful, with all of the other necessary qualities, from the long list of evergreens that is available. Landscape gardeners emphasize the importance of securing a tree that will produce heavy foliage; one which branches to the ground and retains its branches even though crowded and shaded somewhat.

Spring Time to Plant.

Mr. Hill believes that it is generally best to confine the prairie state plantings to as few varieties as possible, selecting only those which are suited to the climatic and other conditions in this section. For windbreak plantings he recommends Norway spruce, white spruce and black hill spruce, and white pine, Scotch pine, and Ponderosa pine.

Spring offers ideal conditions for the planting of evergreens. After the spring rains and warm sunshine have driven the frost out of the ground the soil is usually warm and mellow, furnishing just the condition required for the planting of young evergreen trees. Evergreens come from the nursery ready for planting. They are hardy, and if they reach the farm in a healthy condition and are given reasonable care before planting they will live and thrive with little attention after being set in the ground properly.

Spruces and pines will grow in a fairly wide range of soil. While they seem to do much better in light, sandy soil, they usually grow rapidly and thrive in almost any of the soils that are properly drained.

THE DEMOCRAT.

A Post-Inaugural Ode.

Who is it stands with drooping crest
And beats his sad, uncertain breast?
Why do you ask? You might have guessed:
A Democrat!

Who is the poor benighted guy
With heavy heart and streaming eye,
Who watches Harding rolling by?
A Democrat!

Who, with a chassis cramped with pain,
Is packing up his duds again
And boarding yonder outbound train?
A Democrat!

Who is the desolated Joe
That knows at last he'll have to blow
From out his berth in yon P. O.?
A lot of Democrats, brother.

Who stands outside the White House door
And sadly mutters o'er and o'er:
"That's all there is—there isn't any more"?
You tell 'em, Harding.

Stearns
Only One Other Car Equals Stearns Spring Suspension
Stearns-Knight riding qualities are famous. They should be. There is only one other make of car with a system of spring suspension like the Stearns—that's an imported model whose chassis sells around $12,000.
We frequently hear prospective buyers who are testing a Stearns say: "It rides like a Pullman Sleeping Car."
Everything in the Stearns is engineered to produce this smooth riding quality, from the chassis, with its special spring suspension to the smooth flowing power from the marvelous Stearns-Knight engine.
We believe a test of the Stearns under real conditions will prove to you that it is the car you want to drive.

ASTRONOMY

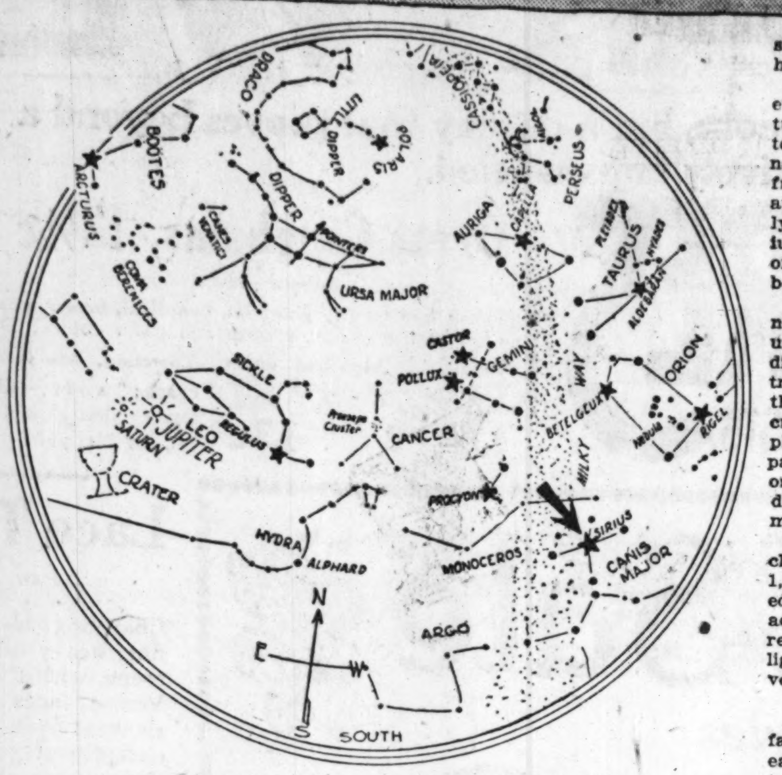
LIGHT A MEASURING ROD.

Go right now, and look at the sun. You see it instantly, do you not, white, hot, and blinding? Yet is what you see really what the sun looks like at this instant? Do you know that our orb might be blotted out the second you set your eye on it, and you would be none the wiser for eight minutes and eight seconds? This is the time light requires to come from there to the earth.

If you have ever watched a train at a distance, you may have seen a long streak of white steam emerge, linger, and vanish, and then five, ten, fifteen, or twenty seconds later you heard the whistle blow. The waves of sound began to travel the instant you saw the steam, but they went so slowly that you were conscious of a number of things before they reached you.

There is no sound in space that we can hear, for sounds are borne on dense air, and air exists in appreciable quantities only near planets. On earth distances are really so short that light seems instantaneous to us. Its waves move so rapidly that they might go more than seven times around the world in a second, provided they could be induced to take a curved path. But the earth is only a small dot in space, and our miles of measurement are even smaller, so, in comparison to celestial distances, light does move rather slowly.

You do not see the moon the way it is now, for instance; you see it the way it was two seconds ago. When you look at Venus, that bright evening star in the west, you see it as it appeared three minutes before. If you should ever have an opportunity to view Neptune, the farthest planet, through a telescope, you would see it shining by light that left the sun eight hours before you stepped to the glass.



THE SKY AT 8:00 OCLOCK TONIGHT
THE ARROW SHOWS SIRIUS, THE NEAREST BRIGHT STAR
BY S. F. MAXWELL

Seconds, minutes, and hours, however, are small units of time when we turn to look at stars. The nearest star to the earth, Alpha Centauri, unfortunately so situated that it cannot be seen from this part of the earth, is so far away that its light, moving continuously, requires 3.3 years to reach us. Sirius, which you can see tonight, is one of our closest neighbor suns in space, being only 8.6 light years away.

Miles are so small that they mean nothing in space. As well try to measure the circumference of the earth in diameters of dust grains! Instead, astronomers use light years. Even with this new measure, the stars are incredible distances apart. In those places where suns are most densely packed together, their spheres are three or four light years apart, and in ordinary groupings the distances are measured in hundreds of light years.

The Milky Way, that band of star clouds which encircles the sky, is 1,500 light years from us to its nearer edge, and our starry universe is 300,000 across. And, if this seems vast to you, remember that it is more than 5,000,000 light years to our nearest neighbor universe.

A. B.: The moon keeps the same face toward the earth because the earth has pulled up a bulge in its matter and so prevents it from ever turning over.

B. F. C.: The zenith is the name of the point overhead. The corresponding spot under foot is called nadir.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A BID FOR SALES ABILITY.

There will be open for an ace-high candy salesman, or a man selling a kindred line and possessing otherwise the essential qualifications, a splendid territory in Illinois and a line of confections that is unquestionably the peer of any. To the man whose demonstrated ability in advanced methods of salesmanship qualifies him to consideration, this is virtually the call of opportunity. The one whom we know would be the biggest success financially, is by training and inclination a merchandiser rather than an order getter, who, possessing certain perceptive faculties, senses always the larger selling chance—the opening to develop the hundred dollar buyer into a thousand dollar purchaser. And by his intelligence, thoughtful and clear presentation of our proposition in its biggest dimension of profit, interests and gains the confidence of the merchant, and by sheer compelling enthusiasm stimulates and sustains the retail distributor to resultful action. This is merchandising. And it demands an assertive personality and health and vigor to get it over, besides a sound knowledge of the business.

Gauged by what other high class men are accomplishing, the territory shortly available will pay a man of the same caliber on a commission basis around $6,000 clear the first year, indicating the probable future earnings of the territory. We realize the one thing that attracts and holds the type of salesman desired is liberal reward for ability. Our candy line, in range, is complete and the quality never so perfect as today. Our prices are conspicuously lower and the demand constant; indeed, our plants are kept working nights to keep up with orders for two million pounds weekly. We are the largest manufacturer in the industry and dominate our market. It is for the exceptional candy salesman to decide whether his future lies with us or competing against us.

Let it be clearly understood this is no soft job. It requires ability APPLIED. Our representative will reside within his territory, make all towns by auto or train, and will have eight classes of stores to sell to, therefore must work fast. Backed by a continuous and the most elaborate circular advertising campaign going to the retail trade today, and given the steadfast cooperation of the house—a strong man cannot help but make good.

Correspondence especially invited from down state men and an early interview with the state manager will be accorded applicants writing us fully and their letters will be held in strict confidence. Photographs submitted will be safely returned. Address G M 84, Tribune.

A1 ABSOLUTE FACTS. OFFICIAL SALES DATA.

In 1920 our high man earned $12,000 on his own personal sales. He also did organizing and brought his commissions to over $18,000. Our lowest man lost lots of time and earned $4,500. Another man earned $7,000 in 4 consecutive months on his personal sales.

We need three high class producers now. A district management worth $15,000 to $20,000 a year, with offices in a large city, awaits a man of grit, selling and organizing genius, as soon as he can prove himself. The company is the oldest of its kind in America, manufacturing a nationally known business building, profit increasing, and waste saving machine; sold on terms to grocers, butchers, delicatessens, restaurants, hotels, hospitals, etc. Liberal commissions quickly paid. Sales training given with producers in the field. Correspondence strictly confidential. Tell us your age, selling experience, etc. We desire one high class producer for St. Louis at once. Live salesmen know that the big money in sales work is earned in selling lines such as high grade specialties, bonds, advertising, and special service. Our work is in the latter class and not affected by present day business conditions. If you value your services at not less than $7,500 per year and have the dignity and force of personality to meet executives on a common level and present intelligently a service for which there is a real need—if you want to make a permanent connection with a firm that has been established twenty years—if you are willing to work on a straight commission basis with a guarantee of not less than $100 the first week in the field—if you believe in making sales on the one call basis and can show a clear record, let us show you how men without previous experience in our work jump into the $10,000 class after brief preliminary training. We have openings in several of the leading cities. Little traveling is required and if you feel that you can measure up to our requirements, phone Sales Manager, Harrison 9534 for interview.

SALESMEN.

A leading tire corporation, marketing its nationally advertised standard product to retail dealers only, is extending its selling force.

Experience has shown the earnings of best men on any selling force are handicapped by men who are not real salesmen. The good ones have to carry the poor ones. Therefore, in order to appeal only to high grade men who are prepared to back their confidence in their own ability, the company has evolved a plan whereby the results secured will determine a man's own earning capacity, offering high rewards to producers.

All territories are developed and credit will be given for all sales, direct and indirect.

The company is prepared to entertain applications from good men with established sales records who can furnish a guarantee bond.

The proposition will not be interesting to tourists.

Reply, giving full particulars of past record and territory covered and past remuneration. Address G K 572, Tribune.

Do you want a nice little home in the country, fine location, excellent neighborhood, on a good road and only five miles from Hastings, one of the best small cities in Michigan? The soil is a first class quality of gravelly loam and lies nearly level. There are about 37 acres under cultivation and three acres of second growth woods. The fences are good; plenty of small fruit and good water. The buildings consist of a cozy six room house that could not be built for $1,500, needs a little repairing in the way of papering which would cost about $50 to make it first class. The barn is 38x40, in good repair, all cemented, and would cost over $1,200 to duplicate. This place is only three miles from railroad station, close to school, and is the most complete bargain that was ever offered for sale.

FARMS THAT ARE FARMS.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME IN OLD VIRGINIA.

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY, where you have read and heard of so many people meeting with success and prosperity.

WHY?

BECAUSE "Old Virginia" is within a few hundred miles of one-half of the population of the United States.

BECAUSE you can own a farm close to the big eastern markets, where you get the top prices for all of your farm produce.

BECAUSE you have an ideal climate.

BECAUSE you have an average rainfall of 56 inches, well distributed throughout the year.

BECAUSE your cattle can graze in the green fields of "Old Virginia" on the bluegrass 10 months in the year.

This is why the people from the west have at last awakened and come to the realization that they have skipped over one of the best states in the union. The people in "Old Virginia" are not financially embarrassed, but, on the other hand, they are prosperous. WHY? Because when oats were selling at 45 cents in Illinois the farmers in VIRGINIA were selling their oats at $1.00 per bushel; when corn was selling at 60 cents in other states, the farmers in VIRGINIA were getting for their corn $1.25 per bushel; when hay was selling in the west at $15.00 per ton, the farmers in VIRGINIA were selling their hay at $30.00 per ton. Now, why is it that they have these prices prevailing in OLD VIRGINIA? For the simple reason that you are at the gateway of the eastern markets and within 300 miles of one-half of the population in the United States.

STOP, LOOK, and LISTEN!

THE GREAT EASTERN LAND COMPANY, at 208-209-210 CENTRAL NATIONAL BANK BLDG., RICHMOND, VA., is offering for sale 50,000 acres of land, situated in the famous RAPPAHANNOCK Valley, in the PAMUNKEY River Valley, and in the JAMES River Valley, where the soil is very productive and where the land lies along good roads, close to thriving towns and cities, good markets, and close to RICHMOND, the QUEEN CITY of the SOUTH.

This company is dividing these lands to suit the purchasers. We have just subdivided a tract of land of 1,000 acres into 10 magnificent farms. These farms have good improvements and are situated from 3 to 5 miles of a city of 7,000 population, along good roads, close to schools and churches, and in good neighborhoods. THIS MAY MAKE YOU SMILE, but it is a fact that on these Virginia lands which we are offering you today, corn has yielded from 60 to 100 bushels per acre, oats from 65 to 80 bushels per acre, and alfalfa hay has cut from 4 to 6 tons per acre per year; mixed hay has cut from 2½ to 3 tons per acre per year. Each and every one of these farms are producing equally as well.

Now, you will find a man standing on the corner who will read this ad, and just watch the expression on his face; he will grin and say: "It cannot be done." BUT SEEING IS BELIEVING—and we can deliver the goods and verify each statement we make.

The young man of the WEST toiled in fields, listened to the advice of those who told him that there was no other country than the West. When lands got up to $250 to $300 per acre, what was this price based on? It was based on community value. The price of lands in OLD VIRGINIA is based on what the lands will produce, and this is your opportunity to secure a farm ranging in size from 50 to 1,000 acres, where you will live in an ideal climate—where you will have a farm with good improvements, which you can pay for in a few years out of the crops you raise.

Our terms are one-third cash of the purchase price, the balance of the purchase price to be carried on the land for 5 years, interest at 6% per annum. We furnish an abstract of title to every farm we sell, showing a good and merchantable title, and convey by deed of general warranty and furnish you a survey and plat of the farm you buy, showing the exact acreage.

BIDDLE SPORT, $2,750

From the ground up the Biddle is a custom built sport car. Every line evidences smartness and speed. It is a car of quality.

The body is a narrow double cowled beveled edge creation that gradually tapers off to the radiator in a sharp knifelike edge. The upholstery and top are black; lamps, radiator, etc., are silver. The body is finished in deep purple and the chassis and wire wheels silver gray. Mottled gray Fabrikord seat covers. Two extra wire wheels, tires, and tire covers are mounted on hangers on either side of the car aft the radiator.

Mechanically the car is perfect and the motor is very quiet. It is one of the latest series and presents the appearance of new. For a car of this quality our price of $2,250 is extremely low. A duplicate would cost over $4,500.

Paige Sport 1920

A beautiful 4 passenger car.

This car is what is known as a "special job." It is a study in brown. Upholstery, fenders, and 5 disc steel wheels are chocolate brown. The body is lighter brown [almost tan]. The "toute ensemble" is very pleasing.

The car has been carefully driven only 6,900 miles. The special Continental 6 cylinder motor is extremely quiet. The tire equipment consist of Firestone cords that show less than 1,000 miles of service. 3 are non-skid and the two front are channel treads. The mechanism is in perfect condition and the entire car presents the appearance of new. Priced attractively.

MOTOR TROUBLES
The Power and Efficiency of your motor depends upon its cylinders and pistons. It is impossible to have full power with least expense of operation unless you have perfect round cylinders and pistons. 98% of all motor troubles is caused by out of round cylinders or scored; cause carbon, which acts like emery, that wears every moving part of the motor, fouls the plugs, pits the valves, valve seats causing loss of compression, pre-ignition, waste of oil, gas, and causes frequent expensive replacements. Fargo service of regrinding cylinders, making oversize pistons and rings, regrinding crankshafts insures a smooth running motor, delivers full power as surely and steadily as when new. Ford price, $24; others, $48 and up.

CLOTHING, FURS, ETC.

THE FACTS ABOUT THE MILLER PLAN OF BUYING QUALITY FURS.

As the price of good quality furs involves as great a cost as any other portion of a woman's attire, very careful consideration should be given to their purchase. The same principle of buying good quality diamonds directly applies to the purchase of furs. "Bargains" in furs are usually poor investments and the very worst sort of economy. Furs should contain the quality and workmanship that are capable of surviving many years. Furs should always be purchased with this thought in mind.

Most women realize the truthfulness of the above statements and have consequently refused to pay too little for furs. They would rather pay the right price for the right quality and secure satisfactory service than buy a "bargain" fur that will give service for but one season, and mighty poor service at that.

The Miller deferred plan of payment was originated as a result of these facts. A surprising majority of women who were about to buy new furs very often hesitated in paying the difference in the cost of a poor quality fur and a good quality fur—chiefly because they did not have the full price of the good quality fur. The Miller plan makes it possible for women to secure ultra-fashionable, high quality furs by paying a portion of the full cost of the fur when securing it and stretching the balance over a period of four months—thereby enabling them to secure quality furs that are guaranteed to give satisfaction and at the same time making the payments on a very convenient basis.

Miller furs are produced by Miller. You buy them at the regular manufacturer's wholesale price—you save the retailer's profit. Every fur and fur coat that Miller sells is guaranteed to be exactly as represented. Only first quality skins are used.

Miller is always ready to show merchandise and explain his deferred payment plan.

Equipment Trusts on Trolley Lines.

If the men who are working out a plan to issue street car equipment certificates succeed in forming a security equal to railway "equipment trusts" they will have done much toward solving the present difficulties of traction lines.

The main strength of the railways certificates, of course, is in the fact that a railroad must have cars and locomotives whether it is solvent or not. Even if a receiver is in charge he must make the serial payments as they fall due or lose his best equipment. Because of this it is the practice of courts to authorize receivers to make payments on equipment before interest on first mortgage bonds. It thus comes about that what is really a chattel mortgage on cars occupies a strategic position ahead of all other obligations.

Trolley equipment trusts are comparatively new and have not yet passed through the tests of the bankruptcy courts. Evidently they have the same basis of safety as railway certificates, except in the one fact that, while a railway must operate or bring financial ruin to the territory it serves, the paralyzing of a trolley line may bring nothing more serious than inconvenience to patrons.

One way to put trolley car obligations on the same basis as those of railways would be to limit their use to traction systems so large and important that to stop operating them would be almost unthinkable. It may be possible to devise some plan that will give an equally sound security for small companies, but this still remains to be done.

Brief Answers.

J. L. F.—The Central Pacific first and refunding 4s of 1949 are guaranteed by the Southern Pacific company and secured by first lien on 1,344 miles of road, also on terminals, ferries, etc. They are protected by a sinking fund of $25,000 a year and are a sound investment.

A. T., Highland Park, Ill.—Chile's national debt amounted to about $56 a person in 1917, according to Kimber's Record of Government Debts, and the annual debt charge was less than $4 a person.

Cuban Sugar Commission Withdraws from Market

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Cuban sugar commission has withdrawn from the market and is making no offerings at the moment. All local refiners are withdrawn except American Sugar Refining company, which is continuing to make allotments at 7.75 cents. In the west the beet sugar producers are reluctant sellers and some companies are withdrawn.

Demand for refined sugar is exceeding expectations. Purchases of refined sugars by the trade have been at a low ebb during the last six months and there is a tendency now to anticipate requirements. It is estimated that in the last two weeks Atlantic port refiners have sold 1,250,000 barrels of refined sugars, which is four to five times the volume at which sales have been running recently. Some refiners are sold from ten days to two weeks ahead.

Northern Pacific Forms Oil Development Company

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—The Northern Pacific Railway company has formed, with other interests, an independent company to develop and lease for development on a royalty basis its extensive acreage of potential oil lands in Montana, North Dakota, and Wyoming, according to a statement issued today.

The new concern, incorporated under the laws of Delaware, has a capitalization of 100,000 shares of no par value and is called the Absaroka Oil Development company. Control will be retained by the railroad company, and it is understood some of the stock probably will be sold to provide working capital.

At the same time it is understood that the company probably will be most active as the medium through which Northern Pacific oil properties may be leased to outsiders, and therefore will not require any large amount of cash to begin operations. If the Montana and Wyoming oil properties are developed into bonanzas, it is probable that the parent concern will go into development and oil production on a broad scale.

Million Pounds of Copper Sold on 12⅜ Cent Basis

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—One million pounds of copper was sold for March shipment Thursday afternoon at 12⅜ cents a pound, delivered. This is believed to have been the only sale of importance made in the last two days.

Inquiry making the rounds is meager. England and Germany continue to buy from companies having stocks abroad, but are buying little in the New York market. Copper producers believe an amicable agreement will be arrived at as a result of reparations negotiations. This, they think, will cause increased buying both for domestic and foreign consumption two weeks or so from now, with stiffening resulting in price to somewhat over 12⅜ cents a pound.

After a sharp advance in hog prices early in the week trade closed top-heavy yesterday and generally 50c below high time Thursday, with liberal arrivals and lower prices expected the coming week. The week's average price at $10.20 was highest for any week since last November.

Early on Saturday fancy light hogs sold at $11.00, but the same class went later at $10.80. The day's general average price at $10.00 was 10c higher than previous Saturday and $4.95 lower than a year ago.

Week's receipts of hogs at 185,800 were 33,000 above the ten year average of corresponding week since 1911. Last week's estimated average weight at 232 lbs was same as previous week, one pound lighter than a year ago, and four lbs heavier than the ten year average.

Cattle Average Is Higher.

There was a general narrowing of the price range in cattle last week, the top at $10.75 being same as previous week, while the in between grades advanced 50@75c. The week's average price of good beef steers at $9.00 was highest in two months.

Starting in strong and sharply higher the fore part of the week, both sheep and lambs closed weak and 75c@$1.00 below high time of the week and around 25@50c lower than previous Saturday.

Estimates on Receipts.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 58,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 13,401 cattle, 39,777 hogs and 16,395 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 54,000 cattle, 180,000 hogs, and 75,000 sheep, against 56,705 cattle, 155,731 hogs, and 53,792 sheep a year ago.

Various estimates placed next Monday's probable hog receipts at 45,000 to 65,000. William Garrett marked 65,000, R. W. Oake 62,000, Felix Gehrmann 60,000, E. R. Gentry 57,000, W. H. Overman 52,000, J. M. Waters and F. R. Burrows 50,000, and A. King 45,000.
